OIL MEN IN DANGER OF CRIMINAL ACTION

Decision Breaking Holding Company's Power Invites Prosecution of Those Who Control Trust.

OTHER TRUSTS IN DANGER

And Standard Oil May Be Called Upon to Pay Threefold Damages to Any It May Have Injured.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—Another question than the mere dissolution of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey awaits the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States upon the appeal to be taken from the decision of the Circuit Court of the Eastern District of Missouri, filed in St. Paul and St. Louis yesterday, granting the injunction prayed for by the Government. It is that of the criminal prosecution of the individual defendants found guilty by Judges Sanborn, Van Deventer, Hook, and Adams of violating the Sherman Anti-Trust law.

The opinion of the Circuit Court declares very emphatically that the seven defendants named individually, John D. Rockefeller, William Rockefeller, Henry M. Flagler, Henry H. Rogers, John D. Archbold, Oliver H. Payne, and Charles M. Pratt, "have been and are" violating the Sherman law. And, as if in invitation to the Government to undertake a criminal prosecution, it cites Section 2 of the Sherman law as "pertinent to the issues in this case." Section 2 is the one which makes it a misdemeanor for every person "to monopolize or attempt to monopolize or combine or conspire with any other person or persons to monopolize any part" of inter-State or foreign commerce.

The punishment for violation of this section is declared to be a fine of not more than $5,000 or imprisonment for not more than one year, or both. The case decided yesterday was an equity proceeding for an injunction, and the citation of the criminal section is regarded here as all the more significant for that reason.

Will Wait on Supreme Court.

Inquiry to-day among responsible officials of the Administration developed the fact that the question of criminal prosecution of the Standard Oil men named as individual defendants in the dissolution suit had not yet been brought up officially, although it has not escaped the attention of the Administration that such a result might follow a successful termination of the pending case. It is learned that no definite line of action is likely to be determined until after the decision on appeal to the Supreme Court. In case the opinion of the Circuit Court is affirmed the question of criminal prosecutions will then come up for decision by the Administration.

The question is also affected to some extent by the question raised in the Sugar Trust prosecutions through the decision of Judge Holt in New York dismissing the case against Gustave Kissel on the ground that the statute of limitations had run. That case is about to be appealed by the Government, and the decision of the Supreme Court may have a bearing upon what shall be done with the Standard Oil men. The Government will contend that although the original ace in violation of the Sherman law by the Sugar Trust may have been outlawed, the violation was in fact a continuing offense, and that each act of the trust in furtherance of the conspiracy constituted a new offense.

There are points of difference, however, between the Sugar Trust case and that of the Standard Oil. The opinion of Judge Sanborn repeatedly declares that the seven named defendants "have been and are" committing the illegal acts, thus bringing the violation of the law right down to date.

The question of criminal prosecution would await the final adjudication by the Supreme Court, however, regardless of the question of limitations, because of the unwillingness of the Government to undertake a criminal case while there was still a chance that the equity proceedings might fail. If the injunction case is successful in the Supreme Court, however, the probability to-day is that criminal cases will be instituted against such of the seven individuals as are then within reach of the courts. One of the seven, Henry H. Rogers, has died since the equity proceedings were begun, in November three years ago.

Criminal Case Ready Now.

It was pointed out to-day that, in the event of criminal prosecutions being undertaken, the Government would be in an extraordinary situation. The case it made before the Circuit Court convinced the four Judges, and they rendered a unanimous decision. The same case, especially after it had been successful in the Supreme Court of the United States, would no doubt have a decided effect on the jury, and after having been passed upon and sustained once by the Supreme Court, would not be so liable to failure on the second appeal. The Government thus has its evidence and witnesses ready and its attorneys thoroughly familiar with the ground to be covered as well as with the case of the defendants, so that there would be no delay on behalf of the Government, and the prosecutions could be pushed vigorously from the start.

This possibility of criminal prosecution has so overshadowed all other features of the Standard Oil case here to-day that not much attention has been given to the general effect of the decision of the Circuit Court.

It is said by officials of the Department of Justice that they have every reason to hope for favorable action by the Supreme Court on the appeal. The bench which rendered the decision is about the strongest in the country, and the fact that the four Judges were unanimous gives added ground for hope of a successful outcome on the part of the Government. This is the circuit from which the Northern Securities case came to the Supreme Court. Judge Sanborn, who wrote the opinion in the Standard Oil case, was on the bench when that suit was decided, but his associates have been appointed since.

Danger to Other Combinations.

Two general phases of the situation which would result from an affirmation by the Supreme Court of the decision rendered yesterday at once present themselves. One is the general applicability of the decision to other trusts, and the other is the fact that although the Northern Securities Company was dissolved by the injunction of the Supreme Court, the railroad merger aimed at by the Northern Securities Company in fact continues in effect to-day, uninterfered with by that injunction.

It is apparent at once, say the officials of the Department of Justice who have discussed the situation to-day, that the decision of yesterday will apply to every other similar trust. It fits the United States Steel Corporation as if made for it. The Steel Corporation was organized on the plan of the Standard Oil, and patterned after the Standard in its business methods. Its composition was effected by the same means that built up the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

RESCUE X-SCIENCE PATIENT.

Paterson Police Interfere to Get Her to a Hospital—Husband a Believer.

Special to The New York Times.

PATERSON, N. J., Nov. 21.—Mrs. Agnes Rivollier of 18 Arlington Street, Paterson, was taken to the General Hospital to-night in a critical condition, after the police had threatened with arrest her husband, Eli Rivollier, who is a Christian Scientist, an alleged nurse, who is also a Christian Scientist, and the parents of Rivollier. The Christian Scientists resisted the efforts of the parents of Mrs. Rivollier and the ambulance surgeons to remove the patient. On this Cornelius De Block, father of Mrs. Rivollier, notified Prosecutor Emley, who directed Police Capt. Taylor to take action.

Mrs. Rivollier has been suffering for four or five weeks from intestinal trouble. She is a member of the Holland Reformed Church, and believes to some extent in Christian Science, although she is not an enrolled Christian Scientist. When she became ill Dr. Vreeland was called. She did not improve, and Dr. Bullen was called in consultation. The parents of Mrs. Rivollier hired Mrs. Snow, a trained nurse, but she remained only four days. Then another trained nurse, Mrs. Carlough, was hired, but she, too, soon left.

Mrs. Rivollier's husband told her parents that he would engage a satisfactory nurse. The De Block family heard that the new nurse was a Christian Scientist, and that Mrs. Rivollier had not been getting the medicine prescribed by the physicians. This information brought about a clash between the De Block and the Rivollier families.

Rivollier declared that he was a Christian Scientist, and had been taking Christion Science treatment for tuberculosis. He believed in the treatment, and believed the same treatment would cure his wife.

The police will take no further action unless Mrs. Rivollier should die.

MONROE, DESPERADO, CAUGHT

Escaped Posses in New York and New Jersey—Captured in California.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Nov. 21.—William Monroe, who is wanted in several New York towns for various crimes, is in prison at El Centro, San Diego County, Cal., having been arrested there for assault. He is wanted in Newburg for perjury and assault, in Wallkill for assault, in Middletown for escaping jail, and at New Paltz for murderously assaulting five persons and arson, in burning a barn occupied by a number of men.

Monroe, who is 24 years old, for a number of years made his home near this city. He had been compelled to remain in hiding for some time because of other offenses, when on Aug. 11, 1908, he appeared at the home of Abram Devo, a wealthy farmer near New Paltz. In the house were Mr. and Mrs. Deyo and their infant child, Mrs. Jonathan Deyo, the wife of a New York lawyer, and a servant. Monroe asked for employment, and when it was refused, beat all the inmates of the house, and kicked the baby out of the cradle.

Jonathan Deyo, the New York lawyer, was at the barn watching four men press hay. Monroe knocked him down, and then went into the barn, lit matches and threw them into the hay mow.

Rewards aggregating almost $1,000 were offered for Monroe, and weeks were spent in hunting for him. He was wounded twice and once, near Paterson, N. J., was almost captured. Then he disappeared.

Chief of Police McCoach three months ago received a post card from Monroe saying, "I am in California, come and get me." The police of San Bernardino were notified, and went after him armed with shot guns. He was working in a field, and saw them coming. He swam across a stream, although shot at several times. He had been staying with a sister near San Bernardino. Later he was arrested at El Centro.

GIRL'S SHOT KILLS MAN.

Waltham Citizen Is Slain and Wife's Maid Has Disappeared.

Special to The New York Times.

WALTHAM, Mass., Nov. 21.—Clarence F. Glover, Treasurer of the Waltham Laundry, was found in the street late last night with a bullet wound in his back. He died shortly after midnight at a private hospital, after having stated that Helen Leblanc, 16 years old, his wife's maid, had done the shooting.

Glover said they had been automobiling and had gone to his office. They had a quarrel, and the girl picked up his pistol and shot him. The Leblanc girl disappeared. She is thought to have drowned herself in the Charles River, but the police have dragged it to-day, without finding her body.

Mrs. Glover went to the hospital after she learned of the case, but returned to her home later and was informed over the telephone that her husband had died.

"Miss Leblanc I always looked upon as being of fine character," said Mrs. Glover. "She was very pretty and had a sweet disposition. I treated her as though she was my own child. We got her from an institution in Newton about a year ago, and she always seemed to think the world of us both. If my husband in his conscious moments said that she shot him it must be true. He must know how it occurred."

An overcoat belonging to another man was found on the seat of Glover's automobile after the shooting. The car was standing on Spruce Street, fully a quarter of a mile from the laundry office.

DIED FOR UNTOLD LOVE.

Miller Put Stones in His Pockets and Drowned Himself.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, Nov. 21.—The body of Leonard C. Miller, who disappeared last Monday from his home in this city, was found with grappling irons to-day in the Hudson River. He had evidently drowned himself, as the pockets of his overcoat were filled with stones to keep the body from rising.

The only theory advanced to account for his disappearance was that the home of Mrs. E. Camilla Stirk and her daughter, Minnie H. Stirk, where Miller boarded for many years, was to be broken up. Several who knew Miller believed he was in love with Miss Stirk but had never let her know it. A short time ago Miss Stirk's engagement to a Florida fruit grower, and the decision of Mrs. Stirk and her daughter to move South this Winter, were announced, and Miller was told that he must find another boarding place. Saying nothing of love for the young woman or against her marriage to another, Miller grew more and more melancholy and last Monday he disappeared.

Miller was 64 years old. Miss Stirk is much younger. He was an expert bookkeeper, who saved nearly all the money he earned through years of steady application, making some good investments. He has one brother in Brooklyn.

TAFT TAKES UP CASE AGAINST NICARAGUA

After Conference Secretary Knox Announces That Reparation May Be Demanded.

BUFFALO ORDERED SOUTH

Transport to Hurry to Panama in Readiness to Take Marines to Corinto, If Necessary.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—Following a conference with the President at the White House to-night on the Nicaraguan situation, Secretary of State Knox authorized the following statement:

> If certain representations of fact which have been made to the State Department concerning the Groce and Cannon case are verified by inquiries that have been made, This Government will at once prepare a demand on the Nicaraguan Government for reparation for the death of these two men.

For two hours to-night President Taft conferred with Secretary Knox on the Nicaraguan situation. The Secretary of State, accompanied by Henry M. Hoyt, Counselor of the State Department, reached the White House shortly after 9 o'clock. Before going to the Executive Mansion Mr. Knox held a conference in his home with Assistant Secretary Huntington Wilson.

The Secretary carried a formidable array of papers when he entered his carriage to drive to the White House, and Counselor Hoyt also carried a bulging portfolio.

The only other event of importance in connection with the Nicaraguan situation was the dispatch of orders to the transport Buffalo, on duty on the Pacific Coast, to sail at once for Panama. She was expected to start to-night from Pinchlinque Bay, Cal., after taking on adequate supplies of coal and provisions.

This is taken to mean that the Government is making ready to throw a column of United States marines into the Nicaraguan turmoil for the protection of American lives and property. While the 500 marines are scattered generally over the Canal Zone they can be concentrated quickly by means of the railroad at Panama, where there are military stores and supplies.

Any expedition against Nicaragua in which the marines figure would be undertaken on the Pacific side of the Isthmus. The Buffalo would land the men at the Port of Corinto, which is about forty miles from Managua, the capital. The authorities declare that the dispatch of the Buffalo is not to be accepted as meaning that an expedition is to be launched against the Zelayan Government, but that the vessel is ordered south in order to be in readiness should occasion suddenly arise.

The Buffalo carries six guns, is of 6,888 tons burden, and her engines develop 3,600 horse power. The vessel will be driven at top speed to Panama, where on her arrival her Commander has been instructed to report immediately to Washington.

What can be done by this Government by way of punishing President Zelaya or repressing the "disorders" incident to his retention of power rests practically with the Administration. The consent of Congress is not needed for anything short of war, and technically war could be avoided by this Government, even if it should become necessary to send a force inland to Managua and throw President Zelaya into prison. Whatever is done will be in the nature of punishment, not the collecting of debt, so that it is believed the hands of this Government are left free to do what seems expedient. If an indemnity is demanded for the lives of Groce and Cannon and is not paid, a port of Nicaragua could be seized. In that case it is certain that the port selected would be either Greytown, on the Atlantic side, or Corinto, on the Pacific, and not Bluefields, which is already out of Zelaya's control and in the hands of the insurgents.

The United States is a party to the newly declared international policy against the collection of debts by force, but as the indemnity demanded for Groce and Cannon would be strictly punitive, there would be no obligation to refrain from forcible collection. Under the guise of collecting the indemnity, any amount of damage might be done the Zelaya forces. If, for instance, the Provisional Government should be recognized, this country could even go to the extent of aiding by the use of soldiers in the final overthrow of Zelaya without declaring war against him. Having recognized Estrada, as far as this country is concerned Zelaya would be a mere outlaw, capable through his power of doing damage to American interests.

The declaration of this country's intention to permit the insurgents to continue their blockade of Greytown is equivalent to a recognition of insurgency and entitles them and their American volunteers to the protection of the rules of war. It is a question whether their further recognition as belligerents would help them. That recognition would impose upon this Government the scrupulous observance of neutrality. The two opposing parties would be recognized as practically equal, and this Government could no longer deny knowledge of the infringement of neutrality laws by American citizens in favor of either side.

In view of that fact, it is possible that until we are ready to recognize the provisional Government as the Government de facto no step in that direction will be taken.

MORE MARINES FOR PANAMA.

Prairie to Take 400 Soon—Dixie May Follow.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 21.—Active preparations are being made at the Philadelphia Navy Yard for the sailing of the cruisers Dixie and Prairie. The Prairie is expected to sail for Panama on Thanksgiving Day with 400 marines. Rumors were current at the yard to-day that both vessels are scheduled for Nicaragua, but the authorities could not confirm these reports.

The Commandant, Rear Admiral Uriah B. Harris, said the present sailing orders of the Dixie are for Boston and those of the Prairie, "as far as we know, are for Colon, in Panama, but, of course, a change in the intentions of the department may be announced at any time."

Preparations are also being made to fit the battleships in the yard for their cruise, which is expected to begin about Dec. 1

CHRISTIE McDONALD SUES.

Asks a Divorce from Joseph Jefferson —Details Kept Secret.

Special to The New York Times.

BUFFALO, Nov. 21.—Justice Lambert on Friday in Supreme Court sent to Preston Albro, as referee, a divorce action of Christie McDonald against Joseph Jefferson, son of the famous actor. Charles Signor of New York is reported as counsel for Miss McDonald.

Referee Albro will take evidence in New York. That is all the information that is given here on the subject.

WOMEN STOP FOOTBALL GAME

Players' Mothers in Montclair Said They Wanted No Broken-Necked Sons.

Throngs of girls and boys, many of them with their parents, flocked about the gridiron of the Montclair (N. J.) Military Academy on Saturday afternoon for the academy's most important football game was scheduled for 2:30, and from their dressing room the academy players peered anxiously now and then for a glimpse of the Montclair High School team, their bitterest rivals and a team to be feared by any scholastic organization.

From the field arose the cheer of the academy, with now and then the snappy yell of the High School. Enthusiasm and excitement were at a high pitch, and flags and banners waved everywhere. It approached 2:30, and suddenly there was a cry of "Here they come!" as the academy team trotted on the field in a compact body and began running through formations.

It was time for the High School team to appear, and its partisans were ready to give it enthusiastic greeting, when a lone man walked on the field. The academy team stood in its tracks while the man motioned to the crowd for silence. Then, in a voice which could just be heard, he announced:

"You can go back to your homes. There'll be no game to-day."

In the ensuing excitement it finally developed that the mother of nearly every one of the High School's team had visited Principal H. W. Dutsch and informed him that if he permitted the game to be played and their sons were injured, they should hold him personally responsible.

"We'll have no broken necks or dislocated joints in Montclair," declared the mothers, and Principal Dutsch bowed before them. That is why the High School team failed to play its regular annual game with the academy.

LORDS VOTE SOON ON BUDGET.

Crisis in Britain's Great Political Fight Expected This Week.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—The coming week will see the culmination of the fierce warfare which has been waged over the budget. The House of Lords is expected to vote on Lord Lansdowne's resolution, calling for the rejection of the budget, on Thursday. Before then most of the big guns in the Upper House will be heard on the question. Lord Rosebery's effort for the Conservatives and that of the Earl of Halsbury for the Liberals are awaited with the most interest.

Probably the largest number of Lords will be mustered for the vote since the rejection of Home Rule. About 450, many of whom are practically strangers to Parliament, are likely to be assembled, and not more than one-quarter of these will support the budget. Most of the politicians predict that when the question goes before the people at the general elections in January it will be impossible to wipe out the great Liberal majority and that the Liberal Government will be returned, but with a comparatively small majority. The betting at Lloyds is 3 to 1 in favor of the Liberals.

The Liberal leaders declare that the issue is whether the hereditary chamber shall rule the country. The Conservatives argue that the House of Commons has no mandate from the people to introduce new forms of taxation and that the House of Lords is fulfilling its function as a check on the Commons by forcing resort to a referendum. Conservative gains will be acclaimed as victories for the principle of a protective tariff.

The uncertainty of the country's financial policy is paralyzing the Stock Exchange, and the possibility that the Government will have to raise a large loan to meet current expenses makes the money market too uncertain for extensive private enterprises.

LIVED WITH HOLE IN HIS HEAD.

Baby's Skull Was Fractured by Hitting a Nail.

When seven-months-old Alfredo Daminani died yesterday Mrs. Daminani of 585 Morris Avenue, the Bronx, who had had a physician for the infant for three days, supposed the baby had died of septic meningitis. Coroner Schwannecke and his physician, Dr. Riegelman, investigated, however, and the physician declared that the child had died of a fractured skull.

Dr. Riegelman found a hole in the right side of the baby's head into which he was able to slip a match for a considerable part of its length. Then Mrs. Daminani recalled that the infant was on the floor five days ago and ten-year-old Marie was playing with him when a stick with a nail in the end of it with which the little girl was playing struck the baby's head.

Mrs. Daminani washed the wound and thought no more of it until two days later, when a sore developed. Then she called in a physician. Dr. Riegelman thought it remarkable that the child had lived as long as it had with the hole in its head.

PLAYED A JOKE ON SCHLEY.

Now Pittsburg Jokers Are Explaining Why They Drank with Chorus.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Penn., Nov. 21.—Admiral Schley and United States Senator George T. Oliver were last night the victims of practical jokers on the stage of the Gayety Theatre. But the joke was a sort of boomerang on the instigators for many of them are to-day trying to explain at home how it happened that they, too were of the party that sipped wine from a loving cup with chorus girls while an audience of 2,000 sang "How Dry I Am."

Admiral Schley was the guest of Syria Temple of the Mystic Shrine all yesterday and last evening when the Gayety Theatre had been bought out by the Shrine for a "stag night." Near the end of the show a loving cup made of armor plate was presented to the Admiral. Senator Oliver made the presentation to the Admiral in the course of the stage. As he finished there rushed from the wings a bevy of chorus girls in costume.

Two of the girls had bottles of champagne, which they emptied into the loving cup. Then they stood on either side of the embarrassed Admiral and made signs for him to drink. He finally raised the cup to his lips while the audience broke into "How Dry I Am." He then passed the cup to Senator Oliver, who had seemed paralyzed. The Senator took his sip, and then gallantly passed the cup to the chorus girls. They in turn passed it to the score of Shriners who had come on the stage.

NORDICA TO JUDGE SINGERS.

Competition to be Held for Boston Scholarships She Endowed.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Nov. 21.—More than 200 of Boston's young musicians will be called within ten days to sing before the Directors of the Boston School of Opera in competition for the scholarships recently endowed in the school by Mme. Lillian Nordica.

Mme. Nordica herself will be one of the judges.

DR. COOK'S REPORT GOES THIS WEEK

50,000-Word Document to be Shipped in a Liner's Strong Box on Thursday.

SPECIAL GUARD FOR IT

Four Strong Men to Take It Aboard the Steamer Which Takes It to Copenhagen.

Under a strong guard, the voluminous report prepared by Dr. Frederick A. Cook for the University of Copenhagen, setting forth in detail the explorer's claim to having reached the north pole, will be taken on board of the Scandinavian-American liner United States on Thanksgiving Day and started on its way to Copenhagen.

Dr. Cook is taking no chances of his report miscarrying in any way. He has arranged for it to be placed under lock and key in the strong box of the steamer, where, in the Captain's room, it will repose until a committee from the University of Copenhagen boards the vessel and offers proper credentials to show that they can be trusted with the document.

No one on board the United States will have a key to the ship's strong box except the Captain, and he will be held responsible for the safe delivery of the report. But even this precaution has been supplemented by Dr. Cook. The explorer's secretary, Walter Lonsdale, who accompanied Dr. Cook here from Copenhagen, has taken passage on the United States, to make sure that the report shall be well safeguarded.

Mr. Lonsdale will not come back to America, it is said, but will take up his duties as social secretary at the American Legation in Copenhagen, which position he relinquished temporarily to come here with Dr. Cook.

It was reported yesterday that four strong men have been selected by Dr. Cook to accompany his report to the steamer. They will remain until they see the document safely under lock and key. Dr. Cook will probably go with them on board the vessel and give the Captain his final instructions.

The voluminous report has just been completed, and it was learned yesterday that it consists of 50,000 words. It is a general analysis of the explorers' data, entered in his notebooks while in the arctic regions. Each point which Dr. Cook has emphasized during his lectures in this country has been taken up separately and elaborated on at great length, it is understood. There are also comments on some of the more important of the entries in his original notebooks.

Dr. Cook has worked on his report ever since he got back from Hamilton, Mont., several weeks ago. Every day and sometimes far into the night he dictated to a stenographer at a hotel in the northern part of the city.

The strain, it is said, has told perceptibly on the explorer. The experience with Richard Barrill at Hamilton, when the latter got up in meeting and faced Dr. Cook with his denial that he had accompanied the explorer to the top of Mount McKinley, added materially to the strain on the explorer's nerves, his friends say.

After the report is safely on its way to Copenhagen, Dr. Cook and his wife will go to some quiet place in the country, there to remain until the University of Copenhagen makes known its verdict on the proofs. Dr. Cook expects his report to reach Copenhagen on Dec. 7 and a verdict by the University sometime between Dec. 25 and Jan. 1.

The explorer has told his friends that he will lecture no more until he learns of the decision by the university professors. Instead, he will remain in retirement in the country, resting and preparing for the campaign of lecturing in case his claim to having reached the pole is indorsed.

Dr. Cook has not said what he will do in the event of an adverse verdict, his friends say. His original data, compiled in fragmentary form in the Far North, will also be locked in the Captain's strong box on the United States, for it, too, will be turned over to the committee from the University of Copenhagen. Few outside of Dr. Cook's most intimate friends have seen these original notes and records of observations which he says he took on his way to the pole and at the pole. The package containing the report and the accompanying data will be under seal.

According to the arrangements made by Dr. Cook, his report will be passed on by the University of Copenhagen to other universities and scientific societies of Europe when the University of Copenhagen completes its investigation and renders its report. Dr. Cook has not announced the place of retirement he has chosen. His friends say it will likely be in the mountains, within a few hours from New York.

DRIVER'S DOUBLE TROUBLE.

Breaks His Arm, and Is Arrested for Taking a Car Without Permission.

George Flauss, chauffeur for Dr. W. L. Vroom of Ridgewood, N. J., was a prisoner yesterday in the Hackensack jail. He has a broken arm and is held under two separate charges.

On Saturday night Flauss drove Dr. W. C. Craig to his home from the Vroom residence in the Craig car. Afterward as the chauffeur was driving toward Paterson in the car it struck another. Flauss was thrown out and injured, but he returned to Ridgewood and took Dr. Vroom's automobile out of the garage and went to the scene of the wreck.

Dr. Vroom sent out a burglar alarm, and not knowing who had taken his car, borrowed a neighbor's automobile and started toward Paterson.

Flauss was found trying to repair the damaged car with his one good arm, and was placed under arrest on two charges: Driving without a license, and taking a car out of a garage without the owner's permission.

Dr. Vroom attended his chauffeur's arm before the police took him to the county jail.

RUN DOWN BY JEFFRIES' AUTO.

Woman Badly Hurt by Car in Which Pugilist Was Riding.

Special to The New York Times.

AKRON, Ohio, Nov. 21.—While riding with Fred Work, an automobile driver, James Jeffries, his manager, Sam Berger, and a party of friends ran down Mrs. Lithia Rotzel early this morning. The big racing car struck the woman while going at a rapid rate, and hurled her to the pavement. She was carried to a nearby home, where it was found that she was severely injured. The wheels apparently passed over her ankles, and her back was injured. Two doctors now have her in charge.

Jeffries was hurried away from the scene of the accident as rapidly as possible to avoid notoriety, his managers said. Officers are investigating the case, but it is not likely that an arrest will follow.

PROSPERITY IN PITTSBURG.

Theatres and Stores Record Heaviest Business in Five Years.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 21.—That Pittsburg has returned to her old-time prosperity is attested by the theatres and stores of Pittsburg, which yesterday had the best day's business in two years.

The theatres report that they have not had such a holiday business in five years as that of yesterday and last evening. One theatre took in more than $4,500, while others took in $3,800 each. Some of the large stores were practically compelled to close because of run-down stocks before the usual time.

The Standard Steel Car Company has raised the wages of its 3,200 employes 10 per cent.

DYING, TRIED TO WRITE.

Hunter Who Shot Himself Left an Uncompleted Note.

FRANKLIN, Pa., Nov. 21.—"Accidental, slipped and ——" was the contents of a note found to-night in a dense thicket beside the body of I. B. Borland, aged 50 years, former County Treasurer and a prominent politician who had been missing from home since Friday. A wound in the left leg caused Borland to bleed to death, according to the Coroner. The accident occurred on a hunting trip.

It was evident that Borland began to write the note, but fell exhausted before he could finish it.

THINKS BOSTON MAY SINK.

Expert Says Earthquake Might Cause Underlying Quicksands to Flow Away.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 21.—Prof. W. O. Crosby of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Prof. George H. Barton of the Museum of Natural History, and Walter C. Belcher, earthquake expert of Holbrook, declared to-day that treacherous sands and clays underlie Boston. Mr. Belcher, discussing the effects of even a slight earthquake shock, said:

"With such quicksands as there are beneath Boston, and with the great weight of earth, clay, gravel, and big buildings above pressing down on it, the danger is that this action would start a gradual flow of the quicksands toward the sea and up into the ocean bed, thus causing a subsidence of the land on which the city stands."

FIRST BARGE CANAL BOATS.

Here with a Big Cargo—Ready for the New State Waterway.

The first boats built especially for the 1,000 ton barge canal arrived in port yesterday afternoon and tied up at Pier 4 East River. They consist of a steam power boat and five barges and are owned by the New York, Buffalo & Great Lakes Transportation Company. They brought down on their first trip a cargo of 83,000 bushels of oats, and are a third larger than those now in use. They were built at Tonowanda.

At present there are only 2,000 canal boats of all sizes in the State, and of these only 400 are of the first class. Even these are rapidly being worn out. It is reckoned that about 300 of them have to be broken up each year and for some time the annual building has run between fifteen and forty boats.

CORTEZ BURIED IN MEXICO?

Unpublished Records Said to Show the Historians Are Wrong.

Special to The New York Times.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 21.—Charles C. Gordon, a young student from Cincinnati, says he has found unpublished records of the death in Mexico of Hernando Cortez and an attest to his will, written by his very close friends, which details the manner of his death, and says it occurred in Mexico. Gordon says Cortez returned to this country from Spain in 1550 and died shortly after, while the histories say he died in Seville.

Mr. Gordon says the bones of Cortez are interred at the Temple of Jesus in Mexico City, and he will place the matter before President Diaz and seek to have them disinterred and buried in state. Mexican historians have been over his proofs with Mr. Gordon, and they say that they are valid.

PASTOR CAN'T RESIGN.

Congregation Declines to Let Him Withdraw on the Strength of Rumors.

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 21.—The congregation of the Hamilton Square Baptist Church, by a vote of 84 to 55, this evening refused to accept the resignation of the pastor, the Rev. John W. Lissenden, who tendered it because of the circulation of stories regarding him, involving some of the women members of the congregation.

Mr. Lissenden was not present at the meeting which thus decided in his favor, but he sent word that, no matter what the outcome of the meeting, he would fight to ascertain who his traducers were, and would bring them into court. Mr. Lissenden was at one time an actor, and was also employed in the Government Secret Service.

POISON SENT TO OFFICERS.

Recently Promoted Captains in Austrian Army Get Pills by Mail.

VIENNA, Nov. 21.—An extraordinary attempt at wholesale poisoning among military officers here has caused a sensation. A large number of officers, just promoted to be Captains in the General Staff, received through the mail sample boxes of pills. These were accompanied by a circular recommending them for nervous debility. One of the officers, Capt. Mader, took some of the pills and died almost immediately. An autopsy revealed the presence of cyanide of potassium, and showed that death had been caused by this poison.

A further investigation showed that all the pills contained cyanide of potassium in large quantities and also that many of the First Lieutenants attached the staff, but not promoted, had not received pills. The circulars were signed "Charles Francis," and bore a false address.

All attempts to unravel the mystery have failed, and it is suggested that the poison may have been sent by some disappointed officer or that the poisoning is an Anarchist outrage.

REPORTS NOURMAHAL SAFE IN PORTO RICO

Astor Yacht Was in San Juan Harbor on Nov. 15, According to Liner Caracas.

NEWS COMES FROM CURACOA

Accepted by Col. Astor's Friends as Authentic and Their Anxiety Is Greatly Relieved.

WILLEMSTAD, Curacao, Nov. 21.—John Jacob Astor's steam yacht Nourmahal was safe in the harbor of San Juan, Porto Rico, on Nov. 15, according to the Red D liner Caracas here to-day. The Caracas reports that the Nourmahal arrived at San Juan on Nov. 14, and that she was still there on the 15th, safely anchored inside the harbor.

TAMPA, Fla., Nov. 22.—At 12:30 this morning wireless communication with Guantanamo, Cuba, was established here, and a partial confirmation of the safety of the Nourmahal at San Juan was obtained. The wireless station at that point reported having heard a message early to-day to the effect that the Nourmahal was safe in port. Efforts to raise San Juan have been unsuccessful.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—A wireless message reached the United States Revenue Cutter Service late to-day stating that John Jacob Astor's yacht, the Nourmahal, had been discovered riding in safety inside the harbor of San Juan, Porto Rico. Capt. Worth G. Roos, in command of the service, was so satisfied with its genuineness that he sent a wireless dispatch to the revenue cutter Yamacraw, which was engaged in searching in West Indian waters for the missing yacht, to return at once. The Yamacraw, accordingly, is now on her way back to Charleston, S. C.

On receipt of this Washington dispatch from The Associated Press THE TIMES asked its Washington Bureau to obtain the text of the Revenue Cutter Service wireless message confirming The Associated Press cable report from Willemstadt that the Nourmahal was safe in San Juan Harbor on Nov. 15.

The reply was that the Revenue Cutter Service had had no reply to its wireless message for information regarding Col. Astor and the Nourmahal. The only knowledge it had of the reported safety at San Juan of the yacht and its passengers came through The Associated Press report from New York, which according to Capt. Ross of the Revenue Cutter Service, was sent by wireless from a ship which had been in San Juan Harbor. The Caracas has a wireless outfit.

This seems to leave the news of the yacht's safety dependent entirely upon the cabled report from Willemstadt, which, however, in view of confirmation of the fact that the steamer Caracas was in San Juan harbor herself on that date and could hardly mistake any other craft in those waters for the Nourmahal, was regarded as strong evidence of the yacht's safety.

Astor's Friends Here Believe It.

The dispatch from Willemstad telling how the liner Caracas saw the Nourmahal in San Juan harbor on Nov. 15 was the first neys regarding the yacht received in this city yesterday, and it was very welcome to the friends and relatives of Col. John Jacob Astor and the others aboard her. The dispatch arrived in the morning, and an hour had scarcely elapsed after the receipt of the Associated Press dispatch when most of those in this city most vitally interested in the Nourmahal's fate were in possession of the news.

William A. Dobbyn, private secretary of Col. Astor, was told over the telephone by a TIMES reporter. A sigh of relief was heard over the telephone. Mr. Dobbyn had sat up most of Saturday night, hoping for news from the West Indies. In his anxiety for further details he got in touch with the officials of the Red D Line, from whom he learned that the Caracas, which sailed from here on Nov. 6, should have reached San Juan on Nov. 11 and left there on the following day. Capt. Ballard, Maritime Superintendent of the Red D Line, received word from the West Indies three days ago, however, that the Caracas had been detained at San Juan till Nov. 15.

News Sent to Mrs. Astor.

Mr. Dobbyn communicated with Douglas Robinson, Nicholas Biddle, and James R. Roosevelt, the three Trustees of the Astor estate. Mr. Biddle promptly obtained a copy of the dispatch and forwarded it by cable and wireless to Mrs. Alva Willing Astor on the Lusitania. Mrs. Astor, who sailed last Wednesday, three days after obtaining her divorce decree, has been kept in touch with the situation ever since the first news came that the Nourmahal was missing.

Mr. Biddle was assured that if the message did not reach her before the Lusitania arrived at Queenstown it would be given to Mrs. Astor there.

"It is certainly good news," said Mr. Dobbyn, "and it is in keeping with what I have tried hard to feel all along—that when the lines of communication were opened Col. Astor and his yacht would be heard from, and that it would be found that they were safe. It has, however, been a very trying period of suspense."

Mr. Dobbyn said he thought a report from Col. Astor himself would soon be forthcoming, and that it would be found that the Nourmahal had weathered the hurricane well. Col. Astor was a careful yachtsman, who knew when to get into port, and he would have taken no risk of endangering the lives of his son and his guests. Mr. Dobbyn added that when Col. Astor sailed from here it was with the particular purpose of avoiding "meddlesome persons," and that the storm and interrupted cable service seemed to have aided him materially in this.

It is not known yet whether Col. Astor has received the cable dispatch advising him that Mrs. Astor has obtained her divorce decree. It is unlikely that this has reached him, for late last night cable service with Porto Rico had not been resumed.

The Caracas report was posted early yesterday afternoon in the New York Yacht, Metropolitan, Union, and other clubs of which Col. Astor is a member, and in all of these was read with interest. There was a jubilation in the New York Yacht Club, where Col. Astor has many warm friends.

Brooklyn Girl Made Glad.

There were jubilations in other quarters, notably in the home of William

Basset, at 513 West 134th Street. Mr. Basset's son Charles is an electrician on the Nourmahal, and his fiancee Miss Esther Middlemas, had begun to abandon hope that she would ever see Charles again. Miss Middlemas and Mrs. Basset were in tears together when a TIMES reporter reached the house with the news that everybody seemed to be safe.

"You can bet one thing," said Miss Middlemas, when smiles had replaced the tears, "when Charles gets back here we are going to be married right away, and I won't let him go away from me on any voyage again."

"I am going to give the lad a ball when he gets back," said Mr. Basset. "You know I was really responsible for Charlie's going on the Nourmahal at all. I sent him off at an hour's notice. He didn't even have time to bid his mother and his girl good-bye. But just wait till he gets back!"

Arthur Bourne, who went on the Nourmahal as an electrician, but quit the vessel at Cienfuegos, Cuba, on Oct. 28, and returned home to 5,513 Third Avenue, Brooklyn, was telling yesterday of several mishaps in the yacht's engine room before he left her. The scuppers, according to Bourne, were so small that she had difficulty in righting herself under a heavy sea, and when the hatches were battened down the heat from the boilers caused several small fires in the engine room. All this, however, was before news of the yacht's safety was received and when doleful forebodings were the order of the day.

ARM BROKEN BY AUTO CRANK.

Harry Stillgebauer Was Trying to Start Engine When It Backfired.

Harry Stillgebauer, son of the restaurant proprietor of Ninety-seventh Street and Broadway, was cranking the automobile of Edward A. Lippman of 668 Riverside Drive yesterday afternoon at Eastern Boulevard and Pelham Parkway, when the engine backfired and the starting crank, spinning around, struck his right arm and broke it. Mr. Lippman placed young Stillgebauer in the car, and, climbing into the driver's seat, started the car at full speed for Fordham Hospital.

At Southern Boulevard Bicycle Policemen Remington and Haggerty overtook the flying car and ordered Lippman to stop. When he explained the urgency of the case, however, the policemen let him go.

At Fordham Hospital Dr. Moorman dressed Stillgebauer's arm, and Lippman drove him home.

CHAUFFEUR STOPS A RUNAWAY

Mail Wagon Horse Tore Through Obstacles in a Three-Mile Dash.

A horse attached to a light wagon and belonging to Earl Leaycraft, a rural free delivery letter carrier, ran from the Brookdale Post Office, last night, in the direction of Bloomfield for three miles before he was caught.

Herman Einstein, a farmhand, who attempted to stop the runaway, was hit by a wheel of the wagon and bowled over. Daniel Van der Hoef next attempted to stop the runaway, but the horse veered to the sidewalk, ripping up about fifteen feet of Van der Hoof's picket fence.

In a collision with a farm wagon the runaway lost the hind wheel of the mail wagon, and was running along on three wheels when Edward Doland, chauffeur of an automobile, ran his machine alongside. He caught the horse by the bridle and stopped him.

Civic Federation Meets To-day.

After a special meeting of the officers of the National Civic Federation, held yesterday in the Metropolitan Life Building to arrage for the annual meeting beginning at the Astor to-day, it was announced that D. Joseph Holmes of the United States Geological Survey will be one of the speakers. He will take up the subject of prevention of mining accidents. He has just returned from the scene of the fatal mining disaster at Cherry, Ill., where he has been making an investigation.

Winchell Won't Resign.

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—"I have not resigned the Presidency of the Rock Island Railroad, and have no present purpose of doing so," said B. L. Winchell upon his return from New York to-day. "Beyond this you will have to excuse me from discussing the affairs of the company."

ALL ABOARD SAVED ON BURNED ST. CROIX

105 Men, Women, and Children Passengers and Crew of 78 Landed in Boats.

SPENT NIGHT AT RANCH

Steward Hurt in Rescuing Baby Which Fell Into Sea When First Boat Was Launched.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 21.—Saved from death by fire or drowning, all the passengers, 105 men, women, and children, and the crew, seventy-eight strong, of the steamship St. Croix of the Schubach-Hamilton Line, camped last night in the house and barns, on Malibu Ranch, twenty-five miles north of Santa Monica, and a short distance from Point Duma, where the vessel burned to the water's edge late yesterday afternoon. Late last night the purser and chief engineer of the boat reported at Santa Monica with the news that no lives had been lost, and that no one had been seriously injured. The St. Croix, however, is a total loss, and the passengers lost all their belongings.

The fire started in the engine room of the vessel at noon while the passengers and officers were at dinner. No notice was given to the passengers at first, as it was believed that the flames could be checked. Seven streams of water turned upon the blaze, however, failed of effect, and it was seen that the ship was doomed.

As soon as it was certain the fire could not be quenched Capt. Warner sent the vessel in toward shore. Lifeboats and rafts were then lowered and manned, and women and children sent away first to the land, then about three miles distant.

The men and boys got off next and then the officers and crew, leaving the flaming ship to its fate.

The sea was calm and though there was a heavy fog this morning all boats got to shore safely. Many of the women were hatless and without wraps. They were landed in a cove, about six miles South of Point Duma.

The sternest discipline and some gallant conduct on the part of the officers were, however, required to prevent a panic and save all lives.

"Women and children first," had been the stern command, when the largest lifeboat on the St. Croix was swung into position. The women were lifted into the seats. Then some one hurried, and the boat was swung out too quickly. A block broke, and the women were thrown into the water. One carried a little baby, and the child was whirled overboard.

The steward of the ship jumped in and saved the baby. He was crushed against the side as he brought the child to the other life boat, which had been lowered successfully. His arm was broken, and he was lifted into the boat with difficulty. The women meantime had been pulled out of the water.

With a drawn pistol Capt. Warner took his place opposite each boat and allowed only the women and children to take their places. When they all were cared for the men got their chance. Capt. Warner was the last to leave his ship. Nine boat loads pulled away from the vessel a few minutes before 2 o'clock.

Nearly exhausted and clad in borrowed clothes, the St. Croix's passengers and crew arrived here to-day. All were brought from Santa Monica by trolley car after the Police Department and residents of that city had furnished food that broke a fast which for some had stretched through thirty-six hours. They had walked, ridden, and made their way to Santa Monica as best they could.

First Officer N. F. Hill, immediately after the landing at Point Duma, had made his way overland to Malibu ranch, and there secured an automobile, which brought him to Santa Monica at 11 o'clock last night with the first authentic information of the landing, though the fact that the St. Croix was afire had been reported by the steamship City of Topeka, which passed close to her, and, being unable to discover any signs of life aboard, proceeded on her course to Redondo with the news.

The St. Croix left San Pedro at 10 o'clock yesterday morning bound for San Francisco direct. She carried no freight, and her passenger list was an exceedingly light one. She was proceeding in good time when the fire was discovered.

SEEK POLICEMAN AS ROBBER.

General Alarm Sent Out for a Patrolman on a Hold-up Charge.

A general alarm has been sent out for a policeman, whose identity the police at Headquarters and at the West 125th Street Station assert they do not know. He is known to be a patrolman.

The man is wanted on a charge of robbery preferred by a citizen whose name is concealed by the police but who, it was learned through other channels last night, was held up at the point of a pistol early yesterday morning, while drinking with two women in the rear of a saloon in the vicinity of Eighth Avenue and 122d Street, and compelled to hand over $10 to the policeman who is now being sought.

All day yesterday and most of last night an investigation was carried on in the West 125th Street Station. Inspector Titus and Acting Capt. McDermott had fully a dozen policemen before them in the station house, and questioned all closely. Later James Doyle, proprietor of a cafe at 122d Street and Eighth Avenue, visited the station in company with a second man. They were closeted with Titus and McDermott for some time. Doyle denied that he knew anything about a robbery, but was heard to exclaim:

"It happened at 5 o'clock, and two blocks away."

Capt. McDermott admitted when he was questioned last night that a robbery had occurred, and that a policeman was being sought.

It was learned that when the 8 o'clock platoon went on duty from the 125th Street Station last night a short, stocky, well-dressed young man was in the station house and scrutinized each policeman carefully as they stood in front of the Lieutenant's desk receiving instructions. After these men had left the young man remained behind and looked over each one of the policemen coming off post.

From the fact that he left the station house without further action it is presumed that if he were the victim of the hold-up as the policemen themselves suspected, his assailant is not a member of the West 125th Street Precinct, but must be some policeman from another section of the town who was off duty. It is said that the man wore no belt or stick.

WATER FAMINE IN JERSEY.

Streams Drying Up for Lack of Rain—Many Industries Affected.

Special to The New York Times.

SUSSEX, N. J., Nov. 21.—Drought conditions throughout the county are alarming. Unless copious rains come soon not only will many industries dependent upon water for power be forced to suspend, but even water for domestic purposes will be at a premium. Streams never known to have dried up before have long ago dwindled away to nothing, and their exposed beds are now common sights throughout the open country.

Wells that in trying times hitherto have been drawn upon to serve neighbors for miles around cannot now supply the demands of single households or farms, and those who live away from municipal water systems are forced to cart water from the ponds and lakes that have thus far withstood the long dry spell. Even these are now beginning to be looked upon as only precarious sources of supply.

Only one electric-light company among all those in the county which have depended on water power has thus far held out from resorting to steam. That is the Branchville Electric Light Company, run by water drawn from Culver Lake.

CHURCHES LOSE BY POPULATION CHANGES

Harlem Ministers Report There Will Be Nothing for Them to Do If Present Conditions Continue.

FAMILIES MOVE TO COUNTRY

Protestant Population Falls Off 16 Per Cent. in Five Years—Many Who Do Not Go to Church.

The Protestant churches of Harlem, and to some extent the Catholic churches, have been so affected by changes in population which took place this Fall that several conferences of ministers and members of official bodies have been held to consider the situation. Yesterday at several of the Protestant places of worship reports were made from these conferences. Several ministers declared that unless changes ceased there would be nothing for them to do but to sell out and leave. These ministers were at the head of some of the largest and best-known churches of Harlem.

"Six of our best families removed to the Bronx last week," said the Rev. Dr. Harry P. Nichols of the Church of the Holy Trinity, "and other members have gone to New Jersey and to Long Island. Still others are planning to depart. We cannot continue under such conditions. Yet we are not affected as badly as are some others."

The Rev. Dr. J. L. Gaughey of the Harlem Presbyterian Church said he had conferred about conditions, but that his church had grown in membership.

"The removal," said he, "from 125th Street to the Mount Morris Park frontage was a good one, but I appreciate what is before us. The future is uncertain, I admit."

The Rev. Dr. Wilton Merle Smith, President of the Presbyterian Church Extension Committee, which recently received a large Kennedy bequest, said yesterday that his committee had been consulted by some of the Harlem churches. He said he had heard that one Harlem church recently lost five of its officers by removal, but he declined to state which church it was.

The Rev. Dr. George R. Van de Water, rector of St. Andrew's Church, was pessimistic yesterday over the future, both because of changes in population and because the Protestants who remained do not go to public worship as they once did. In his sermon yesterday morning, and also in a parish paper just issued, he stated that the percentage of Protestant population in Harlem had decreased 16 per cent. in five years. If it goes on, he declared, there was no telling what may become of Protestant churches in Harlem.

"It is no ordinary situation," said he. "We are making the fight of our lives quite as much is if we were on the lower east side.

"But there is in Harlem," he went on, "a situation among Episcopalians that is even worse than the changes in population. Fully 30 per cent. of Episcopal families in Harlem acknowledge that they do not attend church and have no church home. Apart from the impending disaster because of changes, which disaster may not come, although it appears to be imminent, there are enough people left. Our trouble is a death-destroying indifference, a listless lethargy, a wicked withdrawal from personal participation in lifting the load and bearing the burden. Where are 1,500 bona-fide communicants of St. Andrew's parish, not one of whom would we dare erase from our books? What has become of their consciences about worship? It is a difficult thing to stir a congregation when one cannot get at it. Several old families have left us, and our pew rentals are greatly reduced. Unless new ones take their places we will be in serious straits."

As one means of turning the tide St. Andrew's announced yesterday a change in the hour of its Sunday school from afternoon to morning. The Rev. Dr. William Walter Smith, Secretary of the Sunday School Commission, took charge of the school yesterday morning as Superintendent, and promised in his inaugural address to make the school a model one. With a communicant list exceeding 2,000, St. Andrew's Sunday school has fewer than 500 members, a fact which the rector referred to in introducing the new Superintendent yesterday morning.

RECTOR RENOUNCES HIS FAITH

Newark Presbyterian Clergyman Quits That Creed for the Episcopal Church.

The Rev. Dr. Henry K. Denlinger announced to his congregation, the High Street Presbyterian of Newark, yesterday morning his retirement as pastor of that church, his severance of all connection with the Presbyterian Church, his application to be received into the Protestant Episcopal Church by Bishop Greer of New York, and his intention to take up work at the Episcopal Church of the Holy Apostles, Ninth Avenue and Twenty-eighth Street, New York.

To most of the congregation the announcement was a complete surprise, but in other quarters their pastor's leanings toward the Episcopal Church had been known for some time.

It was stated at the Church of the Holy Apostles in this city yesterday by the rector, the Rev. Appleton Grannis, that the plans for the reception of the Rev. Dr. Denlinger had been perfected, and that he would be licensed to make addresses by Bishop Greer, so that he will in effect become an assistant at the Ninth Avenue church at once.

Under the law of the Episcopal Church he is required to serve one year as a postulant—in effect a layman—before being ordained Deacon, but by courtesy, when entering from another body, six months is the usual time required. After he is ordained in the Episcopal Church it is the intention of Dr. Denlinger to apply for a rectorship.

High Street Presbyterian Church, Newark, has a fine property, and is one of the large Presbyterian churches of that city. Its income last year was $20,000 and its membership is more than five hundred. The Rev. Dr. Denlinger is a graduate of Princeton University and Seminary, and has his Doctor's degree from the same institution.

CITY PAGAN, PREACHER SAYS.

Too Many People Here Are Without a Spiritual Ideal.

The Rev. Dr. J. Lewis Hartsock preached in the Union M. E. Church, Forty-eighth Street, west of Broadway, last evening, on "Is New York Pagan or Christian?" He said that a large part of the community was fast becoming pagan.

"I do not mean this in the sense of the benighted, but in the recrudesence of the spirit which obtained in Greece and Rome in their heydey of pleasure and power," said Dr. Hartsock.

"The tone of the stage and popular fiction, the disdain of the voice of conscience, the spirit of Wall Street, and the temper of Broadway is essentially pagan—Christian it is not.

Paganism stands for life without a spiritual ideal. A pagan is one who has settled down to get the most out of the present, engrossed wholly in the life that now is. Our city is full of such people; easy money, easy conscience, and their spiritual aspirations are forgotten, starved, buried. The modern pagan grows tired of his wife, and declares she is not an affinity. He wants an automobile and mortgages his home.

"The second sign is the substitution of the laws of the jungle for the law of brotherhood. The Ice Trust sending, (as recently has been charged,) their boats up the Hudson at the time of the ice harvest to destroy the crop of the independent company—this is the kind of spirit which Nero and the Borgias exercised in pagan Rome. The brutal greed which, in the form of great trusts, will sacrifice the health, morality, and even the life itself of its toilers, because to remedy it would cut into profits, is one with that which in other days sent young men and maidens into the arena to be butchered to make a Roman holiday."

In conclusion Dr. Hartsock said: "I am glad the Purity Statue is coming down. It is really an encouraging fact that even Tammany was becoming ashamed of the sham. I was about to appeal to the Street Cleaning Department to turn the hose on her. In her place I should like to put up a statue in Times Square, of marble instead of plastered mud. I'd give her a divine meaning instead of a political apology."

RECTOR FOR SUNDAY PLAYS.

The Rev. Percy Grant Advocates Such Performances with a Censor.

In his sermon last night at the Church of the Ascension, Fifth Avenue and Tenth Street, the Rev. Percy Stickney Grant discussed religion and the drama and declared that he was looking forward to the time when clean, elevating plays would be permitted on the stage on Sunday. At the same time, he pointed out that stage morality is at a level as high as can be found in any profession or trade where women are employed.

"I look forward to a day," said he, "when we shall be permitted to see elevating days on Sunday, which shall be produced under the supervision of a censor, whose duty it will be to devote himself to this class of performances only. Thus the problem of passing the one day of leisure afforded us in the week can be solved."

COUNT VAY DE VAYA ARRIVES.

Catholic Prelate and Hungarian Count Was Roosevelt's Guest on Last Visit.

The Right Rev. Count Vay de Vaya, a Hungarian nobleman and prelate of the Roman Catholic Church, arrived here yesterday on the Cunard liner Pannonia. He comes to spend some weeks visiting friends and looking into conditions affecting his countrymen.

The Count has been in this country before, and he has many friends here. On his first visit he came on a Hungarian emigrant vessel, where he preached on board each day and visited freely among the steerage passengers.

The Count is a world traveler. In 1905 he was for a time the guest of the then President Roosevelt.

RUNAWAY'S GOAL A BARGE.

It Was Tied at the End of the Pier and Headed Off a Drowning.

Policeman Shevlin of the East 126th Street station saw a horse dashing up Second Avenue yesterday morning. Before he could stop the animal, which was attached to a light runabout battered from its contact with elevated pillars and unoccupied, the horse ran through the coal yards at the end of Second Avenue at 129th Street, and sprang off the pier into a half empty coal barge, which was tied to the pier. The horse fell into the coal and was unhurt, the runabout having been wrenched loose when the horse jumped.

Shevlin called Policemen McDonald and Stephens, and they got a rope, planks and tackle from the car barns at 130th Street and Third Avenue. Then the men worked for three hours before they finally managed to rig a block and falls, pass a bit of rope around the horse, and haul him to the pier.

The animal was taken to a livery stable, but the police were unable to learn who owned him. Shevlin said that from the appearance of the horse, and the battered condition of the runabout he should judge the animal had run two or three miles before it jumped into the barge.

Peary's Fraternity to Dine Him.

The Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity, of which Commander Robert Peary is a member, will give a dinner to the discoverer of the north pole in the Hotel Astor on Dec. 18. It is expected that more than 1,500 members of Delta Kappa Epsilon will attend. Peary is a member of Theta Chapter, which he joined in Bowdoin College in 1877. The new ballroom of the Astor, where the dinner is to be held, will be decorated with many trophies of Peary's trip to the North.

Especially does the latest absorption of a subsidiary company by the Steel Trust fit under the decision of yesterday. That was the taking over of the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company during the financial stress of two years ago. The matter was submitted to President Roosevelt before the merger was undertaken by the Steel Trust Directors, and it provoked a lot of discussion in Congress.

There is a long list of other mergers and trusts in similar situation. The Government is already proceeding by suit in equity for a dissolution of the Harriman merger of the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific Railroads. It is also after the Powder Trust and the Tobacco Trust in the same kind of cases. Recently the Department of Justice has been looking into the proposed absorption of the Western Union Telegraph Company by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company. The alleged Electrical Trust is also under investigation. The Beef Trust has once been enjoined, but is apparently going on in its old way unmolested and unconcerned.

The Sugar Trust is having all sorts of troubles of its own, but they grew out of frauds it has practiced in other ways than by violation of the Sherman law. It has the backing of the favorable decision it obtained long ago in a fight for its life in the Knight case, but the present decision apparently differentiates the situation of the Sugar Trust to-day from that at the time of the Knight case, and seems to bear out the opinion expressed repeatedly by lawyers in the Senate that a prosecution undertaken now on practically the lines of the Knight case would be upheld by the Supreme Court.

There is the proposed merger of the express companies, also, which is now under way. Also there is the Harvester Trust, which the Government is now after. And there are the Drug Trust and the Fertlizer Trust, and the new billion-dollar Copper Trust, and nobody knows how many little so-called "pools" like the brass pool and the wire pool and that sort of combination, with which New England teems.

Far reaching is a weak and ineffective term to apply to the result of the decision of yesterday if it is affirmed by the Supreme Court. It strikes surely at the heart of the holding company. On its face, if it is finally declared to be the law by the Supreme Court, it might put every great holding company in the country out of business. It applies as well to individuals as to corporations, and the question it raises, therefore, is whether it will be legal—after it is affirmed—for one man to own two railroads or two factories which, if owned separately, would compete with each other.

The ramifications are simply bewildering, and no man could be found to-day who would attempt to go over them. The officials of the Department of Justice were busy during most of the day reading the fullest newspaper reports of the decision they could obtain, and at almost every paragraph they found new possibilities.

One of the most conspicuous and striking results of affirmation of the decision by the Supreme Court is likely to be a perfect cloud of lawsuits against the Standard Oil Company and the individual defendants for damages under Section 7 of the Sherman law. This section provides that any person who has been injured or damaged in his business by one of the forbidden forms of trust or combination may recover threefold damages by suit in any Circuit Court where the defendant is found. It was under this section that the Danbury hat case was brought, in which a Danbury firm got a verdict for threefold damages against the Hatters' Union. That case has already been to the Supreme Court once, with the decision against the union.

Should the Standard Oil lose its appeal, there would probably be a cloud of such cases. It would not take long for them to aggregate more in the possible damages to be recovered than the famous $29,000,000 fine.

Wherever the decision has been discussed to-day the opinion has been expressed that the outlook for the Standard Oil Company is very dark, as the prospect was that the Supreme Court will affirm the action of the Circuit Court. The Department of Justice is eagerly awaiting receipt of the full opinion, and there is no question that in a few days the matter will have the close attention of the Administration.

President Taft returned from his Norfolk trip this morning, but did not go to his offices. He was much fatigued by the trip, and spent the day quietly at the White House. No expression was obtainable from there as to the way in which he had received the news from St. Paul.

The discussion of the decision has brought out many a reference to former President Roosevelt and the joy such a decision would have given him if it could have been obtained during his Administration.

The dissolution of the Standard Oil Company, if sustained by the Supreme Court, will do more than any other one thing to set the Administration forward on a career of popularity, according to the prevailing sentiment here. That such an event would immediately send to oblivion what is still remembered of the tariff struggle is a foregone conclusion, and friends of the President are already looking forward to the creation of a public sentiment as a result of the prosecution of the trust that will at least enable the Republican Party to present at the next Congressional elections an unbroken front.

Much in this direction had been hoped from the Sugar investigations, though, as that has turned into more of a cleaning out of Government employes than a prosecution of the Sugar Trust itself, some misgivings were felt. The one drawback to the present value of yesterday's victory is that the case was in reality begun and fought out under President Roosevelt. It is believed, however, that the fact will be lost sight of and that as public interest will centre on the appeal to the Supreme Court, full credit will be given to the Taft Administration.

In one direction, at least, the Administration will undoubtedly gain much strength from the successful termination of the Standard Oil appeal. That will be in pushing before Congress the President's programme for corporation control. The winning of this case before the Supreme Court is expected to guarantee not only the sincerity, but the ability, of the Administration in its efforts to put further restraints around the corporations. It will vastly weaken the arguments of those who maintain that the machinery of the Government is already too cumbersome to be effective.

WILL APPEAL IMMEDIATELY.

Mortimer F. Elliott, general counsel for the Standard Oil Company, said yesterday that the company would take an immediate appeal to the United States Supreme Court from the decision against the company handed down on Saturday at St. Paul by the United States Circuit Court.

"I have seen what purports to be the text of the decree handed down by the United States Circuit Court yesterday," he said. "The company will take an immediate appeal to the United States Supreme Court, and will cheerfully abide by the verdict of the highest court in the land, whatever it may be. Argument in this case began last April, and we are glad to have reached an opinion. I do not mean that we are pleased with the opinion itself, but that we are glad to get it, whatever its nature.

"The decree does not order a dissolution of the Standard Oil Company; that is a misunderstanding. What the decree does order, as I now understand it, is that the company shall distribute among its stockholders, of whom there are approximately 5,000, its holdings in the stock of subsidiary companies. This distribution I further understand, is ordered to be effected on a pro rata basis of apportionment. That is to say, the heaviest holders of Standard Oil stock would receive a proportional number of shares in the stock of subsidiary companies."

Mr. Elliott was asked what course the company would adopt if the verdict of the lower court should be upheld in the higher court.

"That," he said, "is something I shall be better prepared to discuss when I have seen the opinion by which the United States Circuit Court justifies its decree."

John D. Archbold, when seen at his home in Tarrytown, said:

"As much as I would like to say something about the decision, I cannot do so until I have talked the matter over with the company's lawyers. It is altogether too delicate and important a matter for me to discuss offhand. I have only as yet read the preliminary report, and I do not care to discuss it until I reach my office to-morrow."

When shown the statement made by Mr. Elliott, Mr. Archbold said:

"Of course Mr. Elliott has read the decision more carefully than I have. I will say, however, that I think the Supreme Court will do justice in the matter."

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 21.—"I simply cannot comment on the decision of the United States Circuit Court on the Government's complaint against the Standard Oil Company," said John D. Rockefeller at church to-day. "I am no longer actively connected with the management of the company and it would be improper for me to enter into a discussion of the matter."

Mr. Rockefeller added that his spirits were high, as Mrs. Rockefeller, who has been ill, is progressing toward recovery with gratifying speed.

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—Moritz Rosenthal, who represented the Standard Oil Company as special counsel throughout the recent hearings, left for New York to-day. Joseph Moses, his partner, said that Mr. Rosenthal's trip to the East was on business foreign to the Standard Oil Company's case. He added, however, that there would probably be a conference of the Standard Oil Company's counsel before Mr. Rosenthal left New York.

OIL BUILDING WORK STOPS.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 21.—More than 100 companies in Pennsylvania will be more or less affected by Saturday's decision against the Standard Oil Company. There are more than 50,000 persons within 100 miles of Pittsburg working for concerns directly affiliated with the Standard Oil Company. Work was ordered discontinued yesterday on the ten-story Standard Oil Building being erected here for the shelter of all the subsidiary companies connected with the trust in this end of the State. The day's work was finished and the men paid off. They will not resume to-morrow morning, and were told that the contractors had no idea when work would be resumed.

There is a rumor in Pittsburg of a secret meeting of oil men in New York to-morrow, and many of those identified with the oil interests are missing from Pittsburg to-night.

SIMS GOES TO WASHINGTON.

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—United States District Attorney E. W. Sims, who was one of the prosecuting attorneys in the rebate case before Judge K. M. Landis when the Standard Oil Company was fined $29,000,000 for alleged violations of the Elkins Rebate law, and his assistant, James H. Wilkerson, left to-day for Washington. It is said that their visit is in connection with the recent decision against the Standard Oil Company.

Distinguished Patrons of the PIANOLA

Among the Music-loving and Music-knowing Latin Races

WITH the Latin races, the love for music is in the blood. It is a matter of heritage through long generations.

The accompanying list of prominent patrons of the Aeolian Company in France, Italy and Spain, is one of the most remarkable exhibitions ever made by any American manufacturer.

When an article is able to dominate the home market and to extend that success throughout the civilized world, the circumstance is notable. But when that article (as in the case of the PIANOLA) relates directly to the Arts in which the Old World has led for centuries, the fact has peculiar significance.

That the PIANOLA has succeeded so brilliantly in the difficult markets of France, Italy and Spain, argues that it must possess extraordinary artistic merit.

The accompanying list of patrons is only another way of demonstrating what is the universally accepted fact—namely, that the PIANOLA is beyond doubt or question the Standard instrument of its kind.

CASTRO IS ACCUSED OF PLOTTING AGAIN

Approaching Election of President by Venezuelan Congress Causes Renewed Unrest.

GOMEZ MAY BE DEFEATED

Effort to Reorganize Liberal Party Results in Split—Many Former Castro Lieutenants Thrown Into Jail.

CARACAS, Venezuela, Nov. 21.—Former President Castro, an exile in Santander, Spain, is accused daily by the highest officials of the Venezuelan Government of attempting to foment a revolution against the Gomez regime. The continued agitation caused by the wholesale arrests of Castro partisans, by the recent split in the Liberal party when an attempt was made to reorganize it, and by the near approach of the next session of Congress which will elect a constitutional President for four years, has stirred political feeling until a spirit of unrest and uncertainty again prevails.

No better evidence that the Government is anxious that the world should believe that Castro is plotting is needed than the recent publicaton in El Universal, the semi-official organ, of the following telegram from Gen. V. Marquez Bustillos, Governor of the State of Trujillo:

> I have just learned of the criminal Castro conspiracy. The Government and people of Trujillo will know how to reach the height of their duty and declare their affectionate adhesion to Gen. Gomez. I am on guard, and decided in my intention to support our worthy chief in every way.

Either a serious condition of affairs does exist in Venezuela, due to steps taken by the overthrown Dictator to wreak vengeance on President Gomez, even if his chances to recapture the Presidency are slim, or there is an object which inspires the Government to make it appear that Castro is busy conspiring with his followers. This object, the opponents of Gomez say, may be to justify the wholesale arrests which have been made.

Every one believes that Castro will never rest until he has made another effort to ruin those who were responsible for his downfall. Times are hard for his friends in Venezuela. The following are among many notables now languishing in the same prisons which they once filled with their enemies: R. Tello Mendoza, Castro's boon companion and financier who made millions for himself; Simon Bello, Castro's brother-in-law; Trino Castro, Gen. Castro's brother; P. Castillo Chapellin, chief of the Castro party in the late Congress, and Celestino Peraza, leader of the opposition in Congress.

Gen. Celestino Peraza, one of the most powerful figures in politics here, because of his independence, and the only anti-Castro politician who did not try to get into the Gomez administration, has been jailed because he was about to start a newspaper to oppose the re-election of President Gomez. He contends that Gomez, being Provisional President, is ineligible to the Presidency for a constitutional term.

Many of the best friends of President Gomez believe that the reorganization of the Liberal party now going on threatens the present administration and that the professions of support of the candidacy of Gen. Gomez by the leaders of the party is not sincere and that at the last moment Congress will bring forward a new man. Such able and faithful supporters of Gomez as Gen. Leopoldo Baptista, who was the brains of the reaction against Castro, and Ramon Ayala, First Vice President of Venezuela, have emphatically refused to serve in the party organization or to countenance it in any way. Gen. Pulido has been elected leader of the party. The Nationalist party led by "El Mocho" Hernandez, has also declared that it will support President Gomez for the constitutional period.

WILLEMSTAD, Curacao, Nov. 21.—The representative here of ex-President Castro of Venezuela has sailed for Spain to confer with Senor Castro regarding his business affairs.

SEES OLEOMARGARINE PLOT.

Prof. Wing Asks Dairymen to Unite to Fight Manufacturers' Plan.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 21.—Prof. H. H. Wing, of Cornell University, President of the New York State Dairymen's Association, has sent out a statement to its members, saying:

> A determined effort will be made at the coming session of Congress to so modify existing laws in regard to the manufacture and sale of oleomargarine as to remove the tax of 10 cents per pound now imposed on colored oleomargarine. The proposed legislation specifies regulations in regard to the size and shape of packages and branding of the same, but it makes no provision whereby once the wrappers are removed colored oleomargarine may not appear upon hotel and restaurant tables and in other public places in the guise of butter, and so not only be sold at a much higher price, but take the place of the pure dairy product.
>
> The only reason for coloring the oleomargarine yellow is to enable it to be palmed off as genuine butter, and any legislation looking to this end or making such a thing possible should be strongly opposed by not only those who are interested in pure butter, but in all pure food.

A committee of the New York Association will co-operate with similar organizations from other States in opposing such legislation. Owners of cows are asked to contribute a cent for each cow owned to provide funds.

GOVERNOR FORGOT TO SIGN.

Arkansas Auditor Pays $455,000, Then Finds No Law Authorizes.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Nov. 21.—After the State auditor had paid out more than $455,000 of a supposed $1,000,000 appropriation for Confederate pensions for 1909 and 1910 provided by the last Legislature, it was discovered last night that the Governor had never signed the bill.

The measure was passed by both Houses in proper form and went to the Governor for his signature. He favored it, but an oversight caused him to fail to affix his signature. No pensions will be paid during 1910.

MINERS STILL DIG ON, BUT FIND NO LIVING

Some Say They Have Heard Signals from Entombed Comrades Behind Cave-In.

MANY MORE BODIES FOUND

Rescuers, Refused Permission to Enter Tunnel Full of Black Damp, Strike—Women Wait and Shiver at Shaft.

Special to The New York Times.

CHERRY, Ill., Nov. 21.—Encouraged by yesterday's rescues, a force of fifty men is still working desperately to dig through a cave-in in the second vein of the St. Paul mine, behind which, it is hoped, many of the miners entombed since the fire started, over a week ago, may still remain alive. Thus far since the twenty men were got out yesterday, only bodies have been recovered.

All day and all night the men have worked in eight-hour shifts to dislodge the hundreds of tons of earth and stone which block the passage, several members of the rescue party toiling until they fell over in exhaustion and had to be carried from the mine. Some of the diggers say they are certain they have heard signals from the east end of the tunnel, where the miners are supposed to be imprisoned.

The fire in the second level was forced back so that early in the afternoon the workers could pass it. But the black-damp in the east gallery proved insurmountable for a long time. Through this gallery the bodies of thirty-seven men could be seen.

James Lewison, one of the rescuing party, declares that late to-night he heard a human voice on the other side of the cave-in. He says he heard the voice plainly, although it sounded as though it was far away. Lewison immediately called the attention of the other workmen to the place from which the voice came, but they could hear nothing.

"I would swear that I heard some one calling through the cave-in," said he. "It sounded like they were far away or were so weak they could not shout loudly. Those people are alive, and the sooner we get to them the better, because I do not think they can last much longer."

Rescuers Go on Strike.

The temper of the rescuers is shown by the fact that a number of them went on a strike this afternoon because one of the foremen refused to permit them to enter one of the tunnels leading to the east chamber. They returned to work later, when it was explained to them that the air tunnel contained black damp. All efforts to drive this poisonous gas from the tunnel proved futile, and the rescue party will have to depend on digging through the cave-in.

All day long wives and children stood about the main shaft of the mine pleading with the rescuers who entered the tunnels to renew their efforts. In the cold they shivered, waiting and hoping for the news that the entombed men had been found alive.

"I know they are alive," sobbed one woman. "My man is down there."

While a number of bodies were brought to the surface during the day, raising the total of the recovered dead to 59, more than 50 of the bodies so far found still lie in the tunnels below. The rescuers brought out only those bodies that were in the way. Every effort was centred on the attempt to rescue any of the unaccounted for remainder of the original 310 who may be alive.

The bodies of the miners are said to be piled several deep along the sides of the tunnel. They are lying with dead mules, and the stench is such that the rescuing parties are at times almost forced to abandon the work. Four hundred pounds of chloride of lime and 3,000 tablets of bichloride of mercury dissolved in water have been sent into the mine to be used as disinfectants.

Some excitement was caused early to-day by a shooting which took place at the quarters of the troops who are guarding the mine. Earl Schultz of Galesburg, a private of Company C, had been notified that the Sheriff wanted to see him.

The young soldier took fright and started to run away. Sergt. Norton and Corporal Wallace pursued him, but he did not stop until a couple of shots had been fired over his head. Then he was led back under guard to the quarters of the troops. When he arrived the Sheriff presented him with a $10 bill and informed him that he was ordered to return to Galesburg as a witness in a case which is now on file there. The money was for witness fees and transportation.

The shots caused a large crowd to assemble, and the report spread that a mob of miners was attacking the private car in which the officials of the mining company have been making their headquarters. The soldiers dispersed the crowd, and the incident was forgotten, when a new but unfounded report came that other miners had been rescued.

A fire in the mine early in the day caused some uneasiness. The blaze started in the second vein, within fifty feet of the main shaft. Chicago firemen, however, entered the mine and extinguished the flames within a short time. Little damage was done beyond stopping the work of the rescuing party for a while.

Engineer's Narrow Escape.

Several narrow escapes have marked the work of the rescuers to-night. John Collins, a mining engineer, nearly lost his life when he attempted to crawl over a huge pile of earth and stone into a tunnel. When he reached the top of the cave-in black damp extinguished the torch on his cap, and the poisonous air caused him to loose consciousness. Another rescuer noticed the plight of the engineer, and, climbing over the rocks, seized Collins by the feet and dragged him to safety.

Collins declares that before he had been overcome by the poisonous air he had a glimpse of the tunnel on the other side of the cave-in, and that it was literally covered with the bodies of dead miners and mules. He said that any attempt to reach the interior of this passageway under the present conditions would mean instant death to the rescuers.

"If we can only get through this pile of earth and stone," said he, "I believe we will stand a chance to rescue the miners who are undoubtedly alive at the far end of the tunnel. The black damp is everwhere on one side of the barricade, and no one can live where it is. However, I believe that the air beyond is good and that the miners, if they are alive, are suffering only from hunger and thirst.

"The work of rescuing the miners so far has been in a haphazard way. Everybody seems to be bossing the work, and as a result nothing is done properly. Immediate attention should be paid to dispelling the poisonous air which has accumulated around the cave-in."

All day long the tolling of church bells resounded in Cherry and Spring Valley. Eighteen bodies were buried in a field south of Cherry. At the mine a dozen victims in coffins awaited removal, while a score of coffins were piled near by for others that might be brought to the surface. Services for the dead were held outside the churches, into which Coroner Malm deemed it advisable that the bodies be taken. From the yet unfilled graves in which the Roman Catholic dead were placed the priests hurried to the mine entrance to administer the last rites to any dying man that might be brought up.

Among those who still hope for the rescue of living miners is Richard Newson, President of the Illinois Board of Mine Inspectors.

"Scotchmen are the most resourceful miners in the world and there are twenty-two of them down there yet. I can see no reason why they should not have found some refuge just as did those who were found alive yesterday. Eight days have passed, however, and we must hurry if they are not to perish of thirst and starvation. Everything possible to hurry the work of exploration is doing."

It is reported to-night that labor leaders who have been making a quiet investigation of the disaster have called a meeting for to-morrow.

Entombed Men Wrote Letters.

Letters written in their underground prison by some of the miners rescued alive yesterday came to light in various quarters to-day. One was from John Lorimer to his wife, Sadie. Lorimer is a young Scot from Ayrshire, whence he came to America ten years ago.

"He just laughs and says he will go back to the mine when he is well," said his wife to-day, "although I'd be willing, after what has happened, to support him myself if he would only get safer work."

Lorimer's letter reads:

> Dear Wife: I am still living, although it is now 5 o'clock Sunday morning, and there is little hope, as the black damp is getting the best of us. There are twenty-one of us altogether here. Dear wife, do not grieve; we will meet again. God bless you; believe in Him. He will take care of you; he will take care of you. I guess we will meet in a better land. When you get over this let them know at home [Scotland.] That is all, dear. God bless you. YOUR LOVING HUSBAND.

All of the farewell letters were written on pages torn from the time book carried by Mine Boss Walter Waite. Waite had the only lead pencil in the group, and it was passed from hand to hand in order that all might write.

One instance of the self-sacrifice of the more sturdy prisoners was related by Lorimer to-day.

"Walczinski, I think that was his name, was sixty years old and the weakest among us," said Lorimer. "Our greatest suffering came from thirst, for only thimblefuls could be got from the seepage. Walczinski grew so exhausted that he could not stoop over, but had to lie on his face to drink. We made holes in the ground with our fingers and then waited for the oozing water to fill them. When water filled a small hole there wasn't a man but craved it madly. But the stronger men frequently passed their turns to let the old man drink."

Lorimer's account of the chivalry of the stronger toward the weaker miners is supplemented, however, by Ine Antoniese, one of the rescued men.

According to Antoniese, the sick old man was able to get enough to drink only after a brawny miner, who believed in the survival of the fittest, had been felled with a pickhandle and beaten into a sense of brotherly love. This miner, whose name Antoniese would not divulge, drew a knife to enforce his view that the water should be reserved for those who had the best chance to survive the longest, but nearly all the able men in the sealed gallery attacked him and took away his knife. This fight occurred about the third day of the entombment. Afterward the probability of death for all became so strong as to unite the men in common charity.

UNITED CIGAR STORES

SAY THEY HAVE SIX ROBBERS.

Detectives Arraign the Prisoners in Court on Various Hold-up Charges.

Three pairs of alleged hold-up men were in the Jefferson Market Court yesterday before Magistrate Cornell. All were held in bail for further examination.

Joseph Dunn, a bartender, and George Williams, a porter, both dwellers in Bowery lodging houses, were charged by Joseph Daly of 295 Chrystie Street with having held him up on Saturday night in front of Grace Church. One said Daly held him, forced him back over the iron railing around the church, while the other went through his pockets. They were caught two blocks away by Policeman McManus of the Mercer Street Station.

George Atkinson of 64 Roosevelt Avenue, Jersey City, charged Frank Clark of 224 East Sixteenth Street and Joseph Weiner of 535 Third Avenue, with attacking him in the Fourteenth Street station of the Hudson tunnel early yesterday morning. He said he fought them off until two Headquarters detectives ran into the station. Then the men attacked the detectives and tried to throw them on to the tracks, said the sleuths. They were arrested.

Headquarters detectives caught William Blair of 155 West Sixty-sixth Street and John Baudry, who said he lived at 31 West Forty-sixth Street, early yesterday morning after they saw the men, the detectives charged, assist John Brown of 30 West Twenty-second Street, into a Sixth Avenue car at Fifteenth Street, and at the same time try to go through his pockets.

GARDEN TRUCK FOR RESORTS.

To be Carried by Canal Company on Jersey's Inland Waterway.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 21.—The first corporation proposing to utilize the inland waterway now being dug between Bayhead and Cape May has been chartered as the Coast Canal Company of Camden. It proposes to make use of the six-foot channel in the waterway to bring vegetables to the coast resorts at less carrying rates than is charged by the railroads.

This company has a capital of $100,000, and was organized for the express purpose of cutting down freight rates for garden truck so much needed in the coast resort towns. Not only will the company act as a delivery agent, but among its powers are those of purchasing agent, and plans are under way for buying vegetables through carrying agents along the route of the canal.

TWO KILLED AT A DANCE.

Alabama Girls' Refusal to Dance Causes a Fatal Fight.

Special to The New York Times.

MOBILE, Ala., Nov. 21.—Because a girl refused to dance with a young man at Barnewall, Ala., last night, two youths are dead and four badly injured.

"Bert" Pierce was beaten to death with pickets, and Mac McKenzie was shot and killed. John Fraley, two brothers of the Pierce boy, and another McKenzie were injured.

The fight occurred at the Simon Barnewall place, where about thirty persons were dancing. Bert Pierce asked a Miss Nelson to dance with him and she refused. He became angry and made an offensive insulting remark. The McKenzie boys took up the matter, and a group of boys went outside to fight. Pickets were freely used and then a pistol was fired several times.

Sheriff Booth is on the way to make an investigation.

KILLED HIMSELF IN HIS LONELY HOME

Owner of Twenty-one Houses Kept Neither Servants Nor Companions About Him.

NEGLECTED AFTER DEATH

Worth $600,000 and Died Without a Will—Relatives Wrangle in Presence of the Coroner.

George W. Adams, an aged recluse, who for the last twenty years had lived alone, without servants or other attendants, in a big house which he owned at 81 Second Avenue, was found dead yesterday in a rear room on the first floor of his home. In his right hand was grasped a revolver and in his right temple was the wound from which he died, probably thirty-six hours before.

The discovery was made by his cousin, Mrs. Emma Whitlock of 18 Ocean Avenue, Ozone Park, L. I., and Albert L. Adams of 217 Fifth Street, no relation of the aged man, but the son of a lifelong friend and the elder man's recently appointed business agent. Mr. Adams and Mrs. Whitlock could only suggest in explanation of the suicide that the old man had recently complained of being ill and had said that he realized that no doctor could help him. That money matters did not trouble him is evidenced by the fact that he owned twenty-one houses in the city, many of them tenements on the east side, and was worth between $500,000 and $600,000. All of his property was in good condition and was paying good rents, according to the younger Adams, who for the last two weeks had taken entire charge of the older man's affairs.

Adams had been seen last by his agent and his cousin a little less than two weeks ago, when, after employing Adams, he had set out for Hot Springs to be gone for at least two weeks. Last Friday young Adams heard that his employer had returned to this city, and he called at the house. He could not get in nor was he successful on Saturday, and yesterday he sought Mrs. Whitlock, to whom the old man had given duplicate keys to his home before starting for the Springs.

Because of a contest which arose over the settlement of the estate which eventually fell to him, the old man always refused to make a will, so that his sudden death has left his affairs in a tangle.

While Coroner Shrady was investigating the case several men and women, who said they were relatives of the dead man, appeared at the house and made an effort to go through the old man's apartments. They argued among themselves about the things in the rooms, each claiming various articles of bric-a-brac and furniture.

Coroner Shrady informed them that he would not permit the wrangle to go on and ordered them from the place. The Coroner then directed the police to lock up the house, saying that the public administrator would have to settle the dispute between the relatives.

PHONOGRAPH CHARMS SNAKES

Curator Ditmers Gives the Cobras a Homelike Sunday Concert.

They had a real snake-charming party at the Bronx Park Zoo yesterday, and when it was over Curator Ditmars voted it a great success. Several months ago Mr. Ditmars, who has got together an animal and reptile circus, sent to Singapore and obtained several phonographic records of the music made by Hindu snake charmers in performing their tricks with reptiles. The records arrived on Saturday.

Mr. Ditmars gathered some of the keepers yesterday afternoon, got out a few cobras and other poisonous snakes from the Far East, and turned on his music. The snakes began to take notice right away. One of the big king cobras raised his head high in the air and glided across to where the phonograph rested. The reptile eyed the machine curiously, and its head began to wave to and fro, keeping time to the weird strains of music.

Several of the other snakes joined him, just in front of the metal horn from which the music emerged. Mr. Ditmars turned on record after record, and after a while the snakes seemed to be in a hypnotic state. They did not wake up until they had been put back in their cages.

Sunday is usually a busy day for news in the reptile house, and yesterday was no exception. When the keepers arrived in the morning and started to enter a small annex to the east of the building, they drew back in alarm. On the floor of the annex was a heap of straw and shavings which seemed to move up and down as though some monster was beneath and breathing heavily. The woodwork in the room appeared to have been chipped as though by a chisel. Here and there on the floor were chips of wood.

One of the keepers got a steel net. This was placed over the pile of straw and shavings. There was quite a commotion, and a big sabre-toothed rat, a pet of Mr. Ditmars emerged from the heap. It had escaped from its cage during the night.

SUPPOSED MADMAN ON A ROOF

Two Men Have a Struggle with Him Before He Is Subdued.

William Lowe, who lives on the top floor of the four-story flat building at 480 Prospect Place, Brooklyn, walked into the Grand Avenue Police Station yesterday and told Lieut. Powers that there was a crazy man on the roof at his address. Policeman George Noll was sent to make an investigation. On the way he met two plain clothes men and asked them to go along.

The plain clothes men stayed in the street, while Noll and Lowe went to the roof. There they found Charles Wygant of 330 Lincoln Road, Flatbush, peering over the edge of the roof.

"What are you doing there?" asked Noll.

"I'm looking for the North Pole," replied Wygant.

Wygant refused to go to the street, and it took the united efforts of the policeman and Lowe to subdue him. While the policeman held Wygant down on the roof, Lowe went to the edge and called to the two plain clothes men in the street to come up.

At the station house he told Lieut. Powers that his name was "Sweeney," and that he was 95 years old. He insisted that he was married, and that his wife was in an airship. Letters found in his pockets were addressed to "Charles Wygant, 330 Lincoln Road, Brooklyn."

An ambulance from the Swedish Hospital was summoned, and Dr. Lenhart, who was in charge, said that the man was demented. He was removed to the observation ward of the Kings County Hospital.

FORGOT SHE KILLED HER SON.

Mrs. Day Raves in Court When Told He Is Dead.

Mrs. Annie Day, a widow, who formerly lived at 77 Ralph Street, was arraigned in the Manhattan Street Court in Williamsburg yesterday on a charge of murder and attempted suicide. She was accused of having killed her seven-year-old son, Henry, on June 6, by slashing his neck with a carving knife and then attempting to take her own life by cutting her wrists.

As she was brought out of the prisoners' pen by a policeman yesterday tears filled her eyes. Before the complaint of murder was read to her she asked for her child.

"Won't you give me back my little darling?" she said. "He's been so long away from me."

Magistrate O'Reilly answered:

"Mrs. Day, you are charged with having killed your son on June 6, 1909, by cutting his neck with a knife, and you are also charged with attempting to commit suicide on the same day by cutting your wrists."

"My boy dead!" exclaimed the woman. "Where is he? I must see him. Oh, yes, I know! The mob wanted to take him from me. The mob is following me. They're rushing after me. Let me to my boy."

Mrs. Day began to rave. The Magistrate had her taken back to the prisoners' pen. He committed her to jail without bail. He will consult the District Attorney about the woman to-day.

Mrs. Day's husband, an Englishman, died three years ago. Mrs. Day then took the boy back to England, where relatives live. She returned to America to earn a living for the child and herself, but was very unfortunate. On the day she killed the boy he was ready to go to the parade of the Brooklyn Sunday schools.

FEAR FOR THEIR CITY JOBS.

Cromwell's Housecleaning Threat Upsets Richmond Borough Employes.

The announcement made by Borough President Cromwell of Richmond that when he enters upon his next term in January next he will begin a "housecleaning" in the Borough Hall has caused dismay among the several hundred employes in the borough government.

Before the recent election many employes, believing that there would be a change in the local administration, and wishing to be in favor with the new administration, openly opposed the re-election of Mr. Cromwell. Many times before his re-election Mr. Cromwell was heard to say that the ingratitude of the employes that he had cared for during the time that he has been Borough President was unexplainable.

Now that he has been re-elected, it is certain that he will swing the official axe, and that the reduction of the borough salary list will be extensive.

The Mayor Agrees to Consider Complaints of Staten Islanders.

Mayor McClellan, in response to several hundred letters of complaint received by him in the last two weeks from indignant Staten Islanders relative to the arbitrary action taken by Dock Commissioner Spooner in placing the ancient single-deck ferryboat New York on the Stapleton service, has notified the Stapleton Ferry League that he will give them a hearing at his office on Wednesday afternoon.

A committee consisting of Borough President Cromwell, Tax Commissioner McCormack, and ex-Sheriff Brown, accompanied by a large delegation of commuters, will storm City Hall and demand that the old "sixty-five-minute a trip" hulk, which was restored to duty the day after election, be immediately replaced by one of the speedy new double-decked municipal ferryboats.

INFANT EMPEROR'S UNCLE COMES HERE

Baron Liang Kuei of the Royal Chinese Family Is Studying American Methods.

NOT BUYING WAR SUPPLIES

Rumor That That Was His Mission to America Is Denied by His Secretary.

Baron Liang Kuei, uncle of the infant Emperor Pu Yi, who sits on the throne of China, is staying in democratic style at the Hotel Belmont. He is the son-in-law of Prince Ching, President of the Board of Foreign Affairs in Peking.

With the Baron is his chief secretary, Crang Hung Nien, and the secretary's assistant, Sung Shan. The only escort to this imperial party is K. Ownyang, Vice-Consul at San Francisco, who crossed the continent with them.

Since his arrival on Saturday the Baron has spent most of his time sightseeing, this being his first visit to New York. It is also the first time since the death of the Dowager Empress of China that a member of the royal family has visited America without an imperial edict.

The Baron told some of his impressions yesterday through his secretary, a graduate of St. John's University in Shanghai, who speaks English fluently. He also took occasion to deny that the purpose of his visit here was to float the $20,000,000 loan, and incidentally purchase battleships and war supplies.

"The object of our visit here," said Chang Hung Nien to a TIMES reporter, "is threefold. The Baron has come to study the conditions of the Chinese in this country, to meet the leading Chinese merchants, and to see the wonderful ways of American customs, of which we have heard so much at home.

"As soon as we reached San Francisco we heard the report that the Baron, since China had announced her policy of rehabilitating her army and navy at a total expense of $200,000,000, had come on a mission to purchase at short notice army and naval supplies. There is no truth whatever in this rumor. The Baron is here to learn and to confer with the Chinese merchants regarding commerce.

"The Baron is charmed with New York and never ceases to wonder at your skyscrapers. Of course we have pagodas in China which scrape the sky, but they are not so beautiful or imposing as your skyscrapers. His visit here is informal. He met President Taft informally, and is now enjoying the sights here like any democratic citizen.

"It is the first time since the death of the Emperor and Dowager Empress of China that a member of the royal family has visited a foreign country without an imperial edict. Of course, the Baron comes with the sanction of Prince Chun, Regent of the Empire. But his informal visit without escort shows something of the present progressive and reform spirit of China."

Regarding the conditions existing among the Chinese in this city, Chang Hung Nien asserted that during the next few days the Baron would meet the Chinese merchants here, as he had done in Chicago and San Francisco, but that he would not attempt to bring peace among the warring factions in Chinatown.

"These factions," said the secretary, "are composed of low Chinese, or Cantonese, who have nothing in common with the affairs of the empire."

The Baron, who is only 27 years old, received his callers yesterday in a red parlor on the second floor of the Belmont. He wore a deep purple garment, which reached below his knees, and high boots. On the street he wears an American-made overcoat which hides his robe.

The Baron will sail for Europe this week. After visiting the capitals of Europe he will return to China by the way of Siberia.

SETTLING FISHERIES DISPUTE.

Dr. Jordan to Report Findings of Commission to the President To-day.

Dr. David Starr Jordan, President of Leland Stanford, Jr., University, California, will leave to-day for Washington, where he will lay before President Taft the measures adopted last week at the meetings of the International Fisheries Commission toward placing the fishery laws of the great lakes and other waters forming the boundaries between Canada and the United States on an international basis. Dr. Jordan said yesterday that everything had been satisfactorily adjusted, and as soon as the President and the Canadian Parliament approve of the report of the commission, made in conformity with the treaty regulations, the new international fisheries law will go into effect. Dr. Jordan said a meeting of the Fur Seal Commission, of which he is a member, will be held in Washington this week.

Dr. Jordan delivered his address yesterday which he gave Saturday at the Manhattan Hotel, under the auspices of the American Peace Society, relative to the baneful effects of war, at the Aurora Grata Cathedral, Brooklyn, before the Brooklyn Society for Ethical Culture, and in the evening at the Pilgrim Congregational Church, Madison Avenue and 121st Street.

CANAL REPORT SHOWS GOOD PROGRESS MADE

Col. Goethal's Summing Up of Year's Work at Panama Published by War Department.

EXPLAINS INCREASE IN COST

Subsistence Department Runs 17 Hotels—12 Schools for White Children and 17 for Colored Maintained.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—Satisfactory progress in the construction of the Panama Canal is shown in the annual report of the Isthmian Canal Commission for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1909, made public by the Secretary of War to-day.

The report, which is signed by Lieut. Col. George W. Goethals as Chairman and Chief Engineer, deals with the organization of the work, the construction and engineering problems which were solved, the civil government of the Canal Zone, the sanitary conditions which were greatly improved, and the estimated cost of the canal. While the report contains few facts which have not been printed from time to time, and scarcely any comment by Col. Goethals, it affords an interesting resume of what has been accomplished during the year.

As to the cost of the work the Chief Engineer has the following to say in explanation of the increase of the total to $375,201,000, as against the 1902 estimate of $144,233,358.

> The act of June 28, 1902, authorized the construction of the canal and made provisions for the necessary funds, the amount stipulated being based on the report of the Board of Engineers in its report of 1899 to 1901, and aggregating $144,233,358, including sanitation and police. A modification of the plans then submitted was made by the minority of the Board of Consulting Engineers and adopted by Congress in 1906, which fixed the cost for engineering and construction, exclusive of the purchase price, the cost of sanitation and civil government and the interest, at $139,705,200. In the preparation of this estimate, the same unit prices were assumed as were adopted by the board of 1899 to 1901. In the interval, however, wages had increased and the cost of materials and manufactured articles had risen. Prosperous conditions in the United States, combined with the unsavory reputation that the Isthmus had regarding its healthfulness, made it necessary, in order to secure labor, to increase the wage scales from 30 to 60 per cent. over those paid in the United States for similar classes of work. Certain gratuities as additional inducements were also offered, which in the main have since been continued. Moreover, the provisions of the eight-hour law were made applicable to the Isthmus.
>
> The unit prices were therefore materially increased. Various changes had also been made in the adopted plan, increasing the quantity of work to be done. In addition, more detailed surveys and plans than were originally available had been made, and the work had progressed sufficiently to give reliable data relative to unit costs. This enabled a revised estimate to be prepared and submitted at a hearing before the Committee on Appropriations of the House of Representatives in February, 1909.
>
> This estimate shows that nearly 50 per cent. more work is necessary in order to complete the canal than was contemplated by the original estimate and that the unit prices, due to labor conditions, cost of materials, and gratuities given the employes, have been increased about 20 per cent. The estimate, as prepared, shows that the total cost of engineering and construction alone sums up to $297,766,000; to which, if the purchase price and the estimated cost of sanitation and civil government be added, there results the sum of $375,201,000 as the total cost of the canal.

Labor, Subsistence, Housing.

The other points of freshest interest relate to the conduct of the Quartermaster's department, the police arrangements, schools, and sanitary conditions.

The Quartermaster's department has charge of the recruitment of skilled and unskilled labor, the care and assignment of all quarters, together with furnishing them, distributing fuel, commissary supplies, and distilled water, and since July 1, 1909, the construction and repairs of all buildings.

> Skilled labor is recruited through the Washington office in conjunction with an agent stationed in New York City and on the Isthmus. During the year 1,093 new employments and 884 reemployments were made on the Isthmus, and of those appointed in the United States 754 arrived on the Isthmus.
>
> A steady increase of the unskilled labor force continued until it reached its maximum on April 28, when the reports show a total of 33,699 men actually working for the commission and the Panama Railroad, the largest force of record. The number of Europeans and West Indians brought to the Isthmus during the year shows a decrease over the preceding year; they numbered 741 Europeans and 1,892 West Indians. The force of European laborers decreased, as the Spanish Government prohibited emigration to Panama, so that no new men are now procurable from that source by recruitment.

The subsistence officer's report shows that:

> Hotels, messes, and kitchens are operated for the comfort and convenience of the employes from Palo Seco to Nombre de Dios wherever required by the necessities of construction. There are, in addition to the Tivoli Hotel, seventeen hotels, nineteen messes, and twenty-one pitchens, providing food for 7,700 people. The Tivoli Hotel shows a profit for the year; the operation of the line hotels shows a loss, the messes and kitchens a profit. The subsistance feature of the commission is self-supporting, after making similar allowances to the various hotels and kitchens in the form of equipment as is furnished to married employes.

The health conditions on the Isthmus are reported by the Chief Sanitary Officer as showing an improvement over the preceding year.

> The total number of admissions of employes to hospitals and sick camps, including those sick in quarters, amounted to 46,194, representing for the year 23.49 as the number of men sick daily out of every thousand names on the payrolls, as against 23.85 for the preceding year. The number of deaths was 536, and assuming that the average number of names on the payrolls for the various months during the year amounted to 44,261, the number of deaths would be equivalent to a death rate of 11.97 per thousand, as against 18.32 for the preceding year.
>
> No cases of plague or yellow fever originated on the Isthmus. One case of the plague, however, developed on a ship at Balboa, and was transferred to the quarantine station, where death ensued. The ship from which the case was taken had been the required number of days under the quarantine regulations from the infected port.

Police, Courts, Schools.

Col. Goethals has the following to say of the police activities and of courts on the Isthmus:

> On June 30, 1909, the police force consisted of 245 employes. The number of arrests made was 6,275, as against 6,075 during the previous year. Of those arrested 5,003 were subsequently convicted; 4,881 of misdemeanor, and 122 of felony; with the exception of 60, whose cases have not been disposed of, the remainder were dismissed. On the charge of murder 8 arrests were made; 2 were released because of insufficient evidence; 2 were tried and acquitted; 2 were sentenced to life imprisonment, and 2 are awaiting trial.
>
> The Supreme Court held thirteen sessions during the year. It confirmed the decision of the Circuit Court in three criminal cases, and reversed the decision of that court in one criminal case. Eight civil cases were filed during the year, of which five were decided.
>
> In the Circuit Courts criminal cases were filed against 398 persons; 204 were convicted and 55 acquitted. Cases against 114 persons were dismissed, and 25 cases were pending at the end of the fiscal year. At the beginning of the year 46 civil cases were pending; 239 were filed during the year; 163 were disposed of, and 122 were pending at the end of the year.
>
> In the District Courts criminal cases against 6,025 persons were filed; 4,646 were convicted; 385 committed for action by the Circuit Courts; 770 acquitted, and 219 discharged, leaving 5 pending at the end of the year. Civil cases were filed against 749 persons; of these 732 were disposed of, and 17 were pending at the close of the year.

Of the Isthmian schools, in which the races are separated, the report says:

> During the year the schools of the Canal Zone were reorganized and systematized. For white children 12 schools are maintained, and for colored children 17. The enrollment of Oct. 1, 1908, showed 622 whites and 1,073 colored. The pupils were carefully graded and uniform methods of instruction established. Two high schools are also provided, one at Culebra and one at Cristobal. School buildings for white children were erected—a one-room building at Tabernilla, a two-room building at Corozal, and a four-room building at Gatun.

TO LET IN AMERICAN MEAT.

Proposed in Germany to Modify Restrictions on Importation.

BERLIN, Nov. 21.—The treatment of American meats by Germany and the probability of modification in the forthcoming negotiations for a trade arrangement between the two countries is much discussed in the German newspapers. The bulletin of the Commercial Treaty Association, which is opposed to the high protective policy of the Government, expresses the opinion that some of the restrictions placed on American meats are unnecessary from the purely sanitary standpoint, and might well be moderated in exchange for certain advantages under the American tariff law.

The association, however, rejects the claim that American animals and meats are subject to exceptional treatment at the hands of the German Government. The prohibition against the importation of American beef cattle was issued in 1895 because several animals in two cargoes shipped to Hamburg were found to be affected with Texas fever; but the importation of live cattle from Australia, Russia, Roumania, Italy, and some other countries is also prohibited, though for other reasons.

It is remarked, furthermore, that even if the prohibition of imports from the United States were abrogated, it would still be impossible to bring American cattle into Germany, because they, in common with the cattle from other oversea countries, would be subject to a quarantine detention and observation of four weeks, and would have to be put through the tuberculin test. The trichinae certificate required by the German authorities for American pork, the association thinks, might be abolished, because this meat is re-examined in Germany in any case.

PAULHAN'S FEAT MINIMIZED.

Rival Aviator Tells Paris Papers He Went Up Only 1,000 Feet.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 21.—The London Daily Mail was the only European newspaper which had a representative present at Paulhan's wonderful flight on Saturday. His greatest height was carefully estimated at 500 meters, or about 1,600 feet. The French newspapers, however, give him credit for only 300 meters, or about 1,000 feet.

Behind this wide discrepancy there is a story of unworthy jealousy on the part of another aviator, who is said to have given the account of the flight to the Paris reporters, with whom he is a favorite.

Unfortunately no official record was made of the flight.

Author of "The Woman with the Serpent's Tongue" So Notifies The New York Times.

HEARS FROM LE GALLIENNE

Who Wants a Bout Before a Select Assemblage with Boxing Gloves, with Jeffries and Sharkey as Referees.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—William Watson has asked me to forward the following message to THE NEW YORK TIMES:

> I am told that a storm has been aroused against me in America. Therefore I am coming to face it, sailing on the Lusitania on Nov. 27.
> WILLIAM WATSON.

This is the direct outcome of the controversy over his poem, "The Woman with the Serpent's Tongue." A week ago Mr. Watson had no idea of visiting America. Since then, as told in my dispatch of Thursday, he has learned of the controversy there regarding his poem. He is much annoyed over the verses appearing in a New York paper calling him a coward and issuing what he thinks is a threatening invitation to visit America. He denies the charges in that poem as absolutely false. Although I made no mention of the author's name in my dispatch, the cap has evidently fitted, for Mr. Watson has received a message from Richard Le Gallienne, the author of the verses, reading, after referring to the Watson interview in THE NEW YORK TIMES:

> Mr. Le Gallienne replies that he will be glad to meet Mr. Watson on any terms he names and suggests boxing gloves with Jeffries and Sharkey as referees and that the bout be held before a select gathering of men and women, including Mrs. Watson.

It was on receipt of this that Mr. Watson asked me to forward the message. Mrs. Watson will accompany him, of course. Mr. Watson treats Le Gallienne's reply as a joke. Nevertheless he thinks a visit to America necessary to clear up the situation.

FUNERAL CEREMONIES OVER.

Sacrificial Tablet Commemorating China's Empress Placed in Temple.

PEKING, Nov. 21.—The ceremonies in connection with the interment of the late Dowager Empress of China terminated this morning, when the sacrificial tablet was returned from the tombs and placed in the dynastic temple of the Forbidden City.

The Viceroy of Chi-li and two high officers have been punished on account of carelessness in connection with the funeral. All those who took part in the ceremonies, numbering thousands, have been rewarded.

PERIN BUYS MOORISH PALACE.

Excavations Yield Valuable Roman Remains and Much Treasure.

MADRID, Nov. 21.—Lawrence Perin of Baltimore has purchased an ancient Moorish palace at Ronda, Spain. Excavations have been going on there for the last few days, and valuable Roman archaeological remains and much treasure have been found. The Government has sent an architect to make an examination.

Lawrence Perin went to Ronda recently from Paris, with the intention of erecting a memorial there to his wife, who committed suicide at Harrow, England, last September.

SUGGESTS CLOSING OF TRAINING SCHOOL

State Charity Board Committee Denounces Abuses in the Brooklyn Institution.

WANTS CHARTER REPEALED

Boys Should Be Sent to Other Institutions—Accused Superintendent Has Already Been Removed.

ALBANY, Nov. 21.—Declaring that conditions found to exist in the Brooklyn Disciplinary Training School for Boys "are so immediately detrimental to the physical, moral, and educational interests of the boys committed to it," recommendation is made by a special committee of the State Board of Charities that prompt action be taken to remedy the defects. The committee's report is upon an investigation into complaints filed with Gov. Hughes, and was made public to-day, after it had been adopted by the State board. The report recommends:

> As ample provision has been made by the State and benevolent societies for the proper care and training of the clas of boys committed to this institution, measures should be taken to abolish the Brooklyn Disciplinary Training School for Boys. To accomplish these objects your committee submits the following recommendations:
>
> First—The removal by the Mayor of the City of New York of the delinquent members of the present Board of Managers and the appointment of competent persons in their stead, at least three of whom shall be women of experience in the charities of New York.
>
> Second—The removal of the present Superintendent and house mother and the appointment in their places of persons certified by competent testimonials to be qualified for their respective positions.
>
> Third—That steps be taken to have the charter of this "school" repealed at the earliest possible date and the inmates transferred to the proper institutions, viz., the children of Catholic parents to Catholic protectories, the children of Jewish parents to protectories for Jewish children, and those of Protestant parents to Protestant institutions.

As a basis for these recommendations the committee found:

> First. The managers do not exercise that personal supervision over the affairs and management of the institution essential to the success of a reformatory, and on this account abuses of a demoralizing character prevail in every branch of its service. Excepting the one to whom we have referred in the body of our report, the managers are directly responsible for all the evils and abuses in this institution.
>
> Second. The methods of discipline, adopted and enforced by the Superintendent, are extremely harsh and creul from the moment the boy is received into the institution. The punishment consists, for the most part, of severe blows with a cane or rattan, upon the face, head, and body for slight offenses, and solitary confinement in a dark, filthy, unfurnished, and rat-infested lockup, with bread and water as food, for more grave offenses.
>
> Third. The industrial training of the boys, required by the charter, to prepare them for self-support when they leave the school, is entirely inadequate, and so little effort has been made for several years to maintain efficient equipment that this important service of a reformatory is practically worthless.
>
> Fourth. The power vested in the managers of placing boys as apprentices and servants during their minority has been so indifferently exercised that boys of more than averaged mental and physical capacity and of good character have been retained from three to seven years, or until they nearly reached their majority.
>
> Fifth. The moral tone of the whole establishment is extremely low and depressing; tales of immorality were too current to pass unnoticed; no kind and affectionate expressions of administrative officers for the boys, nor of the boys for the officers were heard; the entire atmosphere of the institution is charged with antagonism subversive of all reformatory influences.
>
> Sixth. The buildings are old and dilapidated and not adapted to the purposes of a well-organized and efficient reformatory for boys, with its trade schools, while the limited amount of land attached prevents the occupation of the inmates in any form of soil cultivation, as farming or gardening.

The report accuses Supt. Farrell of drunkenness, and also sharply criticises the matron. It says:

> We find that since the death of Farrell's ife, he has on many occasions left the institution at night, and has taken with him Miss Hutchinson, the house-mother, thus leaving without any responsible head an institution containing 240 boys confined in an old building, liable at any time to be consumed by fire. We find that both the Superintendent and Miss Hutchinson have neglected to enter their absences in the record book kept for that purpose, and that they have been known on many occasions to return to the institution in a closed carriage long after midnight.

A copy of the report has been sent to Gov. Hughes and Mayor McClellan. The Legislature has the power to abolish the institution.

At a meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Brooklyn Disciplinary Training School for Boys held last week, following the disclosures of evidences of brutality in the treatment of the boys there, James P. Farrell, the Superintendent of the institution, was expelled. The matron who had been suspended during the investigation by the committee of the State Board of Charities was ordered reinstated at the same meeting. None of the present Board of Managers of the institution could be found last night.

The Board of Managers consists of the following: Richard Bennett, President; Ephraim Byk, P. J. Carlin, W. B. Wardell, Morris Adler, Dr. N. T. Lewis, William J. Dickson, J. A. Shepherd, S. F. Rothschild, Mrs. W. H. Lyons, and T. P. Brenack.

FARRELL WITNESSES ESCAPE.

Over Fences and Down Ropes Nine Pupils of Training School Flee.

Nine boys escaped yesterday from the Brooklyn Disciplinary Training School for Boys, the institution from which James P. Farrell was recently removed as Superintendent after an investigation. Five of the boys escaped in daylight and the other four slipped out of the grounds at dusk. Of the nine, three gave testimony at the recent investigation.

The boys, who range in age from 10 to 14 years, are William Roycroft, George Darfman, James Millere, Leroy Robinson, Louis Hunt, David Teich, Nicholas Lamdow, Charles Batcheller, and Thomas Ward. Miller, Lamdow, and Batcheller were the ones who testified, the two former to having received beatings in the school and the latter to having had his eye injured by being struck with a piece of telephone wire. All of the lads had been in the school a year or more.

Two of the boys, it is not known which, escaped from the school grounds, at Eighteenth Avenue and Fifty-seventh Street, at noon. They broke the lock on the main gate and walked out into the street. Their disappearance was not noted until afternoon, when three other boys escaped over the eight-foot brick fence which surrounds the grounds. The remaining four slid down a rope, which they lowered from a dormitory window on the third floor, and then scaled the fence. This was at dusk.

At all times there were four or more attendants in the yard, and it is not understood how the boys could have scaled the fence. It is thought they had help from the inside to reach the top of it. All wore the drab-gray uniform of the school.

A general alarm has been sent out for them from the Parkville Police Station.

APPEALS FOR HOMELESS BOYS

The New York Home Asks Aid for Its Thanksgiving Dinners.

Supt. Eva of the New York Home for Homeless Boys is making an appeal for donations of money and provisions in order to give the boys a good Thanksgiving dinner. He says homeless boys would enjoy a table smoking with hot meats, gravy, and puddings just a little bit more, he thinks, than other boys do who have these things almost every day, but the boys he looks after won't be able to do so unless he receives outside help.

As well as furnishing a Thanksgiving dinner for the boys in the two homes under Supt. Eva's direction, the homes will try to care for 500 other persons on next Thursday who would not otherwise be fed.

The mottoes of the home are: "The door is ever open to receive the boy in need," and "Food, raiment, and shelter are provided until employment is obtained."

The homes are at 150 West 127th Street and 521 East 120th Street.

NOT LIABLE FOR WIFE'S DEBTS

If Husband Has Told Merchants Not to Sell to Her on Credit.

Justices Gildersleeve, Seabury, and Lehman, sitting in the Appellate Term of the Supreme Court, have just decided in the case of Van Patten vs. Hess that a husband is not liable for hats bought by his wife after he has notified a store not to extend her any more credit.

H. V. Rothschild and Louis Lande of 290 Broadway, who appeared as attorneys for the defendant, proved at the trial before Justice Lauer that before September their client had paid the plaintiff all the bills then due and notified him not to sell any more goods except for cash. In spite of the warning, Mr. Van Patten sold to Mrs. Hess hats amounting to $360. The case was appealed, but the Supreme Court affirmed the judgment for the defendant.

"MAN OVERBOARD" WAS ONLY A LAMP

But the Cunarder Pannonia Was Stopped and Illuminating Life Buoys Cast Adrift.

BABY BORN IN MIDATLANTIC

Little Steerage Arrival Baptized by a High Dignitary in the Catholic Church.

A woman in the steerage of the Cunard liner Pannonia on the voyage from the Mediterranean, which ended here yesterday, set going a chain of incidents which aroused a false cry of "an overboard" and led to the stopping of the vessel and the lowering of one of her small boats.

About 9 o'clcok on Oct. 30, the night the Pannonia left Fiume, a woman in the steerage lighted a small alcohol lamp to heat some water. This act attracted the attention of those in the compartment, for the use of such a lamp is forbidden on shipboard.

The heating of the water was under way when a sudden listing of the vessel overturned the lamp, setting fire to a sheet on a bunk. At the first cry of fire, a steward ran into the room, and, wrapping the lamp in the blaing sheet, ran out on deck and threw both overboard.

The steerage passengers, who had become anxious, turned in relief as the blazing lamp struck the water.

"Well, it's overboard," said a man in Hungarian, turning to a group of his fellow-passengers. "It's overboard," they repeated, and then some one interpreted the remark to have been "Man ovrboard," and in an instant that cry was taken up in half a dozen different languages.

Word was hastily passed to the bridge, and by the time the vessel began to slow down most of the 1,400 steerage passengers, as well as those in the cabin, were at the vessel's side straining their eyes peering into the darkness. Word was taken to Capt. Irvine that a man had gone over the side, and he was soon on the bridge.

Aft were fastened two big life buoys to which are attached cans containing chemicals which ignite as the buoy hits the water. As the Pannonia began to lose headway, some one tore both life buoys loose and flung them overboard. They drifted flaming away into the darkness, lighting up the sea for yards around.

When the Pannonia was stopped a quickly conducted investigation showed that none of the passengers was missing. Then Capt. Irvine decided that there was no use in losing his two costly illuminating life buoys. The forward port boat was lowered, in charge of a junior officer. After some trouble, the boat picked up the drifting buoys, and soon the Pannonia was again on her course.

Perhaps never a child born in the steerage had a more aristocratic christening than had a boy baby born to Mrs. Julianna Kovacs, a Hungarian woman whose husband preceded her to this country a few months ago. The baby arrived in midatlantic.

Among the passengers was the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Count Vay de Vaya and Luskod, Lord Abbot of St. Martin's, a Hungarian nobleman and distinguished prelate of the Roman aCtholic Church. He baptized the baby, naming him Ivan Pannonia, and there was rejoicing in the steerage.

The Pannonia was nearly two days late on account of rough weather.

French Taxicab Co. Coming Here.

As a consequence of the contention made by the attorney of the New York Taxicab Company that the profits of the stand in front of the cafe formerly known as Churchill's were about $20,000 a year, the representative of a French corporation whose officers have been contemplating entering the New York field for the last two years, will take the preliminary steps this week to become a competitor. None of the existing fourteen taxicab companies was aware that such large returns came from the stand.

At least 75,000 men and women are being killed by Legislative Economy. There are 150,000 insane people in the United States. The greater part of them can be restored to health and usefulness by proper treatment. There is not enough room in the State asylums for half the insane—and even there the facilities for treatment are not adequate. The rest are confined in almshouses with no treatment at all. State legislatures think a man crazy is a man dead. Well, crazy men can't vote, and the States need the money. Don't worry about the outrages in Turkey or the Congo; read the almost unbelievable story of American care for the insane in PEARSON'S MAGAZINE for December, and inquire about your own insane asylum.

This issue contains a story of the most important scientific discovery of decades—a positive prevention for typhoid fever. One story explains what a railroad bond means to the man who wants his money to grow. Another story shows the real cause of divorce—the real reason for domestic unhappiness. There are six pages of verse about a baby, the most delightful pages in the whole magazine. A most unusual article tells of the thousands of dollars spent on dogs while 100,000 children are without homes, and the fiction is of the sort that has made this magazine famous on two hemispheres.

BRYAN'S PLAN LIKELY TO BE A BOOMERANG

Politicians in Washington Believe Prohibition Issue Will Kill Him with Democrats.

SOUTH IS NOT WITH HIM

Liquor Question Fought Out on State Lines—General Feeling That Nebraskan's Power Is Gone.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—William J. Bryan's plan to force prohibition to the front as a Democratic issue, as told in a dispatch to THE NEW YORK TIMES, will kill him with his own party. That is, almost without exception, the opinion of such Democrats of National prominence as are now in Washington. Incidentally it is the opinion of shrewd political observers in the Republican Party.

The first difficulty to be met by Bryan in the attempt to foist this issue on his party will be that it will furnish fresh and confirmatory evidence of the charge so often made by Republican spellbinders during the campaign of a year ago that Bryan was no longer a sincere crusader, fighting for what he believed to be the right, but merely a political quack seeking to win votes by whatever nostrum he thought he could make palatable.

Southern Men Against Bryan.

Aside from that fact, everybody who knows anything about the campaign of last year knows that Bryan's nomination was accepted by a large majority of Southern Democrats simply because they believed it was necessary to kill him off before there could be any successful rejuvenation of the party, and his third defeat would accomplish that result. Indications that have been cropping up from time to time since Mr. Taft's election that, despite his third failure to land the Presidency, Bryan is not yet willing to recognize the fact that he isn't wanted in the White House, have filled these Southerners with renewed disgust. Now, to have Bryan make a new gyration and attempt to make a National issue out of the question which for purely local reasons has been adopted in several of the Southern States, caps the climax.

Prohibition as a State issue is one thing, but as a National issue it is quite a different matter. It has worked as a State issue in the South simply because down there the fight was between two factions of Democrats, and, no matter which won, the Republicans had no chance. But in the North, where there are two real parties, a very different situation would result.

It has been recalled to-day that in the Northern States it is the Democratic Party that is tied up with the liquor interests. In the red-hot campaigns waged last year in Ohio and Indiana the brewers and whisky men were with the Democrats against the Republicans on the local option issue, and in both States the liquor interests came out ahead. So it would be all over the North, and the prediction is freely made here to-day that, even in Nebraska, Bryan's advocacy of prohibition will serve only to split his own party wide open, and deliver the State over to the Republicans. There is only one suggestion of an alternative, and that is that Bryan, finding his new save-all a failure, will right about face on prohibition as suddenly as he did on Government ownership of railroads after his Madison Square Garden speech of three years ago.

Lively Interest Among Democrats.

Democrats who are here showed the liveliest interest in Bryan's new line of attack, but not many were willing to talk for publication until they had seen just what form it would take.

Senator Bailey said he did not want to jump on Bryan for saying a thing until he was sure he was going to say it. It was apparent, however, that he neither thought that Bryan could make a National issue of prohibition or could place himself again at the head of the party.

Representative John N. Garner of Texas, in whose district Bryan owns a farm, said: "Bryan has 'paramounted' three times for the Democratic Party already, and I don't think he will be allowed to do it again. I think he is a very noble man, but as a statesman he has not made good, and three chances ought to be enough. That part of the American people known as the Democratic Party will not, in my opinion, let him dictate any such 'paramount' issue for it as prohibition. Local option in the several States is all right, and is in line with Democratic principles, but to let Bryan make a National issue of it would be equivalent to the party's going into a receivership, with him as the receiver, with no responsibility to court or public. Bryan will never again head the party."

Representative Jack Beall of Texas concurred with Representative Garner in the opinion that prohibition would not be made a National issue by the Democratic Party and that Bryan could not make it such.

"We have local option in Texas," he said, "and three-quarters of the State is dry. But I don't see how Bryan can make it the leading National issue with the party, not only because such a plan is not feasible, but because he has reached the end of his tether. The great question is the tariff. It has been for seventy-five years, and will continue to be for some time longer."

NEW POSTAL CARD DESIGNS.

Postmaster General Approves Four—Martha Washington on One.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—Designs for the new postal cards have been approved by Postmaster General Hitchcock. They will be printed at the Government Printing Office.

On the ordinary card, the head of the late President McKinley will appear, as now, but a much better likeness has been chosen. On the new small card, intended for index purposes and for social correspondence, a picture of President Lincoln will appear. The two cent international card will bear a portrait of General Grant.

On the double, or reply, postal card, will appear a portrait of George Washington, while the stamp on the reply half will have a likeness of Martha Washington.

The borders of the stamps on all the cards will be diversified in design. On all of the cards the words "Postal Card," required by the Universal Postal Union Convention, will appear on the borders of the stamp and not, as now, as a separate inscription. The paper to be used is the best for the purpose yet manufactured.

Many Golf Tourney Plans.

Thanksgiving Day is being looked forward to by golfers the country over, for with many it marks the "last gasp" in a competitive way until next Spring. The East is particularly favored so far as tournaments are concerned, as attractive programmes have been arranged at Lakewood and Pinehurst. Furthermore, the seniors' tournament to be held at Lakewood on Wednesday will serve as an additional attraction, and already a host of veterans have sent in their names.

With the end of the metropolitan golf season in sight many devotees of the game are preparing to put their clubs aside for the Winter, a procedure that is always accompanied with regret, for the long lay-off means considerable work in the Spring ere one can hope to get back in his best form. In various quarters, however, the enthusiasts have determined to keep up their practice indoors, believing this as next best to going South.

Word of the latest indoor movement comes from Plainfield, where "Marty" O'Loughlin, the professional of the Country Club, has arranged to open an indoor school. O'Loughlin will be ready to begin operations in the Marsh Building, on Park Avenue, on Dec. 1, and a number of the most prominent golfers in Plainfield, including several women, have already joined the school.

Although rather late in the season for this kind of work, Charles Kirchner laid out another golf course the other day. It was a six-hole affair for Cragsmoor Inn, located on the top of the mountain at Cragsmoor, N. Y. This is about four miles from Ellenville.

CALDWELL, N. J., Nov. 21.—The convicts in the Essex County Penitentiary here who have been engaged in the aesthetic task of making handkerchiefs for a time will revert to the problem of converting big stones into little ones or discussions of the North Pole controversy to while away their leisure time.

The manufacture of handkerchiefs at the penitentiary, which has been going on for two years, will probably come to an end. Operations have been suspended because the Board of Freeholders directed last week that all handkerchiefs made at the penitentiary should be clearly stamped with the name of the institution and the fact that they are made there. This was in response to the opposition made against the prison labor contract by organized labor and the press of New Jersey.

Jerome M. Schwerin, a contractor, entered into an agreement with the county two years ago to pay at least $8,000 a year for the services of the convicts in making handkerchiefs. Schwerin has been stamping the boxes containing the handkerchiefs made at the penitentiary, but not the handkerchiefs themselves. He maintains that by doing this he is complying with the provisions of the law governing prison labor. County Counsel Munn contends, however, that each separate handkerchief should be stamped.

BARRED FROM DEATH BENEFIT

Union Excludes Heirs of Guardsmen Who Die on Strike Duty.

Word was received yesterday by the locals in this city of the Brickmakers and Terra Cotta Workers' nIternational Union, that the latter has not only forbidden members to join the National Guard, but has gone a step farther.

It has established a new rule by which the heirs of members who die while performing police or military duty will not receive death benefits of the union.

The rule, it was stated, applies to members of the National Guard in all States in peace or in war.

Canada Labor Unions Quit Americans.

It became known in labor circles in this city yesterday that the Grand Council of the Provincial Workingmen's Association of Canada has passed resolutions in favor of severing all connection with unions in the United States and against all affiliation with them. The American Federation of Labor has local branches in Canada and this is taken to mean that the Canadian body will withdraw its members from these branches in spite of the action of the A. F. of L. at its convention in favor of an international Federation of Labor.

CORNELL EARNED VICTORY.

Cross-Country Run Tables Show Ithacans Outclassed Opponents.

The victory of Cornell in the intercollegiate cross-country run was due to having a well-balanced team. The fifth man on the Ithacan team was eighth on the list of contestants. Ten colleges entered, each represented by seven runners, but five of whom qualified. Capt, Paull of the University of Pennsylvania was looked upon as a winner of the individual honors, but he did not start, and Cornell was tipped to furnish the first man over the line. T. S. Berna's race was the feature. His time was 33:05 1-5, which is remarkable for the broken technology course of six miles. He was pushed hard by W. H. Tappan, his team mate, who was but one minute behind him.

Matthew P. Halpin of the New York Athletic Club prepared a table which shows the position of every member at the finish with his time and the positions of the colleges by teams. The table shows May of Michigan third and Withington of Harvard fourth. Yale's first man, A. M. Haskell, was seventh. Watkins of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology was ninth, Norton, Syracuse, tenth, and Dorr, Columbia, eleventh. Dartmouth's first man was fifteenth, Princeton's twentieth, and Pennsylvania's twenty-second.

Cornell's victory was the eighth in ten years, and was so overwhelming as to leave no doubt as to the superiority of the team, both individually and as a whole. The summary of the finish follows:

BILLIARD TOURNEY STARTS.

Sutton and Demarest Meets in First Championship Game.

Six of the most expert cue wielders of the United States and France will contest this week, at the Madison Square Garden Concert Hall, for the 18.2 balk line world's championship. The tournament which is under the auspices of the Greater New York Roomkeepers' Association, will continue for seven days, and the prize will be $5,000 in added money and the net gate receipts. The money will be divided among the first four players, 40, 30, 20, and 10 per cent.

The opening game will be played at 8 o'clock to-night between George Sutton and Calvin Demarest of Chicago, and, judged by the work of the sextet of players in practice, new records should be hung up. It will be Demarest's first appearance in an important tournament, but he is a finished, skillful player, and is expected to make the veteran extend himself to win. To-morrow afternoon Sutton will play Harry P. Cline of Philadelphia, while the evening game will bring together Firmin Cassignol, the French expert, and Albert Cutler of Boston. All games will be at 500 points each, and the future pairings will depend on the outcome of the first three matches.

Leg Broken in a Football Game.

PATERSON, N. J., Nov. 21.—Stephen Fletcher of Newburg, N. Y., who came here to-day to play soccer football with the Wilberforce team of this city in a league game with the True Blues, also of this city, had his leg broken near the knee in a scrimmage shortly after the game began. Fletcher was carried from the field and taken to a local hospital. The True Blues won, 3 goals to 0.

YALE LEADS ALL IN 1909 FOOTBALL

Analysis of the Play in Saturday's Big Stadium Game.

COY THE MAN OF THE HOUR

The Blue Team and Its Exceptional Record—Michigan Picked for Third Place.

The record of the Yale 'Varsity of 1909 should in itself be proof positive to the critics and opponents of "new" and "open" football that a big college team can play it, can safely permit its opponents to play it, and still keep its own goal line inviolate.

Early in the current season rumors were rife that several of the so-called smaller institutions were going to propose a radical revision of the rules, with the intent of opening the game up. Thereby they hoped to accomplish several very desirable things. It was stated that if the game as it is now played were not reformed their teams could not and would not compete with the elevens of the larger universities, if for no other reason than that of the physical safety of the small college players. They proposed that certain kinds of mass plays should still be allowed, but that in the main the old-fashioned close formation plays be done away with—if not totally, then at least in great measure.

Immediately there emanated from the larger universities a very storm of protests against changing any of the distinctive features of college football. "Change or abolish the mass play, and you'll rob the game of its greatest feature and the only means whereby to score," was the chief contention of these opponents to reform. Yet, here is the Yale eleven that goes through a long and hard season and not only does it win all its games and become accredited as the 1909 champion, but it prevents all its opponents from scoring. Indeed, it went further. Not a single team that has faced the Blue this year has carried the ball across its 22-yard line, excepting on three occasions, itself a record unique in the annals of football.

Most of the opposition to a proper and real revision of the rules has come from Yale, Harvard, and Princeton, who alone of all the colleges that have football teams refused to join the association headed by Capt. Palmer E. Pierce of the Army, which undertook and compelled revision in 1905, and is now again demanding further reform. Yet if Yale can keep every one of the strong elevens she met in 1909 not alone from scoring, but also from getting close enough to her goal line to hope to score, what need has she to fear that further revision of the game, with a consequent opening of it, will menace her prestige?

Just as had been expected, Harvard played almost the same game against Yale that she did when Dartmouth invaded the Stadium the previous Saturday. The few differences might well have been omitted so far as hope for Crimson victory was concerned. For they consisted merely of an abortive, frivolous, foolish use of the double pass preceding a straight line plunge—a play long ago barred by the statute of football limitations. Particularly was this so against an eleven so proficient in gridiron fundamentals as was Yale's.

Both teams stuck rigidly to "old" football. Mass plays, resulting in an indescribable tangle of bodies, arms, and legs, followed mass plays in desultory, uninteresting fashion. There might as well not have been a football used, so far as the spectators could see, except when it was booted far down the field or left the right foot of Coy for a try at goal.

The versatility of the Blue attack, which has all season aroused the most friendly feeling and hopes that at last a really "big" eleven was opening up the play for the play's sake, and that the championship game would be replete with dashing, brilliant work, was almost entirely negligible.

Lilley's sudden and unfortunately early injury gave Coy his first chance of many to show that he was Captain of his eleven in fact as well as in name. The big tackle lay on the ground very white of face, helpless, and writhing in pain from two blows, one on the neck and one in the pit of the stomach. Mack, the Yale trainer, ran out to him, and tried to get him on his feet. Coy had by that time got a good look at the condition in which his forward was—and that look sufficed.

In quiet, subdued manner, and with that characteristic Coy smile, the Blue leader promptly called for Paul to take Lilley's place. Throughout the contest Coy continued that same masterful leadership of his men. Since McBride's time at New Haven there has been no such active Captain at Yale, and history records but few elsewhere. Coy won the game with his good right foot, of course. But no commendation is too high for his quiet, splendid sportsmanship, the sterling qualities of his leadership, and the superb manner in which he controlled every man on his team, because Coy was its Captain as well as its drop-kicking full back.

A detailed analysis of the play shows that there was a total of eighty-nine scrimmages during the game. Of these Yale had the ball in thirty-three, fifteen in the first half and eighteen in the second. Harvard had fifty-six altogether; twenty-eight of these, or almost twice the number of the Blue's, were in the first period and an equal number in the second. Strange to say, the number of first downs by rushing was exactly the same in each half and for each team. Yale made one and Harvard four in each period.

It comes as no surprise, then, to learn that in the first half Harvard gained 110 yards by rushing to Yale's forty; in the second half, Yale's total was sixty-six yards against Harvard's 102. It should not, however, be concluded from these figures that Yale was outplayed and saved herself only by dropkicking.

It should have been evident to the Crimson players that no team in the country—except on some fluke or by the greatest of luck with an end run—can gain consistently on old tactics against a team like Yale, or for any such distance as eighty or ninety yards to a touchdown. Yet this is what Harvard tried to do, not once, but many times.

In kicking, Yale's superiority—and therefore Coy's—over Harvard and Minot is unmistakable and startling. Excluding two highly successful field goals—both from very different angles—in four tries (strange to say, it was the easy ones which Coy missed) and the clever goal from placement by Hobbs—which was disallowed because of an official's blunder—Coy, in a total of 15 punts, averaged 41½ yards, while Minot's average for 19 kicks was only 31¼ yards. Yale booted the ball 365 yards in the first half and 259 in the second, a total of 624. Harvard's aggregate was 593 yards, of which 345 were in the first period and 248 in the second.

It becomes still further noticeable how badly Coy beat Minot in the kicking part of the game when it is noted that each man kicked seven times in the second half and that as a result of this duel Yale gained 11 yards, notwithstanding the Blue Captain shortened his kicks tremendously and deliberately to prevent a Harvard touchback.

In running punts back Yale gained 52 yards more than Harvard, a fact which general appearance belied. The Blue backs ran Minot's kicks up the field for 73 yards in the first half and 56 in the second, a total of 129. Harvard gained only 97 yards this way—54 in the first half and 43 in the second.

Viewing these kicks from the standpoint of the ends, it is no wonder that modern football demands inexhaustible courage, strength, stamina, resource, and speed from the flank men. Not only do they now have the ordinary defensive work which falls to their lot on opponents' end runs and tackle smashes to stop, but they must also be useful on the attack, to recover a forward pass, an onside kick, or, occasionally, even to carry the ball. Only a man who has been through that mill can ever tell of the body-racking and soul-stirring experiences that are always his in a big game.

Yale played such a clean game throughout that she was penalized only once, losing five yards in the second half for offside play. Harvard was mulcted four times in the first half and five times in the second, losing, for these infractions, fifty-five yards in the first and fifty yards in the second half. Even this large total of 105 yards would have been greater but that the Crimson was three times so near her own goal line when guilty of trespasses against the rules that the full fifteen yards could not be imposed. The Crimson saved at least fifteen yards in these three cases.

BIG RECEIPTS FOR YALE.

New Haven Team Picks Up $80,000 for Football Season.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 21.—Members of the Yale football squad returned home to-day in relays, only two or three failed to arrive, but because of their absence it has been decided not to hold the annual election for Captain till after Thanksgiving. Predictions on the choice are about evenly divided between Kilpatrick and Daly, half back. Head Coach Howard Jones, who returned with the eleven, immediately departed for Syracuse, where he will assist his brother, Tad Jones, Syracuse's head coach, on the whipping into form of that team for the Thanksgiving Day game with Fordham, New York City. Tad this year replaced Howard as director of the Syracuse regime.

Yale's football receipts for the season will amount to about $80,000. Of this Yale's share from the Harvard game is about $34,000, and from the Princeton game about $33,100. From the Brown game it was some $6,000 and from minor games about $6,000. The team's expenses will be about $40,000 for the season.

At Yale it is believed now that the question of revision of the rules will take precedence over that of a new stdium. precedence over that of a new stadium. to be completed in this city for the Yale-Harvard game next Fall, as work could not be begun till next Spring, and it is thought that the Yale-Harvard match next November will take place in the present Yale wooden stands.

HARVARD LOOKS AHEAD.

Plans for Next Season's Campaign Are Already Being Considered.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 21.—Hardly had the smoke of battle lifted from the Stadium when next season's football campaign was on. The first and most important step in connection with the construction of a next year's eleven at Harvard will be the selection of a new head coach. The all-important question wherever the crimson banner floats is: "Will Percy D. Haughton be at the helm of the Harvard bark?" Haughton has sacrificed much valuable time from business affairs to give his Alma Mater a winner. When he made his decision to take this year's eleven in hand he said it was for the last time. But when the Harvard points of the case are presented to him from every conceivable side he may capitulate and agree to return next year. In the event of Haughton's refusal, Charley Daly or Dave Campbell would both make good leaders for the eleven. The election of a new Captain will probably not be held for a week at least.

Five who started the game are juniors, Corbett, Minot and Leslie in the backfield and McKay and L. Withington in the line. The two most likely to lead of these are Corbett and Minot. The latter pulled through his studies this year by the skin of his teeth and only the hardest of application will keep him eligible. An eleven with its captain in such a predicament would be handicapped from the season's very beginning. Of the sixteen men who faced Yale Saturday, only five will be lost by graduation. They are Capt. Fish, G. G. Browne, F. Houghton, P. Withington and D. O'Flaherty. The coaches should find but little trouble in filling their places, as the substitutes and freshman eleven furnish a most fruitful nucleus to draw from.

Fordham Prepares for Syracuse.

Tad Jones will bring his Syracuse warriors to New York Thanksgiving Day for a game with the fast Fordham team, at American League Park. The Salt City aggregation has experienced a long run of hard luck, but their plucky game against Illinois on Saturday shows that Jones has at last whipped his team into shape. The Fordham team played almost entirely on the defensive in the first half. The Holy Cross backs were so worn out from their efforts in carrying the ball that the Fordham team was able to come back strong in the second half and outplay the Worcester team at all stages of the game. It was announced yesterday that "Dad" White and Capt. Gargon would be able to play against Syracuse. The team came out of the Holy Cross contest in fine physical condition.

Marksmen Make Good Scores at Larchmont Y. C. Shoot.

The week-end shoot of the Larchmont Yacht Club yesterday was the most successful of the season in point of attendance and work at the traps. The bright Autumn day was keenly enjoyed by everybody, and the air and sun warmed up competitors to close scores. C. W. Billings won the ten-bird event, and also won the scratch cup for the highest day's score. W. J. Elias won the fifteen-bird scratch event, but the main honors of the day went to John Morrison and Dr. W. B. Short, the former being in good form. The scores:

Soccer Teams in Close Games.

After an interval of a fortnight, due to the presence in this vicinity of the Pilgrims of England, the championship series of the New York Amateur Association Football League was resumed yesterday. At Marquette Oval, in Brooklyn, the Clan MacDonalds, winners of the Sunday series of last season, were opposed to an eleven of the Brooklyn Football Club and won by the score of 2 goals to 0, one being shot in each period of play.

In the presence of 8,000 spectators at West Side Park in Jersey City yesterday the National League team of the Brooklyn Football Club administered defeat to the eleven of the Jersey A. C. in a championship game by the score of 2 goals to 0. Both tallies were made in the first half.

BUSY DAY FOR OARSMEN.

Club Houses on the Harlem River Presented Lively Appearance.

It was as fair as a June day on the Harlem River yesterday, and there was unusual activity at many of the rowing clubs. The fine weather attracted the oarsmen in large numbers, and dozens of gigs, doubles, and a few four-oared and eight-oared shells were on the river for practice spins. The Lone Stars had an eight-oared and a four-oared shell out, and a dozen singles were out from the Nassau Boat Club. The Nonpareils, Metropolitans, and Harlems were also represented among the collection of oarsmen on the river.

Several members of the Nassau Boat Club took an eighteen-mile tramp yesterday morning from Yorktown Heights to Pocantico Hills. The walking club plans to take a long walk every Sunday during the Winter. At the annual election of the Nassaus, recently held, the following officers were elected: President—Charles M. De La Vergne; Vice President—Robert S. Kennedy; Secretary—Emilio Desvernine; Treasurer—George G. Allen; Captain—I. L. Carbonell; Lieutenant—Joseph Thompson; Second Lieutenant—Garnet W. McIndoe. The Board of Trustees consists of the officers, and also C. F. Muller, O. J. Stephens, Donald Nicoll, F. D. Clark, and John W. McCarthy.

The boat clubs along the Harlem are arranging billiard and pool tournaments for the Winter months, and there is much activity on the bowling alleys and handball courts. The boat clubs will also have beefsteak dinners, smokers, and dances during the cold weather to keep the members interested.

OLD GLORY HORSE SALE.

Over 800 Trotters and Pacers to Go Under the Hammer.

Some of the choicest consignments of the annual Old Glory sale will be offered to-day at Madison Square Garden. Nearly 140 horses are down on the catalogue for disposal, many of which are among the most fashionably bred steppers in the country. The lot includes Susie G. and Golden, Jr., well known among the Speedway brigade, while the balance of the horses to be offered include descendants of Santos, the dam of Peter the Great, and such stallions as Bingen, Peter the Great, Jay McGregor, and Great Heart.

Over 800 pacers and trotters will be offered during the sale, including the entire stable of President James Butler of the Empire Racing Association, who has decided to retire from the light-harness sport.

Cornell's Big Hospital List.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 21.—With three of the star players in the infirmary, only four days before the final battle of the year with Pennsylvania, the Cornell football team will begin work to-morrow afternoon, perfecting the few new plays that will be used, although the practice will be very light on account of the physical condition of the men. The squad went for a tramp through the hills this afternoon, although a heavy rain cut short their walk. By the orders of the doctor, the coaches will make no further efforts to develop the eleven, hoping that the continued rest may get the injured men into condition by Thursday. The squad will leave for Wayne, Penn., on Tuesday night. Indications point to a record-breaking Cornell crowd at the game.

ANOTHER TEAM DISBANDS.

President W. H. Brown of Berkeley School Bars Football.

The number of deaths and serious injuries resulting from the season's football contests, which as announced in yesterday's TIMES amounted to 26 killed and 70 gravely injured, has led the Berkeley School, Seventy-second Street and West End Avenue, to follow the course of a number of other institutions—the disbanding of the team and the cancellation of the rest of the schedule of contests.

How this came about is shown in a letter to the headmasters of Berkeley School by William H. Brown, President of the corporation. The letter reads:

Nov. 19, 1909.

Dr. Edwin Fowler,
Mr. J. Clark Read,
Headmasters Berkeley School, City.

My dear Sirs: In view of the numerous requests from parents that their sons should not play football, and of the dangers of the game under the present rules, I have, after due consideration of the subject, decided to order the disbanding of the team, and the cancellation of any and all games after the one with Heathcote Hall to-morrow—which we are in honor bound to play.

I am very much in favor of all sports and other forms of athletics whereby skill, endurance, and courage are developed, and Berkeley is irrevocably committed, both by tradition and her general policy, to the encouraging of bodily as well as mental development; but I do not feel that we can afford to assume responsibility for continuing a game which is likely to result in the injury, maiming, or even death of some of our boys. It is my opinion that the rules will have to be modified very materially in the near future, and when they are there will be no more enthusiastic supporter of ten game and none more ready to take advantage of its many excellent points than Berkeley School.

You will please post an order to this effect on the Bulletin Board, and send a copy of this letter to all parents.

Believe me,
Yours sincerely,
WILLIAM H. BROWN,
President of the Corporation.

The game with Heathcote Hall of which Mr. Brown speaks was played on Saturday at Harrison, N. Y. It resulted in a defeat for Berkeley. Only one game remained on the schedule yet to be played.

Come to the Tel-Electric Building For Your Piano or Piano-Player

Here you will find an entire building devoted to the display of pianos and piano-players. Each of the several makes of pianos which we represent has been selected by us for its superiority in its particular class.

Here you will also find the Tel-Electric piano-player, the Master Musician, the player which has revolutionized its field, and which is destined to entirely eliminate the Old Style Pneumatic Players.

The Metropolitan Home of The World's Finest Pianos

We are agents for the well-known Ivers & Pond Piano, representing the piano manufacturer's finest art. We also can offer for your consideration the time-tried and reliable Mathushek, a piano of sterling quality, and other pianos of still more moderate price.

No matter how small or how large the limit of your purse may be, you are sure to get the greatest value for your money here—and you will get a Good Piano.

The Home of the Tel-Electric The World's Finest Piano-Player

The Tel-Electric piano-player is attachable to any piano, either grand or upright. It does not obstruct the key-board and may be placed as far from your piano as you wish, allowing you to be one of the audience and the player at the same time. It requires no pumping, being operated by electricity, although electric current in the house is not necessary. It is the most wonderful musical invention of the day.

A Department for Slightly Used Pianos

We have always on hand a variety of the best known makes of pianos taken in part payment for Tel-Electric players and pianos. These pianos are in splendid condition and include both grands and uprights of the following makes:

STEINWAY SOHMER IVERS & POND KNABE
A. B. CHASE FISCHER KRANICH & BACH HARDMAN

We will make the terms to suit you.

GRANDS from $250 upwards. PLAYERS from $50 upwards. UPRIGHTS from $125 upwards.

Send us a postal for a complete list of Special Holiday Offerings and Catalogues of Ivers & Pond, Fischer and Mathushek Pianos.

These three contributed generously.

England, Germany and France.

We decided to have a real LEATHER GOODS Department.

Not only the usual sort of leather goods you expect to find in first rate stores.

But novelties—odd pieces—the quality that makes a man wish all his Christmas presents could come from such a stock.

Our buyers went abroad.

In London they found small leather articles, typical of British solidity and thought for the comfort of travel and toilet.

In Paris they found beautiful writing cases, smokers' articles and clever accessories for motoring.

In Germany they looked up metal novelties and odd things showing the ingenuity which has sent around the world the legend "Made in Germany."

The best of all they brought back.

We never believe in doing things half heartedly.

The Department opens with most attractive displays.

We expect to keep them constantly replenished.

Our buyers in Europe will be looking out always for the newest wrinkles of the highest class.

Incidentally, our prices on these goods, as on all our stocks, are regularly less than is asked by dealers making an exclusive business of such specialties.

Here are some suggestions—things for men to buy for themselves, for women to buy for men, and some things for men to buy for women.

LAWSON'S JAP WINS, DRIVEN BY A CHILD

Youthful Pilot Shows Clever Work Against Veterans of the Speedway.

COMPETES IN SIX HEATS

Coast Marie Has Best of One Heat with Minnie Albert, and Kim Also Shows Well.

Driven by his seven-year-old child, Thomas Lawson's Jap yesterday gave some of the veterans of the Speedway a lively series of brushes, and many of the victories went to the credit of Jap and the young pilot. Thomas Lawson was in the wagon, and the child sat on his lap doing all of the driving in about half a dozen brushes. Jap showed all of his speed, and in the concluding race of the day took a clever victory from Hugh Reilley's Lucy by a margin of a length. While the brushes of yesterday were not of quite as high calibre as those of the past week, the sight of the Jap driven by a child and defeating some of the best of the Speedway horses gave the crowd that lined the course a great deal of amusement.

Brushes were opened by E. B. McGaffney, driving Sadie Mack and Lady Tasteful, with William O'Neil in the wagon, the pair having four heats, three of which were won by the former. The Huber contingent appeared next, George H. Huber driving Kalomia and Trainer Fox Frankie Pandit, both of which stayed in the contests from start to finish.

For a warming up heat Kalomia beat Frankie and this alone was the day's family fight. The pair next entered in a four-cornered brush which was won by William Scott's Hycintha driven by Joseph F. Gibbons, the others being Kalomia, May Posey and Frankie Pandit, finishing as named. In a three-cornered brush Hycintha again won, but this time Frankie and Kalomia changed positions.

Before turning Hycintha to Mr. Scott, Gibbons won another three-cornered brush by beating Pot Roast, driven by A. Brower and Thomas G. Hinds' Mona Wilkes. The last named, however, showed some of her old time speed by winning a brush from Fashion and another from Joe Jap and two others.

James A. Murphy first drove his pacing mare Coast Marie against S. B. Wolf's pacer Minnie Albert and won by half a length. Trainer Jesse Smith came up with Mr. Murphy's trotter Kim, and won a three-cornered brush from Trixie H., driven by Gus Osburn, and Andrew Crawford's Composer. After being beaten by Kim, Composer and Trixie H. went together in two heats which proved close and interesting, both being won by the former in close margins.

Dido, driven by R. O. Curry, was in a number of hot brushes, and as a rule came out in front. In a three-cornered race she beat Greame Grattan and L. Metzger's Tommy Brown, and in another closely fought brush she appeared in front with Frankie Pandit and Greame Grattan.

Rose Electrite, driven by E. Bottemus, won a three-cornered brush from Mosely L. and Trixie H., and showed the way later to William Cook's El Paso in two brushes. J. H. Lawrence, with Strathino, lost a heat to El Paso, but at the finish had the two necessary heats to his credit. Mosely L. tried hard to win from C. Hackett's Sally A., but both efforts proved futile. Mosely was beaten again by Legannon, and in a three-cornered brush finished third to Strathino and Sally A. Pot Roast easily disposed of El Paso, but in a start against William Scott's Kitty Wilkes, driven by Trainer Sam Goldsmith, he finished a distant second. El Paso finished his many brushes by winning two from Mosely L. There was an interesting contest between Fred Dietz's Fashion and L. Metzger's Tommy Brown, the former winning both in close finishes. Lucy's best win of the day was a heat from Hycintha.

OLDFIELD BREAKS RECORD.

New Mark Made for New Orleans Track—Marmon Again Wins.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 21.—Barney Oldfield, in a 200-horse-power Benz, to-day broke the local track record for one mile at the Fair Ground course, when he made the distance in 0:54, thus clipping one-fifth of a second off the record, made last February by De Palma. The second day's races of the New Orleans Automobile Club proved much better than the first in every way.

Kirscher, a German driver, brought to this country by W. H. Pickens, and who drives the latter's Darracq, won a ten-mile handicap in 10:35, and in a match race with Oldfield for five miles lost only by about the width of a tire. The time was 5:17 3-5.

The last event of the afternoon, the 100-mile race, was won by Ray Harroun of Chicago in a Marmon car, in 1:47:14. John Aitken, in a National, looked a sure winner, and at the end of eighty miles led Harroun by a full mile. Up to this time his car ran without a stop, but it ignited, and he was forced to withdraw, and Harroun won. Basle, in his Renault, was second, and Cowell, in a Chalmers-Detroit, was third.

In an effort to lower the world's fifty-mile record Barney Oldfield, in a Benz car, blew a tire in the eighteenth mile, and the trial was declared off. The first fifteen miles were made in 14:04.

The best time to-day for ten miles was 10:16 3-5, made by Kirscher in a free-for-all handicap. He finished second to Basle, in a Renault, who had a handicap of 1:15.

The summary:

Ten-Mile Handicap.—Won by Darracq, Kirscher, (scratch;) National, Aitken, (25 seconds,) second; Marmon, Harroun, (scratch,) third. Time—10:55.

Five-Mile Southern Championship, Open to Amateurs or Chauffeurs.—Won by National, Speer; Marmon, Swoboda, second; Buick, Walker, third. Time—5:30.

Mile Trial for Fair Grounds Track Record of 0:54 1-5, Held by De Palma.—Benz, Oldfield, lowered record one-fifth of a second.

Ten-Mile Free-for-All Handicap.—Won by Renault, Basle, (1:15;) Darracq, Kirscher, (scratch,) second; Marmon, Harroun, (40 seconds,) third. Time—11:21.

Five-Mile New Orleans Championship.—Won by Buick, Walker. Time—6:15.

Five-Mile Special Match Race.—Won by Benz, Oldfield; Darracq, Kirscher, second. Time—5:17 3-5.

100 Miles.—Won by Marmon, Harroun; Renault, Basle, second; Chalmers-Detroit, Cowell, third. Time—1:47:14.

SHORTER HILL CLIMB.

Distance of the Edgewater Contest Reduced to 3,000 Feet.

In the interest of safety the distance of the Edgewater-Fort Lee automobile hill climbing contest Thanksgiving Day morning has been shortened from one mile to 3,000 feet. Officials of the Edgewater-Fort Lee Automobile Association, and of the Motor Contest Association, went over the course yesterday with several prospective competitors, to determine the safety of the course and the best starting and finishing points. They found that the route as orginally laid out included a dangerous turn near the point where the actual climb begins, and, therefore, decided to cut out that element of danger by starting the contest at the actual base of the hill. From this point to the crest, or the last pitch in the village of Fort Lee, is an even 3,000 feet, which in both distance and grade will afford one of the best tests of hill climbing power ever offered in the East.

The turn that has been eliminated had been objected to by practically all of the entrants, so that the slight shortening of the course will be a welcome one to the competitors. Because of the fact that the starting point begins at a rise, a rolling start will be permitted.

Because of the reckless speeding of a few automobiles over the course within the last few days, the authorities of the two boroughs have decided that no more speeding shall be permitted on the until the morning of the contest. Entrants may drive over the course as often as they wish, provided they observe the legal speed limits. This will give them plenty of opportunity to study the route, and at the same time obviate the chance of disaster. In this action the local officials are backed up by the Edgewater-Fort Lee Automobile Association, which has stationed guards at the ferry gates at Edgewater to warn all automobilists against speeding on the hill.

M'CULLOUGH LEADS AMATEUR HARRIERS

Beats Jameson and Foran in Close Struggle Over the Glencoe A. C. Course.

BIG FIELD OF STARTERS

Winner Finishes the Three-and-a-Half-Mile Course in 19:45, with Eight Yards Lead.

From a big field of starters, F. McCullough of the Borough Athletic Club yesterday captured first place in the weekly cross-country run of the Glencoe Athletic Club, 126th Street and Second Avenue, after one of the best races of the season. Over the entire distance of three and a half miles McCullough, Jameson of the Glencoe Athletic Club, and Frank Foran of the Mott Haven Athletic Club fought it out for the victory and at the finish the three were well bunched. There was only a margin of six seconds between the time of the three leaders when the line was crossed, and there was only a matter of about eight yards between McCullough and Jameson. No cross-country event this year has brought out such a hard struggle, and a hundred yards from the finish it was uncertain which one of the three would be able to put forth the reserve power necessary to win.

It was a big field that started in the event, there being 101 athletes lined up when the word was given. Of this number 93 went over the full distance. The order of finish:

Name and Club.	Time. M.S.
F. McCullough, Borough A. C.	19:45

Vanderan Takes Road Race.

The five and a half mile cross-country run of the Kings County Athletic Association was held in Brooklyn yesterday, J. Vanderan, who had the limit handicap of six minutes, winning. His time was 35 minutes. R. Koppe, with the same handicap, was second, finishing 75 yards behind the winner.

Beggs Captures Long Run.

The six-mile road race under the auspices of Loughlin Lyceum of Brooklyn was won yesterday by R. T. Beggs of Trinity Club. His teammate, E. Swarn, was second, finishing about 200 yards behind Beggs. Beggs took the lead at the start and held it all the way. His time was 36:40.

COATES AGAIN VICTOR.

Pastime Runner Easily Best in Mott Haven Cross-Country.

H. Coates of the Pastime Athletic Club added another cross-country victory to his credit yesterday in the weekly event of the Mott Haven Athletic Club over a six-mile course in the Bronx. His time for the distance was 33:30, and from early in the first mile until the finish he was never headed. When the line was crossed there was a big margin of difference between Coates and Kiernan of the Mott Haven Athletic Club, who finished second. J. Ring of the Stag Athletic Club looked to be a contender for a position well up with the leaders until the fourth mile, when he injured his leg, and it was only with difficulty that he was able to finish. Devlin and Kirkwood, both of the Mott Haven Athletic Club, went over the six-mile distance twice in preparation for the Yonkers Marathon. The order of finish was:

Name and Club.	Time.
H. Coates, Pastime A. C.	33:30

Fitzgibbons Wins Cross-Country Run.

E. Fitzgibbons of the Irish-American Athletic Club yesterday won the cross-country run of the Morris Evening High School Athletic Association after a hard tussle during the last mile with J. Taub of the Pastime Athletic Club, who finished only ten seconds behind the leader. The course was six and a half miles, starting at the clubhouse at Sixty-second Street and Grand Avenue to High Bridge and return to the clubhouse by way of Gerard and Jerome Avenues. There were forty starters in the run, and the first twelve men to finish were as follows:

Name and Club.	Finish. M.S.
E. Fitzgibbons, Irish-American A. C.	37:00

Traub Finishes First.

Starting from scratch, M. Taub outdistanced the thirty-two starters yesterday of the Harlem Evening High School cross country run. Taub caught the leader about one mile from home and won by 200 yards. This is the first time the scratch man has captured the run this season. His time for the four miles over a rough course was 22:10. The first ten finished as follows:

Wrestling at Grand Central Palace.

The wrestling game will be revived to-night at Grand Central Palace when Con O'Kelly and Pat Connolly, both of whom claim the championship of Ireland, meet in a finish match, catch as catch can, best two out of three falls. George Bothner will referee the match. Preceding the main bout several contests will be put on. The best among them are Neil Olsen, "The Great Dane," vs. George Schnable, "The Bavarian Bull"; Fritz Mohl of Switzerland vs. Carl Hibbs, "The Saxon Giant," and Eberhardt Halm of Germany and the well-known "Young Atlas."

Havana Defeats Detroit.

HAVANA, Nov. 21.—The Havana baseball team to-day defeated the Detroit Americans by a score of 4 to 3.

The Franklin new air-cooling system is more efficient and reliable than any water-cooling system.

The Franklin air-cooling system for 1910 is the sensation of the year. It marks an important era in automobile history.

It removes every objection, real or fancied, that ever existed against air cooling, and places air cooling in the unchallenged lead.

Our air-cooling system is simple and positive. The engine cylinders have vertical flanges. Around each cylinder close to the flanges is a sheet metal air jacket open at the top. These jackets with their continuous base and the engine boot form an air tight compartment. At the rear of this compartment is the suction-fan engine fly-wheel. This fly-wheel fan draws the air in large volume through the air jacket down around each cylinder. The air that passes one cylinder does not pass any other cylinder. Each cylinder is individually cooled, and each has an equal and large supply of fresh air. The front fan formerly used is dispensed with.

Compare our air-cooling system and the water-cooling system with its many mechanical elements and complications. Our system cannot fail to work. There is nothing to get out of order. On the other hand the water system with its fan, pump, radiator, soldering, joints and piping is subject to disablement, leakage and freezing. And see the saving in weight.

You can if you wish satisfy yourself that under severe work the Franklin engine cools perfectly when many water-cooled engines give trouble from overheating.

"At one hotel in the mountainous country, during a stop for luncheon I saw six high-class, water-cooled cars come in overheated while my Franklin was not abnormally heated at any time.
"Hudson Maxim.
"Oct. 8, 1909."

The Franklin air-cooled engine is the most efficient and economical of all automobile engines. The Franklin has held the world's economy record for years, and in July last a 1910 Franklin at Buffalo, N. Y., set a new mark, bettering our previous world's record by 31 per cent. In this contest the Franklin outdid the nearest of its twenty competitors by 50 per cent.

The Franklin is economical and reliable all the way through. It does not strain and rack itself; there is not the deterioration and the rattle and noise which develop in other automobiles.

As to the new cooling system—its success is already written in the open book of owners' experience. Delivery of 1910 models began in June, six months ago. Hundreds are in daily use.

Franklins are built in three chassis sizes, four- and six-cylinder, with bodies covering the whole range of touring cars, runabouts, close-coupled, limousines, landaulets, town cars and taxicabs.

The three touring cars offer a choice in size and power best suited to your needs. Model H, 42 horse power, seating seven, is the peer of all six-cylinder automobiles. Model D, 28 horse power, is the ideal city and family touring car. Model G, 18 horse power, is the only high-grade small touring car made in America.

With every refinement known in the art of closed car building, the Franklin, because of its unequalled riding qualities, is the most luxurious and comfortable of all closed automobiles.

Note—Even if you are not going to purchase now, you are very welcome to call and inspect the new models.

AN IMPOSSIBLE LAW.

Under the decision of the United States Circuit Court decreeing the dissolution of the Standard Oil Company, and under previous judicial interpretations of the Anti-Trust act of 1890, it becomes impossible to do business upon any large scale in this country without violating the provisions of that statute. Certainly no business built up by combining independent concerns, under any form of agreement contract or ownership, can be lawfully carried on, and the controlling owners of such business, if it involve in any degree inter-State transactions, expose themselves every day to the penalties of the act.

The fount and origin of the sea of troubles that thus menaces all the larger business interests of the land lies in the ill-considered language of the act itself, which declares unlawful "every contract, combination in the form of a trust or otherwise or conspiracy in restraint of trade or commerce among the several States," further declaring it to be a misdemeanor to attempt to monopolize or combine or conspire with others to monopolize "any part" of such trade or commerce; and in the decision of the Supreme Court in the Trans-Missouri Freight Association case, the late Justice PECKHAM writing the opinion, declaring that the language of the statute is "not limited to that kind of contract alone which is in unreasonable restraint of trade, but all contracts are involved in such language," without exception or limitation. This abolished at once the familiar distinction of the common law between reasonable and unreasonable restraints, and moved Justice WHITE to say in his dissenting opinion that such a construction of the act "would be violative of reason because it would include all those contracts which are the very essence of trade, and would be equivalent to saying that there should be no trade and therefore nothing to restrain."

Nevertheless, the Justices of the Circuit Court, in the Standard Oil case, accept in its utmost rigor the Peckham doctrine, and in their unanimous opinion (printed in full in THE TIMES of yesterday) embody a syllabus of pertinent rules, established by controlling authority, for the interpretation of the Act of 1890, which as a convenient manual for many thousands of misdemeanants we here reprint:

> The test of the legality of a contract or combination under this act is its direct and necessary effect upon competition in inter-State or international commerce.
>
> If the necessary effect of a contract, combination, or conspiracy is to stifle, or directly and substantially to restrict, free competition in commerce among the States or with foreign nations, it is a contract, combination, or conspiracy in restraint of that trade and it violates this law.
>
> The parties to it are presumed to intend the inevitable result of their acts, and neither their actual intent nor the reasonableness of the restraint imposed may withdraw it from the denunciation of the statute.
>
> The exchange of the stock or shares in the ownership of competitive corporations engaged in inter-State commerce for stock or shares in the ownership of a single corporation, the necessary effect of which is a direct and substantial restriction of competition in that commerce constitutes a combination in restraint of commerce among the States or with foreign nations that is declared illegal by this law.

One of these priceless rules of interpretation we must immediately quote again, for it is fundamental to an understanding of this strange law and of the still stranger constructions put upon it in the courts:

> The parties to it [that is any contract in restraint of trade] are presumed to intend the inevitable results of their acts, and neither their actual intent nor the reasonableness of the restraint imposed may withdraw it from the denunciation of the statute.

This is a gem of the purest crystallized unreason. The parties to the contract intend, so the law presumes, certain "inevitable results," the real monopolistic, oppressive, and harmful restraint of trade, and as these results are "inevitable," unescapable, they can intend no other or different result, yet this "pertinent rule" goes on to say that even though perchance they may actually intend others, others that are reasonable and wholesome, nevertheless the teeth of the law will grip them. Inasmuch as when one result is inevitably intended no other can possibly be intended, this "pertinent rule" must be held to have blown off its own head by the explosive action of the incompatible elements it contains.

And this impossible rule supplies the key to the impossible interpretations which the courts have put upon this impossible law. All through the opinion of Justice SANBORN in the Standard Oil case there runs a discussion of the restraint of trade through the destruction of competition. "The defendants and their associates acquired the control of a majority of the stock of more than thirty corporations, many of which were potentially and mutually competitive, prevented their competition by means of this ownership," &c., &c. "It has prevented and is preventing any competition in inter-State and international commerce in petroleum and its products between its subordinate companies." Unquestionably, yet before the Standard Oil Trust was formed, from 1872 to 1879, refined petroleum in barrels sold in New York at 23 cents per gallon, 18 cents, 13, 19, 15, and 10 cents, these being the average prices for the years mentioned, while to-day it sells at 8½ cents. The lawmakers and the courts have glued their eyes upon the fact of competition, utterly disregarding the fruits of competition. Competition should bear fruits of brisk trade and low prices. It may exist in fact yet yield bankruptcy and high prices. Monopoly may technically "restrain trade" by bringing competitors under one control, yet may at the same time out of feeble and scattered enterprises build up a great industry, supplying its commodities at lower prices than any at which competition could offer them. The Standard Oil Company has throttled competition; it has, of course, "restrained trade," yet under its blighting ministration the production of petroleum has increased from 2,033,331,972 gallons in 1894 to 5,312,745,312 in 1907, and during the last decade it has exported illuminating oil to the value of more than fifty million dollars annually. The Northern Securities concern was destroyed for restraining trade, yet the combination it effected did not increase, but lowered, freight rates, and it formed a part of Mr. HILL's projected trade route from the heart of this continent to the Far East.

Although this Government has abolished railroad competition, it seems, through its Congress and its courts, to have made an idol of industrial competition, and before that image it prostrates itself in perpetual prayer, appealing, not for the benefits, not for the real, the substantial, and salutary fruits of competition, but beseeching the senseless stone thing to sit there forever, silent, sterile, empty, to the end that the acts of daily adoration may continue. The courts cannot justly be criticised for giving effect to the laws Congress enacts, even though they be ill-considered, revolutionary, and injurious to the trade and commerce they aim to protect. The opinion of the Circuit Court rests altogether upon a blind solicitude for the mere thing competition, for there is not a word in it charging the Standard Oil Company with denial of the fruits of competition—lower prices to the consumer. But the Act of 1890 also worships the shadow and ignores the substance. The court must take the law as it is.

That the law should be permitted to remain what it is would be shocking to the moral and business sense of the country. The Standard Oil Company has been a great sinner, but that furnishes no reason why innocent business methods should be punished, or why Justice should have her scales strapped over her already bandaged eyes. President ROOSEVELT has urged Congress to amend the law by removing its bars upon "restraints" that are merely technical, not unreasonable and not harmful, restraints that the English law has always permitted. President TAFT shares the opinion and the desire of his predecessor, and Attorney General WICKERSHAM is understood to be engaged in preparing an amendment to the act. We feel sure that if the Senators and Representatives will read with an open mind the opinion in the Standard Oil case and will candidly weigh the objections to the law they will enact such changes as will convert it into a reasonable and workable statute, which it is not now.

IN THE LIMELIGHT AGAIN.

Mr. BRYAN's reported belief that he has owed his series of brilliant defeats to the "liquor interests" is new and ingenious. It is characteristic for Mr. BRYAN to attribute his defeats to others than himself. His plan to take up prohibition as a "living issue" for a new campaign, reported in a dispatch from Lincoln, Neb., to THE SUNDAY TIMES, is, however, worth knowing about. It must be confessed that it is not necessarily "bad politics" three years before a National election. It will cause trouble in the Democratic Party, but Mr. BRYAN is a Bryan man, not a Democrat.

Prohibition is, in a sense, a "living issue" in the South, and in many Northern States as well. Mr. BRYAN's espousal of the cause will serve to keep his name fresh in the public mind. He needs new issues, and he cannot be expected at this late day to adopt wise ones of great National moment. Already Mr. BRYAN's new policy is making enemies for him in Nebraska. But he is used to enemies, and he knows it will bring new followers to his standard. That he will promulgate views on the liquor question sounder and more rational than his views on the larger public questions is not to be expected. But he will keep himself in the limelight, which is the great end of his being.

IN QUESTIONABLE TASTE.

It will occur to some of the countrymen of President WHEELER, "Roosevelt Professor" at Berlin, that he could have found to discuss in Cologne a more appropriate theme than American dislike of being "taken for English." His audience was the Cologne Association for the Cultivation of Political Science, but the topic had more to do with a certain sort of rather cheap, and possibly mischievous, politics than with science of any sort.

Of course no man of sense likes to be "taken for" anything he really is not. Dr. WHEELER need only to go from Prussia into other parts of the great German Empire to discover resentment of that sort. A Bavarian who obviously tried to talk like a North German would be regarded as a snob, and would probably be one. A self-respecting Bavarian would resent being mistaken for a Prussian, while Prussians would look on a corresponding error as an insult. These are local and limited phenomena of no particular importance outside of Germany. But it happens that there is a good deal of disagreeable feeling between the Germans and the English, and an American professor has no call to contribute to it. It was understood that the exchange of professors between Germany and the United States was intended to foster good understanding between the two peoples. It could hardly have been intended to fan ill-feeling between either of the countries and a third one.

A BRITISH MARE'S NEST.

The Suffragettes seem to have inflicted on conservative minds in the United Kingdom something like the panic aroused by the German Navy. The very name of woman is getting to be something to scare babes (boy babes) with. Visions of what women may do torment the dreams and haunt the waking hours of men who a few months ago thought of the matter with no emotion more acute than amused perplexity.

Naturally The London Saturday Review, which is the most vulgar in its treatment of the sex, is the most perturbed by its possibilities. And, naturally also, its agitated thoughts turn most readily to America—a country that has a curious fascination for hyper-excited British Conservatives. The particular source of its latest alarm is the announcement that "a financier lately left fifteen or twenty millions sterling to his widow, besides houses and lands," and that there are a dozen more women, all American, whose fortunes not only "pass record, but beggar imagination." The beggared imagination of the writer then turns to the problem of what will become of the vast fortunes. He concludes that they will pass "with accumulations either to a second husband—not much to be envied—or to an heir of the second generation." And at this point begins the procession of terrible opportunities at the contemplation of which the reviewer stands aghast.

An "agitator" with millions on millions at his command might set at work in "Austria with a dozen hostile races, or Spain with a Pretender waiting his opportunity and Republicans eager to try again, or Russia, or Italy, or Great Britain with Ireland eternally irreconcilable." "A few of his thousands" might "suffice to expel the Kings of Greece and Servia; the Bulgarian Czar could be dismissed almost as cheaply." "He might buy up the clans of Albania bodily, and restore the throne of Scandeberg." To an American all this seems like the forced product of a hack mind set to earn a guinea or two by supplying thrills to the jaded feelings of The Saturday's select circle of readers. The writer himself acknowledges that it "may sound fantastic." And he proceeds to offer a suggestion which he protests is "not so":

> This may sound fantastic; not so the marriage of one of these widows, or stupendous heiresses, to a princelet who lacked only money to raise a host of fanatics, adventurers, and brigands. Patriots, too, with a grievance might well be tempted to mischief when they found themselves possessed of boundless wealth—in Bohemia, for instance, or Hungary, the Lithuanian Provinces of Russia, or the Polish of Posen. The American wife would be more likely to encourage the enterprise perhaps than to dissuade them.

One cannot readily see in what respect this vision is less "fantastic" than that confessed to be so by its inventor, but it is plain that he finds it so because an American woman is directly involved. Here we have the reflex influence of the Suffragette panic acting in conjunction with The Saturday Review's dread of anything and everything American. Those who have the advantage of living in the same land with these wealthy ladies cannot share the anxiety of our British critic. Perhaps our imagination is not so easily "beggared," and even "twenty millions sterling" does not seem an element too monstrous for the forces of our National character and civilization comfortably to deal with. Just as we have suffragists and do not have suffragettes, and the discussion of votes for women goes on without the use of stones on the one side or stomach pumps on the other, so the probable use, or dissipation, of great fortunes in the possession of our women can be contemplated by us with no special anxiety, much less with alarm. When our transatlantic brothers get used to regarding their women with the kind of respect we accord to ours, and when they get used also to the handling of considerable accumulations of wealth, such as are no longer so rare on this side as to be terrible, their minds will be more at ease, and even The Saturday Review will cease from constructing this kind of mare's nest.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Tammany's Daughter Disappears.

With the disappearance from Times Square of the white monstrosity that has well been called "Tammany's daughter," the city is relieved of perhaps the most impudent affront to which it has ever been subjected. There was no slightest excuse for the erection of this statue, and the whining pretense it embodied in congruously cheap and deceptive material was tolerable only because of its obvious absurdity. For that reason, fortunately, it was more laughable than outrageous.

Of course, New York is not as well understood as could be desired, even by some of its own sons and daughters, and it has occasionally been made the object of unfounded accusation. From this particular wrong, however, it has never suffered in any measurable degree, while on innumerable occasions it has profited by the honest criticism which has been directed at its often unworthy masters and servants. The implication which the statue tried to convey—that everything in the city has been and is all right, that accusations against the municipal authorities are necessarily slanderous, that the presentation of facts showing the need of change and reform is "muckraking"—that was as flimsy and hollow as the misshapen combination of sticks and plaster.

But of course that theory of the political situation as it existed at the beginning of the recent campaign was one vastly pleasing to those who had created and profited by the evils of our local Government, and their dearest hope was that enough voters would be deluded into accepting it as true to enable them to retain their snug sinecures and their opportunities for graft. It is the muckmakers that always object most violently to muckraking and are most offended by the stenches which arise to prove its efficiency. "Cover 'everything up,'" is their plea. "Deny what cannot be concealed, exploit to the utmost the antagonism, left over from an unscientific and unsanitary age, which is encountered by anybody to whom the name of 'scavenger' can be aplied, and when the cry of 'Stop thief!' is raised, drown it in a chorused yelp of 'Slander, slander, slander!'"

Tammany's daughter did what she could in this precious cause, but it was precious little. Nobody was fooled by the maculated damsel, and everybody who passed her laughed. It might have been better if serious thought had been given to the identity and character of those hiding behind her shield, but perhaps the laughter wasn't the worst of comments.

Disappointing for the Poor Dog!

Among the oldest of human ideas is the one that animals have keener eyes for the supernatural than do human beings, and evidences of the belief are to be found in most old books. It is surprising, therefore, that never before last week, so far as we have heard or read, was an attempt made to use a dog either to vindicate or to disprove the claims of a "medium" to the power of "raising" the dead.

The little fox terrier at the Paladino séance was taken there, we understand, with no expectation that he would see ghosts when his betters didn't, or more of them than his betters did, but with the hope that he would do a little "investigating" on his own account, with novel and interesting results. A more promising species could not have been selected for the task, since fox terriers are among the most sincere of dogs, less sentimental than many other breeds, and moved in all of their undertakings by a peculiarly stern and simple practicality. They have the courage to confront the unknown, and the intelligence to comprehend that it differs little from the known.

It is regrettable, though not at all surprising, therefore, that the séance turned out to be an almost complete failure. Nothing happened, unless the manifestation of a slight tendency of the table toward uneasiness can be called a happening, and the dog found the proceedings even more tedious than did the other investigators. The highly interesting question of who or what would have been bitten if the terrier had seized a luminous and unattached hand that drifted near him through the air remains unanswered.

As the other observers were fairly "sympathetic," and the most skeptical of them admitted the existence of a "psychic force" that can, on occasion, tip tables, the dog's influence must have been the one that prevented the expected manifestations. Perhaps if Signora PALADINO had not known of his presence the experiment would have been more successful—in one way or another. But she did know it, and—well, most peasant women of mature years have a certain shrewdness, a certain disinclination to take unnecessary chances.

The Word "Musk Ox."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I read in THE TIMES that they do not know the origin of the word "musk-ox." The Italian muschio (pronounced same as if it was written muskio) is called a beautiful grass which grows especially on the slopes of the Alps less exposed to the sun. This multicolored, soft, spongelike grass grows so thick and deep as to offer in many cases a comfortable bed. There must be evidently a relation between the softness and thickness of the musk-ox hair and the grass muschio to apply such a name to this arctic animal.

Should Police the Mines.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It has been acknowledged that the mine disaster at Cherry, Ill., was due to individual carelessness. This is a factor which must always be reckoned with. Can it not be largely overcome by a system of policing the mines? Watchmen are in use now, but it is evident that they are insufficient in number. If policemen patrolled every foot of a mine, beat touching beat, while the men were at work, there would be far less likelihood of almost 400 men being smothered through carelessness. With electric buttons on every beat, a squad of men could be summoned to the danger point at a moment's notice.

The News in Denmark.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

With reference to an article in to-day's issue headed "Anti-Cook Evidence Unknown To Danes" allow me to say that Capt. Amundsen is entirely wrong in making such a statement. It may not be sufficiently known here, but Denmark is a civilized and cultured country, with quite a few newspapers, in which all the news of interest appear as quick as the cable will forward them. From time to time I have read in Danish papers all about the controversy between Messrs. Cook and Barrill, although these disclosures were not exactly in harmony with the general opinion about Dr. Cook's trustworthiness.

ABOUT TO MARRY.

Another Young Woman Advises the Accomplished but Uncourted One.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I also am not bad looking; I also possess a certain amount of brain because I earn my living by my pen, and a woman cannot be altogether empty-headed who can, now and then, bring her writing up to the standard set by the New York editors. I have been honored at irregular intervals during the past eleven years by requests for my capable hand from young men in divers walks of life, but—most of these requests were the result of very brief acquaintance! Ah, Unclaimed Flower, the sad discovery is mine that, being of the small, round, cuddlesome type of woman, I am liked, nay, even loved—till my brains become evident. My lovers want a nice little kitten that can purr—yes, and scratch now and then, just to make life interesting.

Pardon me for thinking it, but Flower, are you not of the grenadier type of woman? You probably know too much to please the amiable bachelors who ought to appreciate you. Once when I was very young I was silly enough to mention Balzac or Herbert Spencer to a youth who rather fancied my appearance. He looked at me in absolute horror and gasped, "But you know so much!" Since then I have never spoken to any man of a book that weighed more than "The Lady of the Decoration," and I am no longer accused of being well-read.

It is not the gentle touch upon the coatsleeve that wins, at least not in my case, for I have never had to resort to surreptitious caressings. It is not a woman's capability or efficiency that spoils her "chances."

Oh, Unclaimed Flower of little faith, know ye that any man may be brought to the point of proposing if you are clever enough to look intelligent and say "Ah, yes!" whenever he speaks; if you are pretty enough to sit still and be admired; if you are round enough to look "kissable," and bright enough to keep your opinions on politics and religion to yourself! Whether hand-holding lends zest to such matters I do not know, for I have not tried it, but I do know that the average man is much more interested in the pinkness of your cheek than in the grayness of your brain. Which is as it should be. The normal human being, whether man or woman, would rather marry a good-natured piece of brawn with not too many ideas and ideals, than the cleverest, most intellectual light in New York.

And let me wish you the greatest happiness I know, namely, such a sensible, comfortable "pal" as the man I am going to marry next week.

PALADINO'S MYSTERIES.

Suggests That the Flashlight Camera Would Have No Hallucinations.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Concerning Paladino. It seems to the writer that all of the phenomena attributed to this woman are to be explained by the following suppositions: that she has the power (a) to project her own impressions upon the mid-screens of her audience, and so convinces them that they have seen what she has pictured to herself; (b) to cause them unconsciously to perform certain physical acts the results, only, of which they are conscious of observing; and (c) to draw from the mind of one of her audience an image and project it into the thoughts of the others so that all seem to see it.

Thus she is able to produce upon the minds of a limited number of persons gathered in a dimly lighted room the impressions of their having seen and heard a heavy object fall upon a table; a table dance upon the floor, or turn over; or a curtain flap as if blown by wind. Thus, also, a bodiless hand and arm or a face is believed to have been seen, or a blow on the cheek felt; or such a blow is actually caused. A heavy table in like manner is upset and after the seance so found; and marks are produced upon a previously blank sheet of paper.

It further seems to the writer that expert psychologists are as likely to pass under such a controlling influence as other, untrained, persons and that their testimony, in fact, of any kind that is present cannot be considered as trustworthy, for that mind must ever be open to the charge of having been subconsciously controlled. The witnesses, on the other hand, must be such as are naturally beyond the reach of the act of suggestion; that is to say, they must be possessed of sight and touch but wholly without mind, they must be mechanical automata capable of observing and recording the phenomena of a seance and the action of all its participants. Nothing short of such an automatically recorded seance is worthy, nowadays, of being classed as scientific experiment.

Instantaneous flashlight photographs taken simultaneously from several directions at the instant a face appears, or a hand is seen confronting one in the air, or a table is in the act of levitation, would go further to clear up the mysteries represented by Paladino than the naked observations of our cleverest men. Indeed it might be set down as an axiom that in determining psychological phenomena the mind as a witness is itself wholly incompetent and, if progress is to be made, must be replaced by mechanical instruments.

REAL RUGBY.

The "Play Behind the Ball" Gives English Game Zest and Interest.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Referring to your editorial comment on football, which advocates eliminating mass plays, as an old football player, I am strongly in accord with you that steps should be taken in this direction, as mass plays are not only extremely dangerous, but do not add in any way to the interest or benefit of the game.

The colleges will never take to soccer very warmly. But they could and should adopt a game similar to the English Rugby, as played by Oxford and Cambridge and several other colleges, and also by county teams. The chief distinction between the games played by the American and English colleges is that on the other side every play in front of the ball is "offside," and the only man who can advance the ball is the one who actually has it in his possession. In other words, he has to make his own "interference." This makes a much more open and interesting game, a far more lively one, and I am satisfied that if adopted here it would be successful.

The play of the two games with the exception of the mass plays is practically identical, except that in the English game the ball is always in play except when out of bounds.

Would that our English cousins, instead of sending over a soccer team, had sent us two first-class Rugby teams, so that they might demonstrate the beauties of the game, and I trust that next Fall some one closely identified with the game will endeavor to accomplish this, so that the American public may see just exactly what English Rugby is.

Church Bells and Sickness.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have been reading the complaining letters in your paper on the ringing of church bells. It appears to me that the only people who object to this ancient and modern custom are those who are suffering with "this" complaint or "that" sickness, and I would strongly advise all those who are in these circumstances to move to a place where everything will be so quiet that in order to disturb the monotony they will have to talk to themselves and answer their own questions.

THE JUDGES' SALARY GRAB.

Their Unsigned Memorandum a "Piece of Legal and Political Chicanery."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Upon reading this morning's newspapers that the Board of Estimate had increased the salaries of our Honorable Supreme Court Judges in this department $333.33 for the month of December, 1909, I was chagrined to learn that the Honorable Supreme Court Judges of this department seemed to have been accessories before the fact. I do not presume to question the correctness of the proposition of law referred to in the unsigned memorandum submitted by them that "the definition of the word 'now' in any provision of a statute refering to other laws in force, or to persons in office, or to any facts or circumstances now existing, relates to the law in force or to the persons in office, or to the facts or circumstances existing immediately before the taking effect of this provision," but I do question their interpretation of the true intent of the Legislature that the proposed increase in the salaries of all of the Supreme Court Judges of the State was intended to increase the salaries of the Judges in the First and Second Departments.

The proposed Constitutional Amendment provided that the Judges of the First and Second Department should receive only such pay "as will make their aggregate compensation what they are now receiving." Surely the voters of the First and Second Departments, not being as learned in the law as our Supreme Court Judges, assumed, as they had a right to, that in no event was the aggregate compensation of the Judges of the First and Second Departments to be increased. I believe that it will be generally conceded, at least in private, by most of the members of the bar that the attitude of the Judges in causing their salaries to be increased by the Board of Estimate has resulted in depriving the city of the additional $4,000 which by the proposed amendment they will receive from the State, so that the city by the proposed action is the loser of about $173,000 annually which the city would have saved if the Judges had not had their salaries so increased. It is true that the city does not have to pay our Supreme Court Judges in this department any more than heretofore, (except for the month of December, 1909,) but as their salaries are to be increased $4,000 by the State, the city would have saved this $4,000 per annum per Judge if the Judges had not caused the Board of Estimate to defeat the clear intention of the Legislature and of the voters.

The action taken by the Judges who submitted the unsigned memorandum to the Board of Estimate upon which their salaries were increased is a piece of legal and political chicanery which might be expected from ward politicians but not from those in whom the public should look for that dignity and high standard of honor as might reasonably be expected from those holding the exalted office of Supreme Court Judge.

DEDICATE LUTHERAN COLLEGE

Buildings on White Plains Road Erected at Cost of $200,000.

The new buildings of the Concordia Collegiate Institute, a Lutheran institution for higher learning on the White Plains Road, Bronxville, were dedicated yesterday. The institute has fourteen acres there and has erected three buildings, a lecture hall, a dormitory for 100 boys, and a commons building. These have cost $200,000.

Anthems were rendered by choirs from Manhattan and the Bronx and from Brooklyn, and the 2,500 people present were led in congregational singing by the band of the Bethlehem Orphanage, College Point.

The principal address was delivered by the Rev. Dr. Franz Pieper, President of the Concordia Theological Seminary, St. Louis, and of the Missouri Lutheran Synod, under the jurisdiction of which the churches in this city are.

The Rev. Dr. William Schoenfeld of Immanuel Church, Eighty-eighth Street and Lexington Avenue, congratulated the audience on the raising of $200,000 for the new buildings in a year, and the Rev. Prof. H. Fath, director of the school, returned thanks for the support which had been given to him.

The dedicatory prayer was offered by the Rev. L. Schultze of Schenectady, President of the Atlantic Division of the Missouri Synod. The exercises were in charge of the Rev. William Koetchen of St. Luke's Church, West Forty-second Street, the Secretary of the college board. The General Board of Supervisors of the Synod were represented by the Rev. Charles Obermeyer of St. Louis, Mo.; F. G. Walker, Cleveland, Ohio, and F. Bosse, Vincennes, Ind.

E. L. Tilton is the architect of the new buildings, and the Building Committee consisted of Dr. F. C. Heckel, New York; W. Kops, Paterson, N. J., and J. Mollenhauer, Brooklyn.

The Board of Directors of the Lutheran Education Society will hold a banquet tonight in celebration of the occasion at Arion Hall. The clergy representing the Synod will be the guests of the evening.

LARGER BROOKLYN HOSPITAL.

Directors Report Satisfactory Condition of Brooklyn Institution Finances.

The Directors of the Jewish Hospital, Prospect Place, Brooklyn, were able to report at the annual meeting held yesterday afternoon that the institution, in spite of a considerable increase of its work during the last year, had received about enough money to meet its expenses. In addition, an isolation house, a laboratory, and a septic pavilion have been contracted for, at a cost of $18,000, the funds for which are already in hand.

The hospital has also undertaken the construction of a nurses' home, where the staff can be housed and the pupil nurses receive preliminary training. This will cost $100,000, to pay for which pledges for $26,000 have been received. In consideration of the great importance of this department, the Directors of the hospital decided to depart from their settled policy of not running into debt and have raised $75,000 on mortgage.

Abraham Abraham, the President of the hospital, remarked on the small number of charitable persons on whom the burden of supporting all charities rests.

"At present," he said, "there are about 3,000 persons in this city whose names appear on the year books of the various charities. Naturally, there must be limit to their capacity, however self-sacrificing they may be. Cannot some means be found to reach this unassessed body of well-to-do Jews and Jewesses, who deny themselves few luxuries, but who seclude themselves from the sight of poverty, of misery, and never respond to the call of humanity?"

LINES IN MEMORY OF RICHARD WATSON GILDER.

They do not pass, these souls of light,
  They do not give us cause to mourn;
They do not fade nor vanish quite,
  Along some gloom'd and lonely bourne.

They will be with us still—more near,
  Than when life's fabric held, where pride
Or fanciful and foolish fear
  May turn our loving thoughts aside.

They will remain—their truer sense,
  Unshackled and unshorn, will know
The unrestrained, strange recompense
  Which our pursuing hearts bestow.

Mourn not this singer! He is free—
  Beyond the shafts that once could wound,
With all the things he loved is he,
  The things he sought, his soul has found.

Unvexed by sordid cares—by mean
  And small ambitions, undistressed;
He dwells, amidst the unfading scene
  Of Nature's revelry—at rest.

Where Beauty spreads her silken tent
  And, from that golden mystery,
Builds, with bewildering blandishment,
  The dream which only poets see.

Where Poesy's deep-woven spell
  Shall through her shining province spread,
The while, with purple asphodel
  She binds her fine Corinthian head.

With sun and rain and with the rift
  That breaks the driven cloud—the dream
Of Summer's silence and the drift
  Of Autumn leaves beside the stream.

The sunset, and the twilight star
  That gleams above the world's wide rim
Soft music, breathing from afar—
  These—that he loved—shall speak for him.

ROBERT BURNS WILSON.

LOEB IN WASHINGTON ON THE SUGAR CASE

He Will Confer with MacVeagh and Taft as to the Custom House Crisis.

SAY MORE HEADS WILL FALL

Trial of the Sugar Trust Men Under Indictment Likely to Begin Next Monday.

Collector Loeb went to Washington yesterday afternoon for the conference he is to have to-day with Secretary MacVeagh and later with President Taft respecting the crisis of affairs at the Custom House as a result of the investigation into the sugar frauds.

Before he left his home at 311 West End Avenue the collector was asked to tell what particular phase of the situation he is to take up during his Washington visit, but he refused to give any information. He would not discuss his reported purpose to include in his next shake-up a higher official in the customs service whose name has not heretofore been dragged into the sugar scandal. If that is one of Mr. Loeb's reasons for going to Washington he gave no hint of it.

Aside from the expected wind-up of the housecleaning which is believed to be on the way this week at the Custom House, there does not promise to be any stirring developments in the sugar investigation. Special Attorney General Stimson will devote himself to the preparation of evidence for the trials of James Bendernagel, former Superintendent of the Sugar Trust's Williamsburg refinery and the "Big Six," who were indicted jointly with him, on charges of conspiracy to defraud the Government by means of false reports.

There is a strong belief that Mr. Stimson's purpose in causing the indictment of Bendernagel was to induce him to reveal the inside working of affairs at the Williamsburg pier with the view to obtaining indictments of Sugar Trust officials. Bendernagel's counsel, Henry Cochran, says that his client has nothing to tell as to Sugar Trust methods, that he knows of no bribery of Government employes or of the putting in of false reports.

Mr. Cochran maintains that if the Government caused Bendernagel's indictment to wring any information out of him that would help in the prosecution of anybody, the Government is mistaken.

The trial of the seven men, unless postponed by Judge Hough, before whom argument will be heard on demurrers to the joint indictment to-day, will start next Monday. Counsel for the defendants will argue to-day that the indictment is vague and indefinite in its charges and that it ought to be dismissed.

Edwin L. Anderson, former Dock Superintendent at the trust's Williamsburg plant, is in Washington with his counsel, H. A. Dyruff of 60 Wall Street, to push his claim for 35 per cent. of the $2,136,000 which the trust paid back to the Government some time ago representing withheld duty on sugar importations. Anderson disputes the contention of Richard Parr, chief of the weighers' division at the Custom House, that Parr is entitled to the 35 per cent. of the refund by reason of the fact that he obtained the evidence upon which the trust was compelled to make restitution.

Anderson has gone to Washington to try to impress Secretary MacVeagh that it was he, and not Parr, who was responsible for the trust paying the money back. Anderson maintains that all the evidence Parr obtained was through information imparted by Anderson, and that Parr arrogated to himself all the credit.

Anderson's counsel wants to start a publicity crusade against Parr, it is said, and the suggestion of Secretary MacVeagh concerning the advisability of this is to be sought at the interview with the Secretary. It is regarded as unlikely that Secretary MacVeagh will lend his consent to any plan looking to the bolstering up of Anderson's claim by attacking Parr.

When asked yesterday if he proposed to take any move to circumvent Anderson in his fight for the Sugar moiety, Parr replied:

"No. The matter is in the hands of the Secretary of the Treasury. It will have to take its own course. I am not anxious over anything Anderson may do."

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—The whole subject of the sweeping investigation of the New York Customs Service will be reviewed at a conference which will be held here to-morrow.

Collector Loeb of the Port of New York, who has been conducting the housecleaning of the New York service with the co-operation of Special Counsel Stimson, the former District Attorney for that district, will be at the conference, and those with whom he will talk over things will include not only Secretary MacVeagh, but President Taft and Attorney General Wickersham.

The legal phases of the investigation, the question of criminal prosecution, and other features of the work which has been engaging the attention of both the Treasury Department and the Department of Justice, will be discussed.

Plans for the conference were made during the last week, and Collector Loeb's visit will permit the submission of a great deal of information at first hand.

NATIONAL BOARD OF HEALTH.

Report on the Plan Will Be Made to the President.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—A report on a plan for a Federal Department of Public Health has been submitted to President Taft by Dr. Walter Wyman, Surgeon General of the Public Health and Marine Hospital Service, at Mr. Taft's own request. Such a department or bureau is recommended in the platform of both the Republican and Democratic Parties, but no action is expected at the present session of Congress.

The contents of Dr. Wyman's report have not yet been divulged, but it is expected, judging from his previous utterances, that it is favorable. Such a Governmental division would be for the purpose of unifying sanitary regulations, supervising the cleanliness of rivers and harbors, and giving information for the education of the public.

GOV. SHAFROTH ON SUFFRAGE.

Colorado Executive to Speak at Equal Franchise Society's Meeting on Friday.

The Winter public meetings in the Garden Theatre of the Equal Franchise Society, of which Mrs. Clarence H. Mackay is President, will begin on Friday, Dec. 3, at 4 o'clock, with an address by Gov. John F. Shafroth of Colorado, on the subject, "Should Women Have the Right to Vote?" Gov. Shafroth, who served several terms in Congress before becoming the Governor, is an enthusiastic advocate of equal suffrage and will answer many of the questions so commonly asked as to the actual practical workings of woman suffrage in the States which have tried the experiment. He will be introduced by Mrs. Mackay.

Other speakers later on in the Winter will be Everett Colby, the Rev. Henry S. Nash of Cambridge, Mass.; the Rev. Anna H. Shaw, Martin W. Littleton, Mayor Brand Whitlock, of Toledo; Col. George Harvey, and Miss Jane Addams. Among the box-holders for the entire course of addresses are Mrs. Mackay, Mrs. Everett Colby, Mrs. J. D. Prince, Miss May Ward, Mrs. J. W. Brannan, Mrs. Rudolph Schirmer, Mrs. M. S. Barger, Mrs. Egerton L. Winthrop, Mrs. W. G. Maynard, and Miss Dorothy Whitney.

MUST EDUCATE FOLK TO LIGHT OPERAS

Oscar Hammerstein Draws from His Experience a Few Ideas About Public Taste.

NOVELTIES DON'T EASILY GO

And Opera Bouffe, Though No Novelty, Has Been Almost Forgotten—Liking for It to be Inculcated.

"The education of the public taste in opera is a curious thing," said Oscar Hammerstein, last night, sitting in his old chair in the "first entrance" on the stage of the Manhattan Opera House. "Some twenty-five years ago before the public as a whole had heard the operas of the class called 'grand'—before 'Aida' and 'La Boheme' had been dinned into their ears until the ears received the music easily and gratefully—there was a great public demand for opera-bouffe, the lighter works of the French school.

"Now, however, that grand opera is the rule rather than the exception it is curious to observe that the public must be educated in the lighter forms of music. They don't understand it any more, at least not at first. It is only after constant appeals have been made that they grow to like something they had quite forgotten how to like.

"The interest in my first production last Tuesday night of 'La Fille de Mme. Angot' was slight. However, people came and heard the performance and were pleased. Many of the same people came back last night, and they brought others. You may have observed that the points got over the footlights more on the second occasion, that the music was more appreciated by the auditors.

"It is my invariable experience with the New York public that it takes it some time to accustom itself to novelty. Now, opera-bouffe is scarcely a novelty in New York, but the public has almost forgotten it, which is practically the same thing. Another interesting fact in connection with the New York public is that it takes it some time—sometimes a few nights, sometimes a few weeks—to become accustomed to new singers. Because a new singer succeeds in raising a part to a higher degree of interest than that which it has hitherto attained in New York representations means nothing to the New York public if that singer is new. Singers gradually become popular here, some more gradually than others.

"In my light operas, which I am giving two nights a week, I am making many experiments. Some years ago I gave a season of this sort at the Victoria Theatre, but the public taste has changed since then and I must experiment all over again. In the first place I must find out whether the public cares more for good opera-bouffe, like 'La Belle Helene' or a slightly higher class of lyric drama, opera-comique like 'Le Dame Blanche' or 'Les Dragons de Villars.'

"There may be more interest in works which have frequently been sung in English like 'La Mascotte' or 'Les Cloches de Corneville.' These facts I can only discover by making experiments. In any case I shall continue with my light opera season throughout the year. 'La Belle Helene' with Mme. Cavalieri is at present in preparation. Mr. Renaud will appear as Gaspard in 'Les Cloches de Corneville' some time this season, and Mr. Gilibert is scheduled for several of the light operas.

PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.

Gustav Mahler Gives His First Sunday Concert at Carnegie Hall.

Gustav Mahler seems to be well on the road toward making the Philharmonic Society a popular success as well as an artistic one. Yesterday, at the first Sunday afternoon concert which the orchestra has given this season, Carnegie Hall was nearly filled, and the applause was hearty and spontaneous, both in way of greeting to the distinguished director when he first appeared on the platform and by way of appreciation of the various numbers on the programme.

The programme, which occupied only an hour and a half, was played through without intermission. First came the "Eroica" symphony; Mr. Gilibert in three opera airs followed; and the afternoon's doings closed with two Wagner excerpts.

Mr. Mahler had already played the "Eroica" symphony on the occasion of his first concert this season, and the same qualities which were noted in its performance on that occasion were again in evidence yesterday. The interpretation was strenuous and dramatic, highly colored, and free in tempo, at the same time noble and poetic. To the strict classicist there may be much to complain of in this interpretation of Beethoven, speaking of the general effect. In detail scarcely too much can be said in praise of the effects gained, especially in the final movement.

Into the Wagner works, in which Mr. Mahler is in the fullest sympathy, he put all the force of his interpretative power. The resonance and power of the orchestra in the climaxes of the "Trauermarsch" from "Gotterdammerung" were extraordinary in their effect. And the deeply poetic quality of the music was brought out with equal sureness. The prelude to "Die Meistersinger" closed the programme.

Mr. Gilibert, the soloist of the afternoon, sang the "Largo" from Handel's opera "Xerxes," which has become so familiar as an organ or orchestra number that many in the audience had doubtless forgoten that it is as much an operatic air as "Una Voce poca fa." He followed this with an air from Bizet's opera, "La Jolie Fille de Perth," and the charming 'Legende de la Sauge" from "Le Jongleur de Notre Dame." Mr. Gilibert has never exercised his artistic power more potently than he did yesterday. The "Largo" he sang in truly classic style, albeit in French. Into the Bizet air he infused the dramatic flavor into his voice which the sentiment demanded, and his singing of the Massenet air was an exquisite bit of work. Enunciation, intonation, and voice modulation were alike very near perfection.

THE NEW YORK SYMPHONY.

A New Composition by Maurice Rauel Played for the First Time in This City.

Mr. Damrosch brought forward another new orchestral composition at the third of the New York Symphony Society's Sunday afternoon concerts at the New Theatre yesterday. It was a "Rhapsodie Espagnole," by Maurice Ravel, who, we are informed by the annotator of the programme, has "brought the greatest intellect to bear upon the musical art of modern France," has "carried it to the farthest point, and stands to-day for the last word in French music." It is not easy to discover in this Spanish rhapsody the workings of a great, not to say the greatest, intellect. It seems like the toying of a clever and expert technician with with some of the newer harmonic and melodic formulas, some of them translucent, shimmering, and at times outre orchestral effects that have been taught him by Debussy. In the rhapsody, in fact, he has sought out an impression of Spain similar to that which Debussy has suggested in some of his piano pieces, very different from the highly colored view of Spain that numberless composers have conveyed through the castanets, the tunefulness and the energetic, communicative rhythms of the Spanish dances. Mr. Ravel avoids the horrid touch of the obvious. He, too, sees Spain through the medium of the Spanish dance; but, as it were, glimpsed afar dimly, and expressed vaguely through music so thin it is almost no music at all.

There are four movements, "Prelude to the Night," and three dance movements, "Malaguena," "Habanera," and "Feria," in which there is just the merest hint of the dance, and it is all enveloped in large amounts of "atmosphere." The prelude is principally based on four descending notes; and this thematic shred, repeated incessantly in the prelude, recurs in the succeeding movements. Some of the orchestral effects that are attained are, as the painters say in their own slang, "amusing." Some may be called successful; others suggest the cheerful cackle of the barnyard, or less cheerful sounds from the nursery; but in some of these latter Mr. Damrosch may be suspected of having assisted a little the composer's imaginative vein, especially in an exquisite glissando effect for two oboes in consecutive fifths. There are certain elements of charm in this composition, slight and tenuous though it is; but it is a little difficult to take it, on the whole, seriously, and still more so as the "last word in French music."

That there is a need in New York of a clearing house of programmes was suggested by the appearance of Brahms's second symphony on the programme—a work which the Boston Orchestra had played ten days before. Mr. Damrosch emphasized the lyric and intimate quality of this music and read it with a delicate poetic insight, though he missed some of its strength. The orchestra seemed in many passages, and especially in the last movement, deficient in richness and virility of tone.

There was a soloist, Miss Myrtle Elvyn, a pianist, who made her first appearance in New York, playing Liszt's A major concerto. To make superficially attractive a work so musically poverty stricken as this needs a player who can command a bigger and more brilliant tone, more expert fingers, more fire and sweep of authority.

THE METROPOLITAN CONCERT.

All the Stars There Win Applause from a Large Audience.

The first of the Sunday night concerts of the season was given last night at the Metropolitan Opera House, the programme being of unusual excellence. There was a large attendance, and the work of Edmond Clement, the tenor, who made his first appearance at the Metropolitan, singing Gounod's "Cavatina," from "Romeo and Juliet"; Laloas aria from "Le Roi d'Ys," and Tschaikowsky's andante cantabile from "Symphony No. 5." called forth unstinted praise. It was also the first appearance at the Metropolitan of Max Bendix as a director, and he led the entire Metropolitan Opera House orchestra.

Adamo Didur, the basso, rendered Meyerbeer's aria, "Invocation," from "Robert le Diable," with power. The soloists were Bernice de Pasquali, Anna Meitschik, and Florence Wickham. Mme. Meitschik's rendition of Gluck's aria "Che faro," from "Orfeo," called forth several encores. Mme. Bernice de Pasquali, the soprano, rendered "Charmant Oiseau," from "Perle de Bresil," with flute obbligato, by Otto Stoeckert, in a manner that brought forth frequent applause. Miss Wickham, who also possesses an unusually fine soprano voice, gave a capable rendition of Saint-Saens's aria, "Mon Coeur S'ouvre a ta voix," from "Samson et Delila." Clarence Whitehall, with the assistance of the full orchestra, gave Wagner's "Wotan's Abschied und Feuerzauber," from "Die Walkure."

THEATRICAL NOTES.

When Maude Adams completes her engagement in New York she will go on a Western tour in "What Every Woman Knows," ending at Portland, Ore., on June 23.

Ada Rehan was in the audience at the Stuyvesant Theatre on Saturday afternoon, and after the play visited Frances Starr in her dressing room.

George Arliss and his company arrived from Montreal last night to begin an engagement in "Septimus" at the Hackett Theatre to-night.

Marie Tempest's season at the Lyceum Theatre in "Penelope" will last only six weeks. Billie Burke's engagement at this house will begin on Jan. 17.

Wilson Melrose, and not Orme Caldara, will have the role of Frederick Brent in "His Name on the Door," when that play opens at the Bijou Theatre to-night. Mr. Caldara played the part when the piece was produced out of town, but has since arranged with Henry B. Harris for a role in "Jacquelin."

WASHINGTON SOCIETY IS WAITING ON TAFTS

HOPE OF BRILLIANT SPRING

Ambassador and Mrs. Hill Greeted with Many Invitations—Diplomats the Chief Hosts Now.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—The return of the President and Mrs. Taft from their short excursion to Norfolk aboard the Mayflower will be followed by the completion of their social programme for the coming season and establish the important dates, not only of the White House functions, which were given to the public on Friday, but also the dates on which the different official hosts will entertain the Chief Executive.

The dinners of the Cabinet members to the President, at which they take turns as host and invite a different company to meet the President and wife every week, will probably be given on Thursday evenings, with the Secretary of State and Mrs. Knox opening the series.

As Mrs. Knox is in mourning and anxious to defer the opening of her home to society until January, so the dinners to the President and Mrs. Taft, beginning late, will continue during Lent, or, in the event of being suspended by the coming of the penitential season, may be resumed after Easter, thus carrying the official entertaining well into the Spring. With Congress in session through May and the White House continuing the graceful hospitality which Mrs. Taft inaugurated last May, the long-hoped-for brilliant Spring season, equal to those of London and Paris, would be assured.

The hospitalities of the present week like that just passed will be international in character, with the German, French and British Embassies and Netherlands Legation all contributing important events, and the Ambassador to Germany and Mrs. David Jayne Hill appearing as the central figures in a breakfast or dinner company each day of the week and sometimes at both entertainments on the same day, as these popular visitors have not dates enough to satisfy their would-be entertainers both in and out of the official circle.

The most brilliant wedding of the early Winter, that of Miss Yulee Noble and Lieut. Sherman Miles, U. S. A., will take place Wednesday at noon at St. John's Church, Lafayette Square, while the afternoon of Thanksgiving Day will be marked by the large reception of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Merriam, when Miss Merriam will be introduced. Mrs. Hill will also be at home on Thursday afternoon at the Arlington, where she and the Ambassador are staying.

The Turkish Envoys here on special mission, His Excellency Zia Pasha and Col. Aziz Bey, will leave on Tuesday after a week of continuous entertaining. They were guests at a breakfast at the British Embassy to-day, the occasion also serving as the introduction of Hon. J. A. Bryce, M. P., brother of King Edward's Ambassador, who with his wife and daughter arrived recently from Scotland. Miss Marjory Bryce will remain an Embassy guest through the season.

Mr. and Mrs. John R. McLean gave their weekly breakfast to upward of seventy guests to-day at Friendship, and Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Henderson also a breakfast at Boundary Castle. The guests at Friendship were invited with special reference to Miss Noble and Lieut. Miles, including the members of their bridal party.

Two notable additions to the Diplomatic circle include Mr. Tailhand of the French Embassy, who arrived at his post yesterday, and Mr. de Beaufond, Secretary of Legation of the Netherlands, who arrived earlier in the week.

Miss Dorothy Van Dyke, daughter of Henry Van Dyke of Princeton, has joined Dr. and Mrs. Hill at the Arington to pass a week.

Judge and Mrs. Charles Patterson of Troy, N. Y., have arrived at the Grafton, where they propose passing several months.

LATE HOURS FOR SUFFRAGISTS

Needn't Get in by Ten if Their Hotel Is Built—A Cafe, Too.

At the Co-operative Service League's benefit performance of "The Fourth Estate" at Wallack's Theatre on Dec. 1 "Hotels for Women" will be added to the suffragist rallying cry of "Votes for Women." As has been announced, the proceeds will be used toward the erection of a real suffragist hotel. Architect's plans are being prepared by Frank Andrews. Mr. Andrews's wife is Pauline Frederick, who is playing in "The Fourth Estate." Alice Fisher, another member of the company, will make a short address on suffrage between the acts of the benefit performance.

Mrs. Jane B. Campbell, Vice President of the league, said yesterday that it is planned to build one or more hotels.

"Perhaps the Mills Hotel would be the nearest approach to the hotel we expect to build," said Mrs. Campbell. "But in our hotel we do not intend to make our guests clear out of their rooms early in the morning. They may sleep as long as they wish. It will not be a Home, with a capital 'H,' or 'an institution' or a 'refuge.' Nor will it be like the other hotels for women. We expect to have a cafe" (Mrs. Campbell did not say whether the cafe would have a bar) "and a rathskeller. A manicure and hairdressing parlor will probably take the place of the barber shop of men's hotels. There will be no rules requiring the guests to get home by 10 o'clock.

The Co-operative Service League is not affiliated with any particular suffrage organization, but its members are coworkers with National, State and other suffrage movements. Miss Mary May Mills is President pro tem., Mrs. A. F. Townsend is Treasurer, and Miss Caroline Crossett, Secretary.

VIOLINIST AT THE MANHATTAN.

Russian Artist the Feature of the Sunday Night Concert.

Jascha Bron, the young Russian violinist, was the feature of last night's concert at the Manhatan Opera House. He played the first movement of the Tschaikowsky concerto, and a "Rondo Capriccioso" of Saint-Saens.

The soloists who apeared were Miss Marguerite Sylva, who sang an air from "Herodiade"; Mme. Mazarin, Miss Alice Baron, who sang an air from "Faust"; Miss Miranda, Mr. Laskin, Mr. Carasa, who sang an air from "La Boheme"; Mr. Devries, Mr. Sammarco, who sang "Largo al Factotum" from "Il Barbiere di Siviglia," Mr. Vallier and Mr. Zerola.

Practically all the conductors of the theatre appeared during the evening, including Messrs. de la Fluente, Anselmi, Nicosia, Charlier, and Straram.

THE ANNUAL STAGE STABBING.

Gives Clara Palmer an Imperceptible Wound and a Fainting Fit.

The annual accidental stage stabbing, due every Fall, has arrived. This time the stabber is William Norris, and the stabbed is Miss Clara Palmer, both members of "The King of Cadonia" company, which opened in New Haven on Saturday night.

Miss Palmer plays Melitza in the musical comedy and Mr. Norris has the role of a Duke. The Duke is supposed to stab Melitza with a dagger with a sliding blade and a hollow handle.

On Saturday night the blade of the dagger failed to slide properly and Miss Palmer felt her costume and cuticle pierced. Naturally she fainted.

The wound was barely perceptible and she continued the performance. The dagger will be replaced.

POLICE ATHLETE INJURED.

Winner of Hurdle Records Breaks His Hand Capturing a Small Boy.

Patrolman John J. Eller of the Mulberry Street Station, one of the best-known athletes in the Police Department, made two records in the indoor hurdle races at the Twenty-third Regiment games in Brooklyn on Saturday night, and yesterday afternoon broke two of the bones of his right hand while pursuing a juvenile prisoner in Mulberry Street. He collided with a lamppost, and in that way received his injury.

Complaints have been received at the Mulberry Street Station of late from residents of the neighborhood against youthful crapshooters. Eller spied a group of youngsters in Mulberry Street indulging in the game, but the boys saw him and fled. Singling out one, Eller started on a sprint after him. The boy dodged and doubled, finally darting around the corner of Prince Street. The patrolman followe and collided with the lamppost. Two bones of his right hand snapped, but he kept on and captured the boy.

At the station the youngster said he was Joseph Rivelli of 212 Elizabeth Street. He was charged with juvenile delinquency and sent to the Children's Society. Dr. Higgins of St. Vincent's Hospital attended to Eller's injury, and he was then relieved from duty.

FUEL-SAVER FOR RAILROADS.

New Device Being Tested by the Lehigh Valley's Locomotives.

One hundred and fifty locomotives of the Lehigh Valley Railroad have been equipped with a new fuel-saving device.

On all locomotives there are air-brake pumps operated by steam, and it has been the practice to conduct the exhaust steam from the pumps to the smokebox, to which the stack is attached, and there release it. The effect is to create a draft on the fire. Since much of the work of the brake pumps is done when the locomotive is at a standstill or going down grade, this means that fuel is consumed needlessly.

The new arrangement carries the exhaust steam pipe outside instead of inside the smokestack.

Tests made by the Lehigh Valley show that the comany is saving about 1,000 pounds of coal per locomotive on the descent of the grade from Glen Summit to Penn Haven Junction, Penn., a distance of twenty-six miles.

SAVE THEIR STRANDED CRAFT.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 21.—The thirty-foot launch Adolph, in which were John Hathersall, Michael Helmstreet, Jr., Benjamin Myers, Adolph Bertholze, and Michael Helmstreet, all of Philadelphia, struck on the dangerous sandbar at the entrance to the inlet late this afternoon.

Strollers who saw the mishap summoned Government lifesavers, expecting that the craft would be broken up by the big waves. Before the lifesavers could launch their boat, however, young Helmstreet, the elder Helmstreet, and Hathersall jumped into the chilly breakers running across the bar and managed to work the boat over into deep water.

The crowd of watchers expected to see the launch go on her beam ends, and cheered the dripping men when they were towed to shore in their half-sunken boat.

QUITS NEWPORT FOR BERLIN.

Mrs. French Vanderbilt Has Taken a House at the German Capital.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Nov. 21.—The end of the month Mrs. French Vanderbilt, with her son, William Henry Vanderbilt, and her servants, horses, and carriages, will go to New York and then to Berlin, where she has taken a large house. The duration of her stay is not known.

Mrs. Vanderbilt has sold to Ralph N. Ellis her thirty-footer Caprice, which has been sailed by her in these waters for the past three years.

Objects to 2½-Cent Rate.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Nov. 21.—Asserting that their six months' trial of the 2½ cent passenger fare rate has proved unprofitable, the Louisvill & Nashville Railroad yesterday filed a petition in the United States Circuit here for an injunction against its enforcement.

Marriage and death notices intended for insertion in The New York Times may be telephoned to 1000 Bryant.

PLAYGOERS OPEN UP

With Remarks from John De Witt Warner and Comments by Col. Graves.

Some 300 members and guests of the American Playgoers' Club attended the opening meeting of the season at the Hotel Astor last night. The meeting soon resolved itself into a sort of reception. The programme included a one-act poem set to music. In her opening speech Mrs. James Madison Bass, the President, remarked kindly that in this club men had equal rights with women.

John De Witt Warner, Chairman of the Religious Drama Committee, who Mrs. Bass asked to tell about the plans of the club to co-operate with the Rev. John P. Peters of St. Michael's Church in presenting a series of miracle plays, beginning at Christmas, recollected after indicating the unexpectedness of the call upon him that St. Michael's was built a century ago.

"And in that," he said, "I have a text." Running with experienced haste through the hundred years of the history of the church, Mr. Warner said it was second only to Trinity Church in the number of other churches to which it had given birth. He spoke also of the location of St. Michael's, and offered some remarks about its stage.

John Temple Graves was then introduced by Mrs. Bassas, the Honorary President.

"One of the most pathetic things in the whole range of this city's economic and social life," he went on, "is Mr. Warner's apologies before beginning a speech." When the Warner family was begun, he thought, there must have gone forth from the divine throne an edict, "Let there be more human speech." The beginning of the family, however, he concluded with a graceful bow in the direction of Mr. Warner, was a "happy catastrophe."

Mr. Graves declared that the drama was the most powerful agent of civilization in modern American life, and that the English drama was decadent.

Miss Grace Isabel Colbron read Arthur Dowson's poem, "The Pierrot of the Minute," accompanied by incidental music composed and conducted by Arthur Bergh. Clifford Wiley sang some old English songs.

XMAS TREES FOR THE POOR.

Work of a Brooklyn Philanthropy Beginning for the Glad Season.

A New York branch has been opened by the Sittig Christmas Tree Society, the object of which is to provide a Christmas tree for 6,000 of Brooklyn's poor children, at the Atlantic Steel Monolithic Company's office in the Marbridge Building, Broadway and Thirty-fourth Street. Tunis H. Cox is the Secretary of this branch.

At the Brooklyn headquarters, 106 Montague Street, a series of meetings have been arranged for children in order to interest them in the work. Beginning next Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, they will be held every week. To attract an audience a musical programme will be provided, and a number of stories of wild beasts and of missionary work among children in heathen lands will be told by a former missionary. Committees will then be formed among the children to help in preparations for the Christmas tree.

Mrs. F. B. Huyler, who has had charge of the Doll Committee for seventeen years, will superintend the work of any women who offer their assistance. Mrs. Delany of the Mansion House, Brooklyn, is Chairman of the Candy Committee. Mr. and Mrs. Vannestrand have charge, as in former years, of dressing the tree, and Miss Vannestrand looks after the popcorn. Mrs. Arthur Hoffman is the head of the Mitten Committee.

Among the donations already received are $150 from Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont for 1,000 dolls; $10 from Miss Davidson, $5 from George Mabie, and a design for the dolls' dresses from Miss Delia Shull, an artist.

Checks for the Christmas tree may be sent to W. H. Wayne, Brooklyn Warehouse and Storage Company, 333 Schemmerhorn Street, Brooklyn.

Woman Victim of Pellagra.

ROCK HILL, S. C., Nov. 21.—Mrs. B. W. Clarke, wife of a foreman for a builder and contractor here, died this morning of pellagra. The woman had been ill for a long time, and seemed to be responding to treatment, but grew worse yesterday and died suddenly.

"Black" Opal Scarf Pins for Men

A Gift Suggestion by Marcus & Co., Jewelers, 5th Ave. at 45th St.

A BLACK OPAL SCARFPIN—Throughout the wide variety of jewelry to which the black opal lends its rare beauty in none is it more attractive than when applied to Scarfpins. It must be understood that the Black Opal is not black, but a dark Opal, that shows with every changing angle of light a kaleidoscope of color—iridescent flames of greens, blues, crimsons and yellows—a veritable riot of color.

This gem, with its strength and virility, is most excellently adapted to men's wear, and a man must be dead to beauty indeed who would not joyfully add a Black Opal Scarfpin to his collection.

The prices for Scarfpins range from $10 for pins of a single gem upward, when combined with other precious stones.

Aside from its charm as a beautiful gem the Black Opal must always remain unique and unusual. It can never become commonplace, because of its very limited production. Marcus & Co. have on exhibit the last of this year's mining from the now famous Lightning Ridge Mine of New South Wales.

The public are cordially invited to view this exhibit, which consists of uncut gems as well as simple and elaborate articles of jewelry.

HUNTS A WATCH BY WIRELESS.

Mrs. Boice Sends Word of Her Loss After Sailing for Bermuda.

Mrs. Grace Boice, who has been living at the Hotel Langham, Broadway and 103d Street, and who sailed on the Bermudian on Saturday, lost a valuable gold watch on her way to the steamer. That she did not discover her loss until several hundred miles out at sea was evidenced by the receipt of a wireless message yesterday from Mrs. Boice to the manager of the hotel, telling of her loss, and requesting that a search be made.

The message stated that the watch was probably lost in the taxicab in which Mrs. Boice and her mother, Mrs. C. L. Harned, made a hurried trip from the hotel to the Tenth Street pier. It also went on to state that the loser would expect a return message by wireless as soon as the watch was found.

But the watch has not been found up to the present, although the manager of the hotel has instituted a thorough search and questioned the driver of the taxicab.

The Bermudian can be reached by wireless up to the time she arrives at Hamilton. Mrs. Boice's friends were hoping yesterday to be able to send a message that the watch had been found before the steamer reaches her destination.

W. M. LAFFAN'S FUNERAL

To be Held at Lawrence, L. I., To-day —Fitz Gibbon Laffan Ill.

For the friends and relatives of the late William M. Laffan, owner of The Sun, whose funeral is to be held at his home, Lawrence, L. I., this morning, a special train will leave Long Island City at 10:15 o'clock. The service, a short and simple one, will follow immediately after the train's arrival. It is requested that no flowers be sent.

The indisposition of Fitz Gibbon Laffan, brother of W. M., who has been under the care of a trained nurse for a week at the Lotos Club, gave rise to reports yesterday that he was seriously ill of pneumonia. Inquiry at the Lotos Club brought the reply from his nurse that Mr. Laffan was "getting along nicely." It was said at the club that the reports of his condition must be exaggerated, because he was at least well enough to answer the telephone.

TABLET TO BELLA COOK.

"Saint of Second Avenue," Bedridden Fifty Years, Honored by Church.

A tablet to the memory of Bella Cook, the "saint of Second Avenue," who died a year ago, after being bedridden for more than half a century, was unveiled in the Rose Hill Methodist Episcopal Church, on East Twenty-seventh Street, between Second and Third Avenues, yesterday afternoon.

For fifty-five years Mrs. Cook was a devoted member of the church whose services she was not able to attend, owing to her affliction. Methodist ministers and many men and women who had known Mrs. Cook during her long life, participated in the memorial services, of which the Rev. F. J. Shackleton, pastor of the church, had charge.

The tablet is of marble, and is placed in the wall to the left of the pulpit.

GEORGE E. WOODHOUSE DEAD.

Protege of Moody Was Stricken at the Piano at a Y. M. C. A. Concert.

George E. Woodhouse, Secretary of the Naval Branch of the Young Men's Christian Association in Philadelphia, died at the Long Island College Hospital, Brooklyn, yesterday of hemorrhage of the brain. He came to this city last week.

He was born in Manchester, England, in 1871. He was brought to this country at the age of 16 years by the late Dwight L. Moody, the evangelist. He was a choir boy at one of the revivals conducted by Mr. Moody on a tour in England, when the evangelist was attracted to the boy because of his voice.

Mr. Moody sent him to his school at Mount Hermon, Mass., and later had him educated at Princeton and Oberlin. Mr. Woodhouse became interested in the work of the Young Men's Christian Association in 1899, and had been connected with that association ever since. He was Secretary of the West Side Branch in Manhattan for three years. He later held the same position in the Naval Branch in Brooklyn for four years. In May, 1906, he took charge of the association's work in the interest of sailors of the navy in Philadelphia.

Memorial Service for Gov. Johnson.

A memorial service in honor of the memory of the late Gov. John A. Johnson of Minnesota, will be held on Sunday afternoon, Nov. 28, at the Broadway Tabernacle, this city. Invitations to the service have been extended by the American Scandinavian Society of New York, of which President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia University is President. Speeches will be delivered by Gov. Charles E. Hughes, former Senator Charles A. Towne of Minnesota, and others. President Taft is among those who have been specially invited to attend.

James Elliott Defebaugh Dead.

JAMES ELLIOTT DEFEBAUGH, editor and proprietor of The American Lumberman, died in Chicago yesterday. Mr. Defebaugh was one of the leaders of lumbermen during the recent tariff revision in their fight for what they held to be an adequate rate of duty. He was 55 years old.

THE FINANCIAL SITUATION.

While attention was diverted from international money market affairs last week by spectacular developments among the great corporations whose financial activities centre in this city, it was nevertheless the substantial progress of both the London money market and our own toward ease which formed the most important development of the week in the financial situation as a whole. It goes without saying that such transactions as the purchase of "a substantial minority interest" in the Western Union Telegraph Company by the American Telegraph and Telephone Company, nearly one-quarter of the stock of which is held in the treasury of the Mackay Companies, the owners in turn of the Postal Telegraph and Commercial Cable, the declaration of a dividend of $300 a share on Wells-Fargo stock, and the announcement of the long-awaited financial plan of the Missouri Pacific Railroad are not only important matters in themselves but are also of wide significance to the public. It remains true, however, that upon the ease or stringency of money markets depends the success of the financial arrangements involved in all such operations as those enumerated, as well as the profitable conduct of all other business enterprises, and for that reason any change in money market conditions is of foremost interest. In the early days of last week open money market rates in London moved down to 3¾ to 4 per cent., and the reason was quickly forthcoming in Thursday's return of the Bank of England. That statement was by far the best made since the Bank put its 5 per cent. rate into effect a month ago, disclosing a reserve percentage of 54.45, which is the highest figure reported at this season of the year in the past decade. The Bank's gold holdings were largely augmented by receipts of gold from Paris and from South Africa, and so striking was the betterment thus effected that, taken in connection with the apparent intention of the Bank of France to furnish further assistance if need be, it was at once assumed that no further advance would be made this Winter in the Bank's rate, and that it was quite possible that a reduction in the present rate might be made by the Directors at an early date. While a lowering of the discount is suggested by the present strength of the Bank, such a step will probably depend wholly upon the political and business situation created by the rejection of the budget by the House of Lords. A general election in England is, of course, inevitable, and while this will tend to check business and thus reduce the demand for money, it may on the other hand necessitate rather extensive temporary financing by the Government, and thus work for continued firmness in the money market.

To our own market the upshot of this English situation is of direct consequence. Perhaps the plainest evidence of the fact is found in the extraordinary shipments of gold which our bankers are making just now to South America and to Canada upon London account. Over $6,000,000 gold went out on Saturday last because London was able to shift the burden of supplying this demand to our shoulders, and it therefore becomes a matter of considerable moment how long the local market must sustain the burden before London itself is again able to assume it. The load is a rather heavy one for our own market to bear, as Saturday's bank statement under the "actual" system proved very plainly. For in spite of the fact that interior institutions made practically no demands for funds during the week, and that on routine transactions with the Sub-Treasury the banks came out even, only a nominal increase in reserves was secured. The gold shipments made for London account were directly responsible for the showing. If last week's favorable outcome on transactions with inland banks could be construed to mean the disappearance of interior needs for money local banks could work along comfortably on their present resources and still finance the South American gold demands. This would be taking too much for granted, however, and besides the events of the week in the business world make it plain that the requirements of corporations, first evidenced in the calls of the Pennsylvania and New Haven for additional capital, are to be heavy. The Missouri Pacific financing involves the raising of $30,000,000, the proposed merger of copper interests will require a much larger amount, and the financing of the Telegraph-Telephone deal, postponed for the present, must eventually involve application to the money market for substantial amounts. On the whole, therefore, the outlook is for relative firmness in money over the end of the present year, and perhaps well into the next year, with the controlling factor lying in the course of the English market. A decidedly encouraging feature of the local money market position is the revival of our foreign trade. In June last, for the first time in twelve years, imports into this country exceeded our exports, the excess of imports being $7,158,000. Similar adverse balances were reported in July and in August, but in September exports were again in the ascendant, while in October, according to last week's Government report on foreign trade for that month, our shipments ran $71,000,000 over imports. This is a very vigorous reversal, so decisive, in fact, as to warrant the belief that we are again on the way toward normal conditions which in the past have resulted in balances of $500,000,000 a year or so in our favor.

For its justification in the public mind the Telephone Company's purchase of what is practically control of the Western Union must depend upon better service at present rates, or equally good or improved service at lower rates. It is probable that the transaction would not have been undertaken unless those who promoted it foresaw the opportunity to win approval on this basis. In an economic sense the amalgamation of properties having plants so largely in duplication ought to prove profitable, and the saved capital may very properly be devoted to increased facilities and service for the public. Of the Wells-Fargo dividend very little needs to be said. The transaction is simply a distribution to shareholders of accumulated profits, and the only public interest in it lies in the question whether or not those profits are not so large as to raise the presumption that they spell excessive charges for the service performed. It would be difficult to exaggerate the importance of the financial arrangements which the Missouri Pacific Railroad has at last made, but it is perhaps enough to point out here that the road is now in position to obtain capital to properly exploit the exceedingly rich territory which its own lines traverse and to prepare itself for the large traffic which must eventually come to it as a link in the transcontinental line which will come into operation with the completion of the Western Pacific. Incidentally, the Missouri Pacific has secured in the prosecution of this plan banking support which will attract and retain the confidence of investors the country over. Under such auspices the placing of this great property in the position to which it has all along been entitled is assured.

THE MARKETS OF EUROPE.

PRICES TUMBLE IN LONDON.

Approaching Rejection of Budget Causes Liquidation and Apprehension.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—As the rejection of the budget draws nearer the apprehension in the stock market increases. Prices are dwindling in almost every direction. Nobody knows what may happen, and consequently the fears of the Stock Exchange grow greater and greater. Operators in almost every market are closing their accounts, and the general liquidation has brought about a general and severe fall in prices. This, of course, applies only to British stocks, Americans pursuing their course regardless of European apprehension, and all things considered, it is surprising how firm the markets have proved to be.

The political crisis is at the bottom of it all, but the fear of restricted business does not justify the nervous gloom which the Stock Exchange seems unable to shake off.

In the money market gold has flowed in very encouragingly since the bank rate was raised to 5 per cent. in the third week of October, and although the period of dear money is not over the danger of higher bank rates seems to have passed.

PARIS STRONG IN MONEY.

Bourse Resumes Activity and Interest Rate Remains Low.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 21.—The market here recovered to a considerable degree in the course of the last half of the week from the slight depression of the early part. The great abundance of money was demonstrated by the continued large advances made to the Bank of England by the Bank of France without producing any local inconvenience. Interest charges are, in fact, lower than at the end of October, the present average being about 3½, which is small for the time of the year.

The Bourse and the Curb have resumed their wonted activity. The securities most favored have been those of the big credit companies, but industrials also have been strong. Rio Tintos rose on Saturday 20 francs, closing at 2007.

The liquidation in African gold stocks has continued with the reaction from the recent slight advance.

BERLIN MORE CHEERFUL.

Operators Less Anxious About Money Prospects and Trade Is Excellent.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Nov. 21.—Once again the week on the Boerse here has been dominated by the money market. Operators, however, were less inclined to view the money situation anxiously, and derived encouragement from the improved reports of the condition of the international steel and iron trade.

Electric and shipping industrials were active, and the general state of trade continued excellent. The manufacturers are, in fact, so well employed that the number of workless people was never before so small at the outset of Winter.

STEEL MEN MUST USE CRIPPLED MILLS

Every Means of Production Must Be Brought Into Active Service.

STEEL FEELS CAR FAMINE

Shortage of Cars to Carry Coke Is Threatening to Starve the Works That Need It Sorely.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 21.—The Mahoning and Shenango Valley furnace interests have practically withdrawn from the pig-iron market until after the first of the year. Every ton of output the Valley furnaces can possibly produce is taken to Feb. 1. In fact, it is said that some of the producers have over-contracted, and that consumers will suffer from delayed deliveries

Some scattering tonnage may be found in furnaces in this section outside the Valleys between now and the first of the year, but no more large tonnages can be secured. To get 12,000 tons of basic iron last week the Pittsburg Steel Company had to buy from four different furnace companies, taking deliveries scattered over the ten weeks between now and Feb. 1. The price paid averaged $18.40, delivered at buyer's works, which was on a basis of $17.50, Valleys. This was the only notable transaction of the week in pig iron outside of about 5,000 tons of off-grade foundry iron that sold for $17 and a shade less, which would not have found a market except for the present scarcity.

Many of the local foundry interests, who find they have not filled their needs for the remainder of this year, are asking as an accommodation that the furnaces deliver parts of tonnages contracted for shipment next year, paying next year's prices for prompt shipments. Where it is possible the furnaces are accommodating these regular customers, and some of the foundries have thus virtually exhausted the tonnages they had under contract for the first quarter of the next year. Foundry iron is still quoted at $17.25, Valleys, for prompt No. 2, and $17.50 and $17.75 for first quarter and first half.

The car shortage affected the furnaces and steel mills of the district during the week, but the handicap was not felt as severely here as in the coke regions. The shortage in the Connellsville field is said to be about 100 cars a day. Spot coke is quoted 10 cents higher, at $2.80, but contracts for first half of next year are still being made at the $2.90 price established a month ago. Indications are, however, that the Steel Corporation will be compelled to buy coke in the open market soon after the first of the year. The H. C. Frick Co. is running behind the Steel Corporation's demands. When the present rush in mills and furnaces started, the Frick concern had large surplus stocks of coke all over the region, but these are being gradually eaten up in the tremendous pace at which the combine furnaces have been pushed. It is predicted that shortage will develop before Feb. 1. The Frick Company is shipping coal to ovens at worked-out plants in an effort to keep up the supply.

The railroads came into the market during the week for over 25,000 steel cars—including the Pennsylvania's 10,000, the Santa Fe's 10,000, and 1,000 for the Lackawanna, 1,000 for the Pittsburg & Lake Erie, and 3,500 scattering. This brings the total of steel cars ordered this year to over 165,000, exclusive of steel passenger cars, traction coaches, and steel mine cars, and thus breaks the hitherto untouched record of 160,000 cars for 1907. The Pressed Steel Car Company alone has 40,000 cars on its books, all for delivery before next Summer. This total would keep the company's largest plant at McKees Rocks running at full capacity for over a year. The company started a second plant at Hammond, Ind., last month, and its third works at Wood's Run, Pittsburg, will go on full turn next week.

The demand of the steel car companies for plates from the steel mills has swept the market here. A Pittsburg interest canvassed the entire Pittsburg district this week with an order for 1,000 tons of standard-size plates and could not place the contract for delivery within four months. Eastern mills are shipping plates West on the basis of 1.65 cents, Pittsburg. The Cambria Steel Company last week advanced the price of steel bars to 1.60 cents, Pittsburg, which is practically a withdrawal from the market. The Carnegie Steel Company is refusing to contract for sheet bars for the first quarter, and the trade believes its capacity for that period is nearly all engaged by the running contracts existing with the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company and a few other sheet steel companies.

One Western independent last week put up the prices on ordinary wire product $2 a ton, and on wire nails $1 a ton. The expected advance by the American Steel & Wire Company on these two products has not yet been announced, but is expected before Dec. 1. The advance predicted for merchant pipe may not be made before Jan. 1. In anticipation of coming advances in both these products, however, there is a flood of orders for early delivery. The wire combine is accepting no orders at present prices for delivery beyond Dec. 15. Speculators have practically cornered the supply of twisted wire rods for concrete reinforcement in this section, and in some cases the shortage that has resulted has delayed building operations. Costly premiums are being levied against the builders who are short of rods.

The advance made in sheets and tin plate a week ago seem to have had no effect on the daily volume of business that continues to flow into the mills. One or two independent sheet makers have their books filled till May 1. Wrought iron pipe prices are firm at the new level established Nov. 10, and an advance in cast iron pipe is expected before the end of the year.

Crippled machinery and unused rail mills are being forced into service to increase the available supply of billets. Two rail mills at the Edgar Thomson plant of the Carnegie Steel Company are rolling small billets. A partially dismantled mill of the Cambria Steel Company is being utilized to turn out steel bars. The Jones & Laughlin Steel Company turned an obsolete mill in on billets during the week. The 45,000 tons of billets being rolled at the rail mill of the Maryland Steel Company at Sparrow's Point, Md., it develops, are to supply the Steel Corporation's tube mills at McKeesport. The increase in rail orders during the last ten days, however, indicates that some of this rail capacity will be needed. About 140,000 tons of standard rails were booked during the week just ended, of which 40,000 came to the Carnegie Steel Company, 36,000 to the Steel Corporation's Birmingham mills, 15,000 to the Lackawanna at Buffalo, and the remainder to the Chicago and Gary plants. Chicago and Gary together have on their books 900,000 tons of rails for next year's rolling. The Gary rail plant is to have a rated capacity of 900,000 tons a year, of which about 70 per cent. is now in operation.

THE CROPS IN DOLLARS.

Twelve Principal Crops Alone Show a Value of Over $5,000,000,000.

The combination of high prices for most of the principal farm staples and yields which have only been exceeded in a few items, never taking the year's harvests on the average, have made this season one of record prosperity for farmers. At the farm values on Nov. 1 the twelve principal staples, the cotton crop being estimated at 11,000,000 bales, will yield the farmer something over $5,000,000,000, with eggs, poultry, livestock products, fruits, sugar cane, and beets, tobacco and garden products still to be heard from.

This year wheat and cotton have been fetching the highest yields in money, but most of the other staples are also a little higher than at this time last year, notably flaxseed, which is 31½ cents a bushel higher. Wheat is bringing 8.4 cents per bushel more than in 1908, cotton 5 cents per pound more, buckwheat 5.5 cents per bushel more, and hay $1.12 per ton more. Potatoes, because of the enormous yield, are selling for 11.4 cents per bushel less, corn at 1.3 cents less, and oats 5.5 cents per bushel less. The decreases in the other staples' prices are nominal.

As for yields, cotton and hay are the only two important crops which show a smaller yield than last year, and in these staples the 1908 crops were the largest ever known. Moreover, the large advance in cotton has more than made up for the short prospective crop, and in hay, also, the higher price goes a great way toward offsetting the smaller cutting. Corn, wheat, and oats, besides being larger than last year, closely approach the greatest harvests of the past. To sum up in percentage, the six leading cereals show a yield of 7.6 per cent. greater than last year, and only 4 per cent. below the sum of the record years in each. The following table gives the farm values of the principal crops of 1909, on a basis of the valuations as estimated by the Department of Agriculture as of Nov. 1, and compares this year's harvest with those of the record years in each staple: (Figures in bushels except where stated.)

The Weekly Financial Review.

The text of the decision against the Standard Oil Company is reprinted in today's issue of THE NEW YORK TIMES WEEKLY FINANCIAL REVIEW, along with interesting information about the celebrated case. There are special articles, too, about the Missouri Pacific financing, the big distributions by Pennsylvania, Wells Fargo, and other companies to stockholders during the week, and the coming merger of copper concerns.

Railroad Systems of the United States

The railroad systems of the United States, both from a transportation and investment standpoint, offer the investor a very interesting form of study.

In order to aid the investor in this study, we are preparing a series of pamphlets, each describing an important railroad system, showing its progress and development from its earliest period to the present time, and containing a map of the system.

Those issued to date include the Atchison System, which we have just completed; the Southern Railway, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Pennsylvania and Reading Systems.

We shall take pleasure in furnishing copies of any of the above upon request.

THE MISSOURI PACIFIC RAILWAY CO.

TREASURER'S OFFICE,
195 BROADWAY.

A. H. CALEF, Treasurer.

NEW YORK, N. Y., November 17, 1909.

TO THE STOCKHOLDERS OF THE MISSOURI PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY:

Pursuant to a resolution of the Board of Directors, adopted November 10, 1909, and subject to the approval of the Stockholders, for the purpose of securing which approval a special meeting has been called to convene January 18, 1910, the privilege will be given to stockholders of this Company to subscribe upon the terms and conditions hereinafter stated, on or before January 21, 1910, for an amount of Convertible Five Per Cent. First and Refunding Mortgage Fifty-Year Gold Bonds, equal in face amount to thirty-six per cent. (36%) of the par value of their respective holdings of the stock of this Company, as registered on its books, at three o'clock P. M., on December 8, 1909.

Warrants signed by the Treasurer or an Assistant Treasurer will be issued to stockholders as soon as possible after the closing of the books on December 8, 1909, specifying the amount of bonds for which each stockholder is entitled to subscribe. Such subscription warrants will be issued only for amounts of $500, or in multiples thereof. For each fraction of a $500 bond for which a stockholder is entitled to subscribe, a fractional warrant will be issued, which, if presented on or before January 14, 1910, with other fractional warrants aggregating $500, will be exchangeable for a subscription warrant for a $500 bond; and if the surrendered fractional warrants include a fraction in excess of $500, a new fractional warrant will be issued for such fraction.

On the back of these warrants will be two forms. The first is to be filled out and signed by the stockholders or by their assigns, in case they desire to subscribe. The second form, which is an assignment, is to be filled out and signed by the stockholders only in case they desire to dispose of their subscription privilege.

Stockholders who may wish to subscribe for a portion of the bonds covered by a warrant and dispose of the balance of the subscription privilege, or who may wish to dispose of a portion of the subscription privilege covered by the warrant to one person and the balance to another, should return their warrants to this office on or before January 14, 1910, to be split up into warrants for the desired amounts. Warrants so returned should be accompanied by a statement in writing specifying the number of warrants desired in exchange and the amount of bonds to be covered by each.

The price of subscription, payable in New York funds, is:
$475 per $500 bond, with accrued interest adjusted.

Such price will be payable at the office of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, 28 Nassau Street, New York City, in instalments, as follows:

	Per $1,000 bond.	Per $500 bond.
At the time of making subscription, on or before January 21, 1910	$350	$175
On or before March 4, 1910	$300	$150
On or before April 15, 1910	$300	$150

Subscriptions may be paid for in full at the time of making subscription, on or before January 21, 1910, in which case the amount payable will be $944.44 per $1,000 bond or $472.22 per $500 bond; or, after the payment of the first instalment on or before January 21, 1910, as above provided, the remainder of the subscription may be paid in full on or before March 4, 1910, by paying $598.20 per $1,000 bond, or $299.10 per $500 bond.

Bonds will be issued with coupons maturing September 1, 1910, attached, and the foregoing payments include an adjustment of accrued interest to March 1, 1910.

The warrants must be surrendered to the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, by the stockholders, or by the persons to whom assigned, on or before January 21, 1910, accompanied by the payment to said trust company, as depositary, of the first instalment; and all warrants not so surrendered with such payment on or before said date shall be void and of no value.

Failure to pay the second or third instalments when and as payable will operate as a forfeiture of all rights in respect of the subscription and the instalments previously paid.

The Guaranty Trust Company of New York will, on surrender of the warrants and payment of the first instalment, issue receipts which will be transferable by delivery and which must be presented to the Guaranty Trust Company of New York upon the payment of the second and third instalments in order that such payment may be noted thereon.

Fractions desired by stockholders to complete full bonds, or fractions which stockholders desire to dispose of, must be bought or sold in the market, as the Company will not buy or sell fractions.

Full-paid receipts for bonds will be exchangeable for the engraved bonds as soon as issued.

No subscription or assignment of this privilege will be recognized unless made on the forms of the Company.

No stockholder of the Company shall be entitled to any of the above-mentioned bonds unless the terms of subscription herein specified are fully complied with.

The subscription and respective instalment payments must be made to the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, 28 Nassau Street, New York City, at the dates and in accordance with the provisions stated above. Checks or drafts in payment of subscriptions must be drawn in favor of Guaranty Trust Company of New York, in New York funds, and for the exact amounts covering the respective instalments.

By order of the Board of Directors.

A. H. CALEF, Treasurer.

P. S. A statement giving details of the First and Refunding Mortgage Fifty-Year Gold Bond of the security therefor will be furnished upon application at the office of the Railway Company.

Chicago Great Western Railroad Company

Voting Trust Certificates in engraved form, pursuant to the Plan of Reorganization of the Chicago Great Western Railway Company, will be ready for issue on and after November 22, 1909, in exchange for Certificates of Deposit duly endorsed and surrendered, and upon which all calls have been paid. In case it is desired that the Voting Trust Certificates be issued to any other person than the one named on the face of the surrendered certificate, the New York transfer tax of two cents per share must be paid, and the endorsement on the surrendered certificate must be acknowledged before a Notary Public or attested by some person satisfactory to us.

Not exceeding 100 schedules per day will be received. No schedules will be received after 2:00 P. M.

Certificates will not be issued representing fractions of shares. Such fractions will be bought, or additional fractions necessary to make an entire share will be sold, at the market rate at the close of the day. Parties transmitting the outstanding Certificates of Deposit by mail or express, will please indicate whether they wish to buy or sell such additional fractions, and whether they wish the Voting Trust Certificates forwarded by registered mail or by express at their expense.

Application will be made to the list the Voting Trust Certificates on the New York Stock Exchange.

Why 6% Timber Bonds Are So Popular

Behind your loan you want assets that are valuable and also salable.

Standing timber is an unsurpassed security, BECAUSE

FIRST: Standing timber is a "quick asset." It is a staple—salable at once—on the stump—uncut. It need not, like a railroad or a plant, be sold as a unit. It can be cut up to suit buyers. Therefore, it is readily salable.

SECOND: Standing timber does not depreciate; instead, it is always growing.

THIRD: The consumption of timber is increasing. Timber values are rising.

FOURTH: A tract of standing timber is like a field of grain ready for the harvest.

Write for our circular No. 40, telling about a timber bond issue yielding 6%. This timber on the stump is salable at once for four times the bond issue. The Company is earning six times the interest on the bonds, and two and a half times the interest and sinking fund requirements.

The Mechanics' National Bank of the City of New York,

33 WALL STREET.

Notice of Special Meeting of Stockholders.

New York, November 22, 1909.

A special meeting of the stockholders of The Mechanics' National Bank of the City of New York, is hereby called to be held at its banking office, No. 33 Wall Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 23d day of December, 1909, at 12 o'clock noon, for the following purposes:

1. To vote upon resolutions authorizing and approving of the purchase by this Bank of the assets and business of the National Copper Bank, as the same shall appear upon the books of the said Bank at the time of the merger, which shall be at least equal to the assets and business of the said The Mechanics' National Bank of the City of New York, at the time of such merger.

2. To authorize the increase of the capital stock of The Mechanics' National Bank of the City of New York from three million dollars ($3,000,000) to six million dollars, ($6,000,000,) by the issue of thirty thousand (30,000) additional shares, each of the par value of one hundred dollars ($100), which said increased capital stock shall be used for the purpose of acquiring the said assets and business of the National Copper Bank, to the end that the said National Copper Bank may be consolidated and merged with this Bank; and to confirm the action of the Board of Directors in declaring a dividend of 21 per cent., contingent upon the consolidation of this Bank with the National Copper Bank becoming effective.

3. To provide that the Articles of Association of this Bank be amended so that the name of the Bank shall be changed to The Mechanics' and Metals National Bank of the City of New York, so that the Board of Directors shall consist of not less than twenty-five nor more than forty Directors, as from time to time the by-laws may prescribe, so as to provide for additional officers, so as to provide that a number of Directors less than a majority as determined by the by-laws of the Bank shall constitute a quorum, and in the event that the Articles of Association shall be so amended and the Board of Directors increased, then to elect a Board of Directors in accordance with such amendments.

4. In the event that the capital stock shall finally be increased to $6,000,000 by the addition of 30,000 shares, each of the par value of $100, then to waive the right to subscribe for such shares and to authorize the use of such additional shares in acquiring the assets and business of the said National Copper Bank.

And generally to vote upon any and all propositions in connection with the proposed merger and consolidation and the increase in the capitalization, the amendment in the Articles of Association and the issue of the proposed capital stock and the waiver and use thereof, as shall be necessary in order to carry into effect the proposed merger and consolidation and the acquisition by this Bank of the assets and business of the National Copper Bank.

The transfer books of this Bank shall be closed from 12 M., December 11, 1909, to 10 A. M., December 24, 1909.

This meeting is duly authorized and called and this notice is duly given by order of the Board of Directors.

FRANK O. ROE, Cashier.

OFFICES—Ames Building, Boston, Mass.

Subscriptions for 50,000 shares of Treasury Stock at par, $5 per share, will be received to-day at the offices of all New York and Boston Stock Exchange Houses.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

Subscription closes and allotment made Friday, November 26th.

Payment to be made at time of subscription.

All subscribers will be alloted pro rata.

Prospectus of Company, with full description of property, mines and plant, with subscription blanks, may be had at all New York and Boston Stock Exchange houses, or at the offices of the Company. Public trading on the New York and Boston markets will begin on Saturday, November 27th, the day following allotment.

In offering the Treasury Stock of the Calaveras Copper Company for public subscription, the Company would say:

The mines have been owned for many years by one of the strongest and most conservative estates in New England, which, at an outlay of more than $1,000,000, has fully developed the mines and erected a complete plant, consisting of concentrator, smelter, electric lighting and power plant, and complete mine equipment.

The property, plant and all expenses of every nature have been paid for by said estate.

The ore is exceptionally rich and an annual output of in excess of 17,000,000 pounds will be produced at a cost of less than 8 cents a pound.

The annual earnings upon a production of 17,000,000 pounds, upon a 13-cent copper market, should assure 20 per cent. annual returns upon an investment in the stock at par.

As the Company's property is all paid for, and no other capital than the proceeds of the present offering is required, no more Treasury Stock will be sold, unless in the future it is deemed advisable to increase equipment, and then the offering would be at a higher price than par.

The estate, which has always owned and has developed the mine and erected the plant, retains all the bonds and a very large part of the outstanding stock, and its representatives hold, and will continue to hold, the vice-presidency, treasurership and secretaryship, and their oversight of the management of the Company is a guarantee to investors of future conservative and able management of the enterprise.

The Company recommends the stock of the Calaveras Copper Company to all investors who would secure safety of investment combined with large returns and probability of very large profits; and assures such investors that an investigation of the property's past history and the present Company's plans for the future will prove the claim that it makes that there has never before in the history of copper investments been a like opportunity for so advantageous an investment.

The present is the most opportune time for investment in copper stocks, and particularly in Calaveras stock, for the reason that the great copper producers and consumers are about perfecting plans which will place the industry upon a permanent basis, and which will cause the price of the metal to advance to much higher prices and permanently remain there, and that at the new price, which will prevail upon the consummation of such plans, Calaveras should make earnings which will give good annual dividend returns upon an investment of from $20 to $30 per share for the stock, now offered at par, $5, per share.

The public are usually invited to invest in a copper property at the beginning of its career that the capital which they supply may be used in developing the mines and later in the erection of the plant, which means that the public, after investment, must wait from three to five years for dividend returns upon their investment. The Calaveras stock is the first copper enterprise of which we have any knowledge which has bought its property, developed its mines and erected an up-to-date plant and paid for all with private capital; that is, the first copper enterprise which has been offered for public subscription where private capital has taken all the risk and endured the long necessary wait, and has asked the public to participate in the undertaking only when it was an assured success and ready to give large dividend returns from its production.

Notwithstanding the above facts and the further one that the Company could dispose of to private investors, banking houses and promoters, who are desirous of handling the flotation, much more than its present offering at par, it has adopted this method of disposing of the limited amount of its Treasury Stock, in the belief that a large oversubscription and consequent rapid rise in the price of its stock in the public market after allotment will in the end be more advantageous to all of its stockholders.

BLINDNESS OR DEATH.

The Fate in Store for T. G. Lennon, Who Tried Suicide When Accused.

At St. Michael's Hospital, in Newark, N. J., last night it was said that Thomas G. Lennon, the Jersey City politician who attempted suicide on Saturday by shooting himself in the left temple in the Continental Hotel, in Newark, had shown a slight improvement during the day, which gave the doctors some hope for his recovery. If he lives, the doctors say, he will be blind. His bride of nine weeks has been at his bedside almost constantly since Saturday night.

Lennon is wanted by the New York authorities on a warrant charging him with being a party to the embezzlement of $15,000 from the Manhattan Lighterage Company, a subsidiary of the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey, in which he had long been employed as a cashier. Thomas J. Davis, also an employe in the same department with Lennon, was recently arrested in New York and held in $5,000 bail on a similar charge.

Davis managed the campaign of Lennon when the latter made a fight against the regular Democratic Party machine in Hudson County prior to the September primaries, in an effort to win the nomination for County Register. It is believed that they took the money to pay the expenses of the political contest, Lennon being of the belief that he could win and that he could then make restitution before discovery was made of what they had done.

It was said at the hospital last night that Lennon had told what amounted to a confession.

DISSOLUTION NOTICES.

AT A SPECIAL TERM, PART I., OF THE Supreme Court, held at the Court House in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 13th day of October, 1909. Present: Hon. Henry Bischoff, Justice.

In the matter of the voluntary dissolution of the Zucchi Manufacturing Company, a domestic corporation.

On reading and filing the petition of Leander H. Crall, Frederic West MacDonald, and Emile O Zucchi, verified September 30th, 1909, and October 7th, 1909, respectively, whereby it appears that they are all of the Directors of the above-named corporation, and that the same is a corporation created by and existing under the Business Corporation Law, and that it is beneficial to the interest of the stockholders and the creditors of the corporation that said corporation be dissolved, and praying for a final order of the court dissolving such corporation, and appointing Frederic West MacDonald receiver thereof, together with proofs of due and timely service of notice of this motion and of a copy of said petition, and of the proposed order herein, upon the Attorney General of the State of New York; on motion of Ronald K. Brown, attorney for said petitioners, it is Ordered that all persons interested in the corporation show cause before this court at a Special Term, Part I. thereof, on the first day of December, 1909, at the opening of the court on that day, or as soon thereafter as counsel can be heard, why the said Zucchi Manufacturing Company should not be dissolved; and it is further Ordered that a copy of this order be published at least once in each week of the three weeks immediately preceding the said first day of December, 1909, in The New York Law Journal and in The New York Times, published in the City of New York, in the County of New York, wherein this order is entered.

REAL ESTATE.

Florida Land.

We strongly urge full investigation of Florida lands offered for sale by the Tampa Bay Land Company through us. The land is very fertile, prices low and terms very easy. No taxes for four years and no interest. Amount of land limited, and growing less daily.

We can show where a good income can be made at a very moderate initial expense, which is soon returned through cultivation of the land. To any one interested in agriculture this is a splendid opportunity, also as an investment it is of the best. It is well worth the time of any one to either call upon us or send a letter or postal and our representative will call. We will give fullest particulars in regard to this land and its productiveness, also prices, terms, &c.

On motion of Hays, Hershfield & Wolf, attorneys for the Receiver and Trustee herein, it is Ordered that all the creditors of the above-named bankrupts, and all persons, firms, and corporations claiming stocks, bonds or securities, or other assets, or the proceeds thereof, in the possession, custody, or control of the Receiver or Trustee herein, (excepting those creditors, persons, firms, or corporations claiming stocks, bonds and securities, or any other assets, or the proceeds thereof, in the possession, custody, and control of the American Trust & Savings Bank, the ancillary Receiver in Chicago, Illinois,) be and they hereby are directed to file their claims thereto or therefor, duly verified, in the office of the Clerk of this Court, on or before the 11th day of December, 1909; and it is further

Ordered that any and all creditors or other claimants to or for stocks, bonds and securities, and other assets, or the proceeds thereof, which are now in the possession, custody, and control of the American Trust & Savings Bank, the ancillary Receiver in Chicago, be and they hereby are directed to file their claims thereto and therefor, duly verified, in the office of the Clerk of this Court within twenty days from the 11th day of December, 1909, provided that on or before said date the Trustee herein has filed a report in the office of the Clerk of this Court, showing all the bonds, stocks and securities, and other assets, or the proceeds thereof, which the said Trustee has received from the American Trust & Savings Bank, but if no such report has been filed on or before the 11th day of December, 1909, any and all such creditors or claimants be and they hereby are directed to file their claims thereto and therefor in the office of the Clerk of this Court within twenty days after the filing by the Trustee of such a report; and after notice has been given of such filing to such claimants as shall have filed with the Trustee's attorneys a written demand for such notice

Ordered that any and all creditors or claimants to said stocks, bonds, and securities, or other assets, or the proceeds thereof, who shall not file such claims to or for the said stocks, bonds and securities, and other assets, or the proceeds thereof, thereby asserting their right, title, and interest therein and thereto on or before the aforementioned times, be and they hereby are forever barred from making or asserting any right, title, and interest in or to the said stocks, bonds and securities, or other assets now in the possession, custody, and control of the Receiver or Trustee herein, or in the possession, custody, and control of the American Trust & Savings Bank, ancillary Receiver herein, and the said creditors and claimants are, in default thereof, hereby forever enjoined and restrained from making, claiming, or asserting any such right, title, and interest therein and thereto; and it is further

Ordered that all creditors or claimants who have heretofore instituted reclamation proceedings herein be and the same hereby are directed to intervene herein, and the petitions or affidavits in said reclamation proceedings be deemed and considered as answers to the petition and order to show cause herein; and all evidence taken and proceedings had heretofore in such reclamation proceedings shall be admitted and used after such interventions as though taken therein;

Ordered that the determination of all rights, titles, and interests, if any, in and to any and all of the said stocks, bonds and securities, or other assets, or the proceeds thereof, made as aforesaid, be and the same hereby is referred to William H. Willis, who is hereby appointed Special Master for that purpose, to hear and determine the rights of such creditors and claimants, including the Receiver and Trustee in Bankruptcy herein; and the said Special Master is directed in all respects to adjust, determine, and adjudicate the rights, titles, interests, securities, claims, and liens therein and thereto, and report to this Court his determination therein; and it is further Ordered that the Trustee herein serve this order upon all the creditors or other persons interested herein, who shall have filed notices of appearance herein, at their addresses appearing upon the books of the above-named bankrupts, on or before the 4th day of December, 1909, and publish a copy of this order in the New York Times and the Chicago Tribune once a week for two successive weeks, the last publication to be not later than December 4, 1909, which shall be and is hereby declared to be a sufficient service hereof.

REFEREES' NOTICES.

SUPREME COURT, COUNTY OF NEW York.—JOHN STAUDT, as Executor under the Last Will and Testament of Joseph Huber, deceased, Plaintiff, against SAMUEL SCHENKER, and others, Defendants.

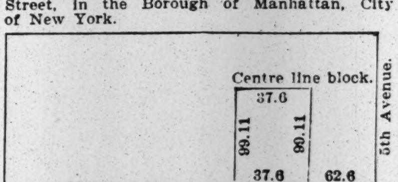
In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale, duly made and entered in the above-entitled action and bearing date the 12th day of November, 1909, I, the undersigned, the Referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction, at the Exchange Salesroom, Nos. 14-16 Vesey Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 7th day of December, 1909, at 12 o'clock noon on that day, by BRYAN L. KENNELLY, Auctioneer, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold, and therein described as follows:

ALL that certain lot, piece or parcel of land, with the buildings and improvements thereon erected, situate lying and being in the Borough of Manhattan, of the City of New York, in the County of New York, bounded and described as follows:

BEGINNING at a point on the Northerly side of 137th Street, distant sixty-two feet six inches Westerly from the corner formed by the intersection of said Northerly side of 137th Street with the Westerly side of 5th Avenue; running thence Northerly, parallel with 5th Avenue ninety-nine feet eleven inches to the centre line of the block between 137th and 138th Streets; thence Westerly, along said centre line of the block, thirty-seven feet six inches; thence Southerly, parallel with 5th Avenue, ninety-nine feet eleven inches to the Northerly side of 137th Street; and thence Easterly, along the Northerly side of 137th Street, thirty-seven feet six inches to the point or place of beginning.

Dated New York, November 12th, 1909.
LAUREN CARROLL, Referee.
GUSTAV LANGE, JR., Attorney for Plaintiff. Office & Post Office Address No. 257 Broadway, Borough of Manhattan, New York City.

The following is a diagram of the property to be sold; its street Number is 3 West 137th Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York.



The approximate amount of the lien or charge, to satisfy which the above-described property is to be sold, is Thirteen thousand, three hundred forty-two and 32-100 dollars ($13,342.32), with interest thereon from the 12th day of November, 1909, together with the costs and allowance amounting to Three hundred and seventy-eight and 03-100 dollars ($378.03), with interest from November 12th, 1909, together with the expenses of the sale. The approximate amount of the taxes, assessments and water rates, or other liens, which are to be allowed to the purchaser out of the purchase money, or paid by the Referee, is One thousand, seven hundred thirty-five and 95-100 dollars ($1,735.95) and interest.

The premises will be sold subject to a first mortgage, now a lien on said premises, to secure the payment of the sum of Twenty-six thousand dollars ($26,000), with interest thereon at the rate of five per cent. (5%) per annum from September 17th, 1909.

The premises will also be sold subject to whatever right, title and interest the Raisler Heating Company may have by virtue of a notice of conditional sale or chattel mortgage No. 85,103, and filed against the premises above described, together with other property, and Cohen and Bramfield as vendees, in the office of the Register of the County of New York on December 7th, 1908.

Dated New York, November 12th, 1909.
LAUREN CARROLL, Referee.

MAGNES CRITICISES RABBIS' CONFERENCE

But for the Appearance of a Hopeful Tendency Many Rabbis Would Resign, He Says.

LACK OF LOGIC IS SHOWN

And No One Knows Yet What the Conference's Attitude on Intermarriage Was, He Declares.

Preaching yesterday in Temple Emanu-El, Forty-third Street and Fifth Avenue, upon the work of the recent conference of American rabbis, the Rev. Dr. Judah L. Magnes declared that the conference had shown itself to have "no positive principles," and that the rabbis were repeating phrases and holding logical positions that were three generations old. But for the fact that a new tendency in Reform Judaism was apparent in the deliberations of the conference, several of the reform rabbis would have felt it their duty to resign from the conference, Dr. Magnes intimated.

Dr. Magnes hailed the appearance of a new religious party in American Judaism, more hopeful than either the so-called reform Judaism or the strict old orthodox faith. He declared it his cherished hope that Temple Emanu-El, which is the most wealthy and one of the oldest Reform Jewish congregations in the country, would "see its great opportunity and take the lead in this new Jewish movement, which was neither orthodox nor reformed, but which strove to be a positive and living Judaism, drawing its inspiration both from modern thought and from traditional Judaism, which it reverenced as its mother."

Dr. Magnes further charged, in effect, that the reform rabbis were afraid to face the question of race or of nationality in Judaism; that is, of Zionism. To this fear was due the attempted "straddle" of the convention of rabbis on the question of mixed marriages.

"No one really knows," he said, "whether the conference is for or against mixed marriages.

"This was due previously to the fact that the conference had been afraid to face the matter of the racial distinctiveness of the Jew, he said, and it was only from such a standpoint that a definite position upon the intermarriage of Jew and Christian could be taken.

In beginning his address, Dr. Magnes said it was his impression that the conference had had no effect at all upon the religious thought of New York Jews.

"This was," said he, "because the conference had no definite principles. No word was heard of Jewish theology and of the attitude of reformed Judaism toward the traditional theology of the Jews and towards modern philosophic development.

"This lack of positiveness was due to the presence of two conflicting tendencies within reformed Judaism.

"The one tendency is away from Judaism; the other is toward Judaism. The one is the old-time reform, which has now become ossified. The other is a movement on the part of the younger Jews toward the living source of traditional Judaism.

"The old-time reform found the breath of its nostrils in a denunciation of the traditions and ceremonies and life of the so-called orthodox Jew. The new tendency looks with reverence upon traditional Judaism and seeks to absorb from it its truth and beauty and nobility.

"How strange to this younger generation of Jews are the recent attacks upon orthodox Jews and Judaism by some reform leaders who have still been left to us by the worn-out movement of an older day. Such vulgar and inane onslaughts upon traditional Judaism appear to us like the ravings of an anti-Semite.

"The Jews of the new generation are on the one hand not orthodox, that is, they are not like their fathers have been, and insofar they may be regarded as reformed Jews. But they are on the other hand not reformed in the accepted sense of this term and they are as far removed from the anti-Jewish tendency of the old reform, represented in some of our reform rabbis, as they are from any one of the various kinds of Jewish apostasy."

Dr. Magnes said that the old reform tendency had lost its original power and was not the predominating influence within the recent conference. But on the other hand the newer movement was not yet clearly defined enough to leave its impress upon reformed Judaism. It was still in process of definition, he thought, but it would not be long before its propaganda would win the support among those enthusiastic and hopeful for their people and their religion, but who have not yet found their place in modern Jewish life.

Dr. Magnes thought that one of the basic principles of the newest movement would be the "recognition of the existence of a Jewish race or people or nationality."

To the fact that many of the reform rabbis had "no clear idea of the place of the Jewish race or nationality" was due much of "the lack of logic than characterized the proceedings of the conference," said Dr. Magnes. As two examples of this lack of clearness, he cited the appreciation at the conference of the life of David Einhorn, one of the founders of reformed Judaism, and the discussion over mixed marriages.

"Whatever David Einhorn may or may not have been," said Dr. Magnes, "he recognized the existence of a Jewish race. He even went so far as to say: 'There is no such thing as Judaism; there are only Jews,' meaning thereby that whatever the Jews of any given generation produced out of their own consciousness was to be regarded as Judaism.

"Yet in all the discussion about Einhorn this fundamental part of his theory was overlooked because of the unwillingness of our rabbis to face the question of race or of nationality in Judaism."

RABBI RAPS POLITICIANS.

Dr. Schulman Criticises Them for the Recent Mud-Slinging Campaign.

The methods used in the Mayoralty campaign were severely censured yesterday by the Rev. Dr. Schulman in a Thanksgiving Day sermon at the Temple Beth-El, Seventy-fifth Street and Fifth Avenue. He declared that three better men had never been candidates for office than those who ran this year, yet the campaign took on features that disgusted fairminded people, as they included injustice, insincerity, and brazen impudence.

The injustice the rabbi held to be the condemnation of a man whose character had been universally praised, because he accepted the nomination of a particular political party. The insincerity lay in the fact that the man who in 1905 was called an Anarchist by both the Democrats and Republicans, was proclaimed the savior of New York.

"The brazen impudence," said Dr. Schulman, "was a magazine article full of the vaguest abstractions and the most sweeping generalizations. Not one concrete instance was given to connect the white slave traffic with the politicians, but the Jewish people were branded and wholesale aspersion cast on Jewish womanhood.

"The Jewish name is too holy to be dragged into a campaign no matter for what purpose. We believe in the punishment of criminals of whatever race, but we object to an attack on our name during a dirty campaign."

Dr. Schulman went on to criticise the delegation of Jews who called on Mr. Gaynor to say that they were about to deliver to him the Jewish vote, and also the unparalleled bitterness of vituperation which was cast on the same candidate by another rabbi.

"Judaism is neither Tammany nor anti-Tammany," said the rabbi. "I repel with scorn its identification with any politics. There was no great moral uprising in this campaign and so the pulpits were silent. The election turned on the efficiency of the municipal administration. The result proved the value of the judgment of the people. They can be relied on more than the professional politicians and reformers."

FOUND SHOT IN THE STREET.

Saloonkeeper Dies Later—Man Arrested Had Dead Man's Card.

A prosperous looking man, apparently an Italian, died in Bellevue Hospital last night from a bullet wound in the left side of the abdomen, inflicted by some person unknown to the police, in front of 332 East Fourteenth Street. The man died within less than two minutes after he reached the hospital in charge of Dr. Carlucci. Because he was seen by firemen and three policemen, the police say, to run west on Fourteenth Street from Second Avenue, after the shot was heard, a man who says he is John Coraci, a barber of 325 East Twelfth Street, is locked up in the East Twenty-second Street Station as a suspicion person.

Shortly after the body was taken to the Morgue from Bellevue Hospital, a man who gave his name as George C. Capizzuto, a retired grocer, of 337 East Fourteenth Street, identified the body as that of Louis Livoti, a saloon keeper of Corona, L. I. He said that the dead man lived at 158 Corona Street, in that town until a few weeks ago, when he moved to an address on Eloyd Street.

The name and former address of the dead man are inscribed on a card, which the police say they took from the prisoner, Coraci. The police asked Capizzuto if he was acquainted with the prisoner. He said that he did not know the man, but had frequently heard his name mentioned by the dead man. He could not say whether Coraci was mentioned as a friend or enemy by Livoti.

Livoti has a family in Corona.

Three policemen near Fourteenth Street and Second Avenue heard a shot fired. All three ran from Second Avenue into Fourteenth Street in time, they say, to see a man running toward Third Avenue with three firemen attached to Engine Company 5, in Fourteenth Street, near Second Avenue, pursuing him.

The policemen caught him, and at the station house he said, according to the police, that he was walking toward Avenue B on Fourteenth Street, on his way to visit friends, when the shot was heard. The police doubt his story, they say, because he cannot explain why he was running with all his might away from the scene of the shooting.

The police searched the prisoner, and found in his pockets a visiting card bearing the name "Louis Livoti," with the address "158 Corona Street, Corona, L. I."

The revolver with which the unidentified man was shot was found by detectives. It is a 38-calibre of good make. One of the chambers was empty, and signs of the recent discharge of a cartridge could be seen.

CUSHING WON'T EXPLAIN.

Declines to Tell More Fully Why He Quit Columbia.

The authorities of Columbia University and of the Columbia Law School were as much in the dark as ever yesterday in regard to the sudden resignation of Harry Alonzo Cushing, acting Dean of the Law School. As for Mr. Cushing himself, he was as little prepared as ever to clear up the matter. When told that President Butler and others connected with the University had said of his statement that "the disclosures of methods made it impossible for me consistently to remain," that this was Greek to them, Prof. Cushing remarked:

"Well, I suppose that if they find it Greek to them, that is all there is to it; they can take it that way.

"I have no intention of saying anything at all," he added. "I only gave last night's statement to dispel the stories of my disappearance. The matter of explanation is immaterial to me altogether. I am all right physically and mentally. I am ready to convince you of that [here he smiled], to have you doctor in to examine me before you."

The Columbia authorities say any explanation must come from Prof. Cushing, and that his statement meant too little to be worthy of answer from them.

GIRL ESCAPES BY A LEAP.

Jumps from a Window to Get Away from Four Captors.

Special to The New York Times.

PATERSON, N. J., Nov. 21.—The Mamie Sullivan unsolved murder mystery of a dozen years ago was recalled here to-night when another Mamie Sullivan, 15 years old, the victim of an attack by four men, was taken to her home, 89 Putnam Street, with fatal injuries, the result of leaping from a second-story window at 593 River Street to escape her assailants.

The girl is employed in Butler. She came to this city to-day to visit her mother. She left her mother's home to catch a train for Butler, and was going along River Street when she was attacked. She was enticed into a fire-ruined building.

A gag was placed over her mouth and she was then carried to the second floor. Waiting her opportunity, the girl made a dash for a window and threw herself to the street, landing on the sidewalk, a distance of twenty feet.

Pedestrians picked her up unconscious, and when she was resuscitated she told the story of the attack. The police were notified and an investigation started, but the girl's assailants had made good their escape. It is said, however, she has furnished the authorities with their names.

Mayor-elect Gaynor will be the guest of honor to-night at a dinner given by the East Side Business Men's Gaynor Campaign Club at Lorber's restaurant, 276 Grand Street.

President Lawson Purdy of the Tax Board announced yesterday that the distribution of land value maps, published by the Tax Department, had been finished. Two thousand volumes, all that were permitted by the charter, have been distributed.

The Trustees of the Metropolitan Museum of Art have decided to open the galleries containing the Hudson-Fulton paintings in the evenings, charging an admission fee of 50 cents to all except members of the Museum. The proceeds will go toward defraying the expenses of the exhibition.

A meeting in memory of John S. Kennedy will be held in the Assembly Hall of the United Charities Building this evening. Robert W. De Forest will preside, and the speakers will include President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia University, John L. Cadwalader, Edward T. Devine, A. W. Halsey, the Rev. Dr. A. F. Schauffler, Frederick Sturges, and Dr. George Washburn.

STETSON PEW VACANT FOR THE FIRST TIME

None of Deposed Teacher's Household at First Church's Sunday Service.

MRS. STETSON IN SECLUSION

Reported That Mother Church Is About to Excommunicate a Practitioner Close to Fallen Leader.

Not a member of Mrs. Augusta E. Stetson's household attended the services yesterday in the First Church of Christ, Scientist, and last night members of the congregation were discussing the fact and wondering what it meant. Although Mrs. Stetson herself has not set foot in First Church since her first admonition by the Mother Church, a month or more ago, the other members of her household had been attending as though nothing had happened.

Mrs. Stella Stimpson, a younger sister of Mrs. Stetson, always occupied the Stetson pew, along with Miss Antoinette Ensworth, Miss Sybil Huse, and others who live in the Stetson home next door to the church. But yesterday the Stetson pew was vacant. A few members of the congregation were seen to enter the Stetson house after the morning services, but Mrs. Stetson had not returned from the home of the mysterious friend, where she went a few hours after news of her excommunication by the Mother Church reached this city.

There was a report circulating in the congregation yesterday that Mrs. Stetson was at the Ansonia, but this could not be verified at the hotel. William H. Taylor and John D. Higgins, two of the First Church Trustees, and both of whom have been Mrs. Stetson's most loyal followers, live at the Ansonia, and, according to the report, Mrs. Stetson had taken apartments there, so she might be in close touch with these two Trustees without exciting the attention of those who may be closely observing her movements in order to report to the Mother Church authorities.

The first report a few days ago had it that Mrs. Stetson was at the home of Mrs. Kate Y. Remer, on West Ninetieth Street, but this was denied at the Remer house.

The only occurrence at the First Church services yesterday which bore at all on the "Stetson question," as it has come to be called among the congregation, was an announcement by Virgil O. Strickler, informing the First Church flock of the hours of service of the other Christian Science churches in New York. The announcement was made in connection with the regular church notices, which are read by First Reader Strickler from the pulpit at morning and evening services. Members of the congregation said that it was the first time in the history of First Church that other Christian Science churches had been mentioned at a service. It had been Mrs. Stetson's custom to refrain from referring in any way to the existence of any other Christian Science Church in this city except her own—First Church. This was one of the things complained of by those who drew the attention of the Mother Church officials to Mrs. Stetson's teachings and methods.

There was a report in First Church circles yesterday that one of Mrs. Stetson's practitioners who testified before the Committee of Inquiry of First Church in a way which greatly favored Mrs. Stetson is about to be excommunicated by the Mother Church. This practitioner is one of those whose testimony in Boston was adverse to Mrs. Stetson's teachings, but who, upon her return, denied all the assertions she had made in Boston, and sought to shield Mrs. Stetson before the Committee of Inquiry.

Those who opposed Mrs. Stetson strongest say they expect a public announcement by the excommunicated teacher in the next few days.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE ASSAILED.

Neither a Philosophy Nor a Theology, the Rev. Dr. Carson Declares.

The Rev. Dr. John F. Carson, a leading Presbyterian clergyman of Brooklyn, and pastor of the Central Church, in his pulpit last evening declared that Christian Science was "subjective idealism gone mad," that it was neither scientific nor Christian.

"It is claimed," said Dr. Carson, "that Christian Science is at once a discovery and a revelation. The claim is sustained only by assertion. It arouses distrust and doubt. In all ages charlatans and deceivers have sought to foist weak and worthless schemes on communities on the plea of special discovery and Divine revelation. Mrs. Eddy's claim that she discovered Christian Science is more uncertain than the present day claims of the discovery of the north pole. If 'Science and Health' is a Divine revelation, it is quite inconsistent and dishonest for Mrs. Eddy and her associates to copyright the book. If it is a revelation, it is God's work, and the receipts from the copyright, if apropriated to their own use by Mrs. Eddy and her associates, are stolen from God.

"It does not require much study of the book to learn that the conglomerate mass contains nothing that measures up to a Divine revelation. The book is little more than a compound of crude philosophizing, made up of Oriental pantheism, mediaeval mysticism, ancient and modern idealism, and unrelated passages of Scripture, to which a fantastic meaning is given.

"Christian Science claims at once to be a science, a philosophy and a theology, but the system does not verify any of the claims. As a science, it begins by making all other sciences preposterous. If its fundamental postulate that matter is a delusion and that all is mind, is true, then astronomy, geology, botany and every other science is baseless, and scientific men have been wasting their time ruminating in a vacuum.

"Neither is it a philosophy. It is subjective idealism gone mad. Genuine idealism affirms the reality of things, and bids us conform our actions to the existing order. Christian Scientists abjure this, yet they eat and drink as if they had a real hunger to satisfy and a real thirst to quench. It would be consistent if the Scientists, who refuse medical treatment because medicine is a delusion, also refused the butcher's meat and the baker's bread, because body is a delusion. No philosophy is of value to which the conduct of life cannot possibly conform. Christian Science is not a theology, because it denies the reality of God by affirming that God is only a principle."

Gulls Foretelling a Hard Winter.

The upper bay yesterday afternoon was literally covered with sea gulls. Resting on the water, the gulls presented a picture of a cotton field in full bloom. When they took wing at the approach of a vessel they resembled a miniature snowstorm. Old salts declared that it has been many years since the gulls have been so numerous, and that it was indicative of a severe Winter.

Pistol Under Pillow; Child Shot.

The accidental discharge of a pistol of antique pattern almost killed eight-year-old Anna Van Borcke of 88 Alabama Avenue, East New York, last night. Tossing around in bed she caused the pistol to slide from under a pillow, where it had been placed by her father ready for a possible visit by burglars. It fell to the floor and exploding as the child reached for it, a bullet penetrates the fleshy part of her right forearm, and lodged in her left eye. Dr. Ives of the Bradford Street Hospital said the child's sight might be saved. He complimented Mrs. Van Borcke for the emergency treatment she gave her little daughter before he arrived, saying it probably saved the child from death by bleeding, an artery in her arm having been severed.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 21.—There has been a general rise in pressure over the northern portion and a fall over the southern portion of the country, with moderate disturbances central over the Texas Panhandle and Southeast Missouri. This distribution has resulted in general rains and snows over the northern districts, with lower temperatures in the interior except the extreme northwest, and fair and warmer weather over the south districts. There will be snow Monday in the central plains States, rain or snow in the Missouri, Middle Mississippi, and Ohio Valleys, the southern upper lake and the lower lake regions, and rain Monday night or Tuesday from the interior of the Gulf States northeastward through Tennessee and the Middle Atlantic States into Southern New England. The winds along the New England and Middle Atlantic Coasts will be moderate west to north. South Atlantic and East Gulf Coasts light to moderate south.

Steamers departing Monday for European ports will have moderate west to northwest winds with partly cloudy weather to the Grand Banks.

FORECAST TO-DAY AND TUESDAY.

New Jersey, Eastern Pennsylvania—Cloudy and colder Monday and Tuesday, with occasional rains; moderate west to north winds.

Eastern New York—Rain in southern, rain or snow in northern portion Monday and probably Tuesday colder; moderate west to north winds.

New England—Partly cloudy and colder Monday; Tuesday, partly cloudy, probably rain and colder in southern portion; moderate west winds.

	1908.	1909.		1908.	1909.
3 A. M.	37	50	4 P. M.	46	61
6 A. M.	35	46	6 P. M.	46	59
9 A. M.	36	48	9 P. M.	43	58
12 M.	39	54	11 P. M.	39	58

This thermometer is 108 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 54.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 48; at 8 P. M. it was 58; maximum temperature, 61 degrees at 4 P. M.; minimum, 48 degrees at 7 A. M. Humidity, 60 per cent. at 8 A. M. and 62 per cent. at 8 P. M.
